Fellow law enforcement officials continually stand in awe of Sheriff Bob Blecker's unusual ability to inspire talkativeness in criminal suspects. What with the recent supreme court rulings and all, it gets tougher all the time; but Bob nevertheless still succeeds most of the time in getting HIS suspects to "tell all" — and without resort to anything slightly resembling third-degree methods, either.

A good example was provided by the "catch" he recently made (thanks to Michigan police) plus records kept by Wright county break-in victims. He had signed statements from the three young men before he ever brought 'em back to Iowa.

Having "taught them to sing," sheriffs of other counties the gang was suspected of having operated in were his guests at interrogation sessions held at the Clarion courthouse. The Dallas county sheriff delightedly obtained information clearing up 16 break-ins in HIS county, which he'd about given up hope on. Altogether, some 55 to 60 break-ins in more than half a dozen counties were solved.

Those hard-working Jaycee-ettes are still determined to see the 1966 Community Chest drive brought to a conclusion. They have been trying desperately to induce all solicitors to get their envelopes in, but still have some to go. Norleen Main and Mary Dorr, the campaign co-chairmen, would like to submit a final report to Chest President Bruce Schroder THIS Saturday, so they urge all workers to get their collection envelopes in to one of them (or to the First State bank) by that time. The Jaycee-ettes remain hopeful that the final figure will not be TOO bad, considering the meteorological interruption the drive suffered on Oct. 14th.

Belmond, vicariously, gets in on another centennial celebration this year. We're advised that the huge Armour company had its beginning in 1867 in Chicago when Philip D. Armour opened a small meat processing plant in Chicago. Armour was an innovator in utilizing inedible products of butchering — the blood, bone, hides, fats and hair (nothing said of the pig's squeal) and then in the use of glandular by-products as pharmaceuticals.

As the company begins its second century, it is known not only for foods but for chemicals (as represented by Belmond Division of Armour Agricultural Chemical company) and a host of industrial products aimed at the needs of the general public, farming and industry.

Today, Armour ranks among the nation's 25 largest corporations — which is pretty good progress, even for 100 years (The Independent has about six more years to match it, and prospects at the moment are dubious). It has annual sales exceeding $2.2 billion, has 40,000 employees and operates about 275 plants and food distribution centers. And an $80 million expansion and plant relocation program's planned for the next five years!

Mrs. H. H. Mennenga on Tuesday of this week celebrated her 91st birthday. Helping her observe the occasion were her brother, Ben Boelman of Meservey — who's a "youth" of 88; also three women friends of Mrs. Mennenga from Aplington. We're publicizing Mrs. Mennenga's birthday a little late — but not too late for friends to offer best wishes.

Don Smith and a group of fox-hunting cronies had a little variety added to their pastime last Sunday about noon when they flushed a coyote in a field a ways south and east of Elm lake. That quite a few sheep have been killed in the vicinity leaves one to wonder. Don brought the critter down with a shot from about 200 yards away.

"Good thing," Don says, regarding his accuracy. "Probably would never have gotten a second crack at him." . . . Uncertain as to just what, for sure, he'd bagged, Don called Conservation Officer Jack Edwards. From the description of the 46-lb. animal, Jack was able to tell him it was a "prairie wolf," "brush wolf" — or just plain coyote.

They are pretty rare in these parts. In 10 years of fox hunting, it was the first Don had seen (it seems well established that the genuine timber wolf is completely extinct hereabouts). He and his buddies — Bud Stoffer, Bill Dieger and Terrell Baker have bagged seven fox so far. Mike Berhow was in the party Sunday.

NO BLANKET OF SNOW could hide the scars left along the Iowa river by the tornado, as shown by the picture above taken south from the Main street bridge following the first snowfall of the season on Wednesday of last week. In contrast to the pleasant, willow-lined stream that this view once presented, debris and shattered trees now accost the eye — suggesting (1) that much storm clean-up along the river remains to be done before the annual threat of spring floods; and (2) that it's going to take nature much longer to "rebuild" from the disaster than it will take man.

Livestock killed by dogs bring Wright county farmers $3,936

Wright county's supervisors last week found that money derived during 1966 from dog licenses fell considerably short of providing sufficient funds to pay for all the depredations caused by dogs among the livestock population during the year.

Claims for livestock and poultry killed during 1966 by marauding dogs came to $5,452.10 and there was only $3,955.25 in the domestic animal fund from license fees. The supervisors consequently had to discount many of the claims, bringing the total of settlements down to $3,936.70.

A number of farmers of the Belmond vicinity or near-by were among those who had entered claims. Largest single sum paid was that to Frank Drury, who lives seven miles south of Belmond on Highway 69. He had 35 feeder lambs killed and was awarded $665 on a claim of $787.50.

Philip McLaughlin had a claim of $135 for eight sheep settled in full. A claim of Mrs. Ray Ellingston for $120 on six sheep was settled at $114; and one for $225 on nine ewes owned by Harold Reece was discounted at $171.

Other settlements with Belmond farmers, claims noted in parentheses, were: Merlin Bierman on hog, $70 ($72); Cloe Jenison on seven sheep, $138 ($340); Lyman Robb on two sheep, $38 ($60); Carl Traeger on one ewe, $19 ($25); Ira Studebaker on four pullets, $2.20 ($4).

Among the larger settlements made were those with the following: Robert Harle of Kanawha on nine hogs, $315 ($315); George Ganzevold of Goldfield on 19 ewes, $361 ($450); Dale Knuths of Dows on 11 sheep, $182 ($325); Clifford Olson of Kanawha on 19 registered sheep, $361 ($965); Stanley Riemenschnieder of Woolstock on 13 hogs, $215 ($275).

Ed Kennedy new chairman—

Board OK's full staff for sheriff

Evidence that changes in personnel on the Wright county board of supervisors have brought a spirit of understanding and cooperation between that body and the sheriff's office was offered by action that the board took at its first-of-the-year meeting Tuesday of this week.

No arguments ensued as Sheriff Robert Blecker submitted a proposal for staff personnel effective as of Jan. 3 that not only included the two deputies that have been carried the past 5½ years but also a full-time office clerk, who also will serve in a deputy's capacity.

Certified by the supervisors were the following staff members:

Sheriff Blecker, at annual salary of $6,500; Deputy Robert Shaw, $5,525; a second deputy to replace Harrold Bygness, who recently resigned $5,525; Janet Downing, deputy to serve full-time as office aide, $3,600; Barbara Claude, relief jail matron at $10 per 12-hour shift; John Van Rokel, district court bailiff at $10 per day.

Salaries of the sheriff and the two chief deputies are set by state law. Mrs. Downing has been working full-time the past 2½ months at an hourly salary of $1.25, putting her monthly pay at $270. Mrs. Claude hast been drawing only 24 cents an hour at $5 for a 12-hour shift, and her pay will be doubled. The bailiff's pay is set by the district court and remains unchanged.

With Ed Kennedy of Belmond directing the board meeting as new chairman, no disposition was shown by the supervisors to re-open a controversy with the sheriff that was initiated last summer when an effort was launched by the board to cut the sheriff's staff by one deputy.

Sheriff Blecker expressed his gratitude to the board for accepting his recommendations and declared that the step should be most helpful in enabling him to conduct his office with greater efficiency. He had, for several years, been urging the hiring of a full-time deputy-clerk to free himself and the other deputies from time-consuming paper work.

Chairman Kennedy named George Heard of Eagle Grove and Conger Whyte of Goldfield to comprise the board's jail and courthouse committee; Walter Wiedemann of Dows and Wendell Duitscher of Clarion as the county farm committee; and the board to serve as a whole as a committee on drainage matters.

Both Mr. Heard and Mr. Whyte were taking seats on the board for the first time, the former having defeated Albert Christopher for District 3 supervisor and Mr. Whyte filling the District 2 position to which Everett Nelson of Renwick did not seek re-election last fall.

The supervisors renamed Mary (Mrs. Clarence) Hildebrande of Belmond to the county board of social welfare and designated as new members Mrs. Dale Harding of Eagle Grove, whose physician husband is county medical examiner, and Mr. Duitscher, The retiring members were Mr. Christopher and Mr. Nelson. The welfare board will meet this Friday to elect its officers.

As another matter of business, the supervisors redesignated the Belmond Independent, Eagle Grove Eagle and Wright County Monitor of Clarion at Wright county's official newspapers.

THIS JAUNTY CAP of snow was bestowed jointly on the Independent office and its neighbor, Belmond Furniture company, by the season's first real snow-fall a week ago Wednesday. Such cute tricks of the weather, we can appreciate and enjoy. Dirty tricks are another matter.

As to rural road patrol—

Blecker urges added authorithy for sheriffs

A recommendation that legislation be passed that would enable the Iowa Highway Patrol to limit its activities to Iowa's state and federal highways was made at a safety seminar conducted by the Iowa State Sheriffs association at Des Moines on Wednesday of last week.

As companion legislation, it was urged that the Iowa General Assembly make each sheriff the commissioner of public safety for his county with sole responsibility for secondary road patrols.

These proposals were set forth by Sheriff Robert Blecker of Wright county with the authorization and approval of the executive board of the sheriffs association.

Prompting the proposals was the rising traffic death toll in Iowa, which was over the 900 mark for the year 1966. Sheriff Blecker pointed out that despite the heavier ratio of traffic on primary roads, nearly 18 per cent — or more than one out of every six — of the state's traffic fatalities have been occuring on secondary roads.

It was the consensus of the executive board of the sheriffs' association that freeing the highway patrol of all responsibility for patrolling the rural roads would give its personnel a better opportunity to reduce deaths on the primary highways.

Praise for the highway patrol's efforts was expressed by Sheriff Blecker, accompanied by the opinion that the proposed spread of safety responsibility would helpfully reduce the burden that the patrolmen now have to shoulder.

He noted that the legislature several years ago assigned responsibility for secondary road safety to the sheriffs, but appropriated no funds for the purpose. It is regarded by the sheriffs, he said, that diversion of some state safety funds to the counties is essential to implement the earlier legislation.

It is the sheriffs' thinking, he added, that some additional manpower would be needed — most particularly during periods of heavy holiday traffic — and that the state should make some additional funds available specifically for that purpose.

In connection with the proposal that each sheriff be named commissioner of public safety for his county, the sheriffs' board took note of the extensive enterprise already being shown in this respect by many sheriffs.

They have sponsored auto safety-checks, established safety rest stops on major highways over holiday weekends, have introduced the use of volunteer uniformed deputies at times of heavy traffic, seen to the ilumination of dangerous rural intersections, and employed a variety of other innovations to protect the public safety.

Relative to annual vehicle safety checks, Sheriff Blecker urged that sheriffs and their deputies be empowered to conduct such mechanical inspections and that a manual be drafted to assure uniformity of the inspections.

He pointed out that there would be no charge for such inspections, as would be necessary if they had to be made at service stations or

'66 traffic toll for Wright to 9

Last Saturday about 9:15 p. m. Wright county's traffic toll for 1966 went up to nine when Walter W. Green, 62, of Graham, Tex., very unexpectedly died as a result of injuries suffered in an auto accident on Dec. 19. In the same accident Duane Greiman of Garner, a 22-year-old Iowa State university student, suffered fatal injuries that brought his death only a short time later.

Green was a patient at Clarion Memorial hospital, but had been apparently making such a satisfactory recovery that his doctor had thought the patient could be released this week. He had suffered a fractured hip, five broken ribs and chest injuries.

It was suspected that an embolism (floating blood clot) had caused his death. A post mortem was to be conducted to determine the cause.

Beef producers will meet today

Wright County Beef Producer's association will sponsor an all-county beef information meeting today (Thursday) at the community room of the First National bank in Clarion at 1:30 p. m.

Gail Danilson, field representative from the Iowa Beef Producer's association, and Jim Stevenson of Goldfield, director of the state association, will conduct the meeting. All beef cattle producers, cattle feeders, and interested beef supporters are urged to attend this very important meeting.

The Wright County Beef Producer's association has initiated a membership campaign in collaboration with the Iowa Beef Producer's association. At a recent meeting of the county association, action was taken to develop a more active beef promotion program on both the county and state level.

Legislative action is one of the main points that the Iowa Beef Producer's association will be working on this year. It plans an all out effort to secure property tax relief on feeder cattle on hand and beef cow herds that are carried over at the end of the year.

NIAD committee gives attention to farm changes

The NIAD agriculture committee, headed by Rex Meyer of Alexander, is taking a close look at farm changes. NIAD farms (all farms in seven full counties — Cerro Gordo, Floyd, Franklin, Hancock, Mitchell, Winnebago and Worth) produced 60,281,000 bushels of corn off 730,000 harvested acres, according to the Iowa Annual Farm Census for 1965 just off the press.

This represents a 15 per cent increase over the previous year (1964) when much of the area experienced dry weather. The 1964 bushels of corn for NIAD represented a nine per cent decrease from the previous year of 1963. Franklin county farmers harvested 12,152,000 bushels of corn in 1965; Hancock, 10,601,000 bushels; Cerro Gordo 9,440,000; and Floyd 8,208,000.

Farmers in the seven NIAD counties fed out 176,456 cattle in 1965, which represented a 35 per cent increase over 10 years earlier. The state increase for the same period on numbers of cattle fed was 53 per cent.

Milk cow numbers decreased from 59,000 to 38,000 over the past 10-year period, which was a 36 decrease.

Tons of fertilizer used by farmers in the seven NIAD counties increased 53 per cent or 31,000 tons over the 1955-65 period.

Cerro Gordo and Franklin counties each used 16,000 tons of fertilizer in 1965, with Hancock using 15,000 tons.

Four in hospital after car crash northeast of town

One charge had been filed and others were pending this week as an outgrowth of an accident involving two cars and a pickup truck hauling a farm wagon that hospitalized four persons late last Thursday afternoon.

Patrolman Bill James, who investigated the mishap, said the following were admitted to Belmond Community hospital: Albert Thompson of Mason City; his wife Neva and daughter JoAnn; and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rena Landon of Belmond. Given first aid and then released was the driver of the second car, Viola (Mrs. Raymond) Kessler of Meservey and her six-year-old son Calvin.

Thompson was driving west in a '60 Chevrolet on County U (the Immanuel church road) and Mrs. Kessler east about 4:15 p. m. when their vehicles crashed head-on. Mrs. Kessler was trying to avoid a collision with a pickup and wagon driven by Harry Mennenga, who was driving east and slowed to turn into his farm driveway, 5½ miles east of town.

JoAnn Thompson's injuries were sufficiently minor that she was released from the hospital on Friday, but the others in the Thompson car were still in the Belmond hospital the first of this week.

Both cars were damaged beyond repair. According to the patrolman the Kessler auto, a 1966 Chevrolet purchased in October of 1965, had only 1,100 miles on it.

Patrolman James said he had filed against Mrs. Kessler a charge of failure to yield one-half portion of the roadway. He stated that upon further investigation there was a possibility that one or two other charges might be filed. Snow, he said, did not seem to be a factor in the mishap.

Former Belmond youth reported hurt, Viet Nam

Pfc. William R. Crosby, USMC, son of former Belmondites Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crosby of Forest City, suffered wounds Dec. 19 in the vicinity of Da Nang, Viet Nam, his parents were advised by telegram at their farm home on Dec. 24.

The telegram, delivered by a Marine sergeant, did not divulge how the 19-year-old serviceman was injured; but a letter the Crosbys received from him on Tuesday of last week provided details that the wire signed by Gen. Wallace M. Greene, Jr., M. C. commandant, had not covered.

It related that he had been in a Marine patrol setting up security for an artillery piece when the heavy gun was fired and the concussion detonated several Viet Cong mines near him.

He said that metal fragments struck him mainly in the back, arms and legs, though a few peppered his chest. He was transferred to the U. S. Naval hospital ship Repose.

He is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chase, Belmond. They understand he might possibly be sent to Great Lakes Naval hospital for recuperation.

His present address, though, is: Pfc. William R. Crosby 2284262, USMC 2nd Bn., 1st Marines, H. Co., 1st Plt WPN-Plt., c/o FPO San Francisco, Calif. 96602.

New Goodyear assignment—

Tom Toft, Jr., headed (this time) for Japan

AKRON, O. (Special) — International businessmen — and their families — have to step lively, sometimes. And a Belmond native, Thomas E. Toft, Jr., is no exception. For that matter, his case was a little bit more special than most since it involved the Christmas season.

It all began in the first week of December. Toft came home from his job as manager of the international credit department of Goodyear International Corporation and proudly announced to his wife and four children that Santa Claus would arrive at their home a little early. He had been reassigned as finance director for Goodyear in Japan.

"It was obvious that the news was welcome," Toft recalled. "My oldest daughter jumped up and down. My wife put on a smile that was as broad as the Pacific we would soon cross. And our youngest son announced that he guessed he'd be learning Chinese!"

And spirits were hardly dampened when Toft noted that they had to be in Tokyo on Christmas Eve. Within a matter of days the Tofts (his wife, Mary, and children: Catherine Ann, 16; Nancee Lynn, 12; Thomas O., 6; and Charles J., 3) accomplished the following:

They sold their Akron home; did some hasty shopping for a few articles to take with them to Japan, expected to be their home for at least the next three years; packed up their household effects; went through a round of farewell receptions; moved into a hotel; held an early family Christmas party; and were airborne to the Far East.

The rush to get to their new assignment was due in part to the fact that Toft's predecessor in Japan had to meet a deadline for arrival at his new post. And Toft wanted to have a few days to talk about his new job with a veteran on the Japanese scene. Another reason for the "emergency evacuation," as Toft put it, was that it takes time for household goods to be shipped long distances by ship.

Since the Toft family is sold on life abroad — and are veterans at it — they take quick moves in stride. Toft has served as a regional credit manager with headquarters in Venezuela. He has also spent more than two years as regional credit manager based in Brussels. Since 1961 he has been in Akron, Goodyear's worldwide headquarters, and since 1964 he has headed up the international credit department.

Toft has done a great deal of traveling around the world since he left Belmond more than 20 years ago. After graduation from Belmond High school, Toft joined the Navy and served as a fire control man for two years. Following his discharge in 1946, he returned to his family's 200-acre farm.

He then decided to work toward a career in business. He enrolled in the American Institute of Business at Des Moines and graduated with honors two years later from a course in business science.

During this period he met his wife, Mary, from Moravia, who is also a graduate of the Des Moines business school. They were married in 1948.

"After graduation from AIB," Toft said, "I walked down the street and applied for a job with Goodyear at its Des Moines district office."

He was hired and in the next five years held a variety of clerical, field auditing and wholesale operating positions in the Des Moines office. He then had a stint in Minneapolis as district chief clerk and as district office manager.

In 1957 he moved eastward — to Chicago as assistant district credit manager. A year later he reached Goodyear headquarters in Akron and was assigned to the company's international subsidiary to prepare for an overseas assignment.

Toft and his wife, and especially their oldest daughter, Cathy, look forward to taking courses in Japanese. Cathy hopes also to repeat her scholastic performance in Belgium, when she was named the top student in her class.

"Her youngest sister," Toft noted, "was not to be outdone. She took the same title the following year!"

Tom is the oldest member of the big family of Tom and Blanche Toft, who have been growing corn, oats, soybeans, dairy cattle and hogs for many years on their Belmond farm. And he was the first to leave home for the "big city."

Four of Tom's brothers make their home in Des Moines. They are Donald, a commercial artist; Jerry, who works for a farm equipment finance company; Robert, an insurance man; and Everett, an accountant with a farm equipment firm. Another brother, Roger, is a sales engineer in Los Angeles. And Clifford is in Belmond running the Toft farm operations. A sister, Doris (Mrs. Lyle Neuhring), lives at Klemme.

If you think Toft has not moved around much, then the birthplaces of his four children will clinch the argument. Cathy was born in Des Moines; Nancee in Minneapolis, Tommy in Brussels and Charlie in Akron.

Two sentenced last week for break-ins in Wright

Two of three Ames young men charged with complicity in a number of break-ins in Wright and near-by counties last Thursday pleaded guilty and were sentenced by Judge Paul E. Hellwege to terms at the men's reformatory at Anamosa. They appeared in district court at Clarion's.

Each was given a term of up to 10 years for breaking and entering, five for larceny of over $20, and three for conspiracy. The judge ordered that the terms should run concurrently.

Receiving the sentences were Glenn Dobbe and James Long, each 20. They and a companion, Larry Jewett, 18, also of Ames, had been apprehended in Michigan with items that had been stolen in Wright county break-ins, and were returned to Clarion by Sheriff Bob Blecker.

Jewett has been arraigned, but his attorney requested additional time to enter a plea and has not yet appeared in court. Another confessed member of the break-in gang, Scott Thorson, 19, Ames, also on Thursday pleaded guilty at Nevada before Judge Ed J. Kelley, was given a 10-year suspended sentence and placed on probation.

Still another man implicated in the series of break-ins, Michael Linn Furman of Ames, age 21, had earlier been sentenced by Judge Kelley to 10 years at Anamosa for burglary. Charges against two other defendants, arrested following a raid on the residence where all the suspects lived at Ames, were dropped.

Interrogation of Dobbe, Long, Jewett and Furman cleared up 11 break-ins committed in Wright county, along with another 40 to 45 that had occurred in other counties, according to Sheriff Blecker. The burglaries in this county had taken place at Dows, Woolstock, Eagle Grove and Goldfield.

—SPORTS—

There were more reasons why the Belmond Bronco cagers should have lost to Clarion last Friday night in the Cowboy's gym than that they should have won. Nevertheless, the scoreboard showed the Blue-and-White basketeers ahead 56-54 to give them a 6-3 mark in wins and losses for the first half of their season.

Something close to a new BHS record for turn-overs must have been set by the Broncos, as time after time — especially in the first half — they lost possession of the ball without a shot at the basket. Their performance improved some after the intermission; but they still made enough mistakes that it could easily have cost them the game.

They also had mediocre luck from the freethrow line, converting only half of 24 chances and missing out on a number of one-and-one opportunities, while the losers made 18 of 23 for 78 per cent.

Obviously, there had to be some plus factors that enabled the Broncos to compensate sufficiently for their own shortcomings to take the victory. One big one was the scoring of Doug Thompsen, who was high-point man for Belmond with 16 points. Another was better scoring balance than the losers had. Terry Nelson, though guilty of inconsistent play, nailed 13 points; Gary Meyers notched 12 and Tim Roberts 11.

But above all, the Broncos kept about their business and even when things looked rather gloomy they refused to buckle. Moreover, Roberts had four fouls on him by halftime and Meyers picked up his fourth with six minutes remaining in the game, but both went the distance. Clarion lost Scott Sims on fouls near the end of the game and Jerry Boyington in the final seconds.

Clarion jumped into an early lead and led by as many as six before Belmond cut it to 11-9 just before the quarter ended. Again, midway in the second stanza, the Cowboys stretched their advantage to six — at 20-14 — before the Broncos hit four consecutive baskets to go ahead 22-20.

Another siege of turn-overs hit them at that stage and Clarion carried a 29-24 advantage at halftime. The Cowboys made it seven points, 31-24, as play resumed but a Belmond rally brought the Broncos into a 41-40 lead to enter the final quarter.

During the third period, Mike Kalkbrenner was held to just four points; but the nifty forward added 14 more in the last quarter to make his night's total 33. It was Thompsen who provided the answer to the Cowboy flash as Doug had an 11-point quarter himself.

Belmond stayed ahead in the closing session until two quick buckets by Kalkbrenner tied it up at 51-all with 3:20 on the clock. Roberts hit for Belmond, but Kalkbrenner cancelled the tally with another of his own. Then Thompsen cashed a fielder and a freethrow that accompanied it to make it 56-53 with 2:14 remaining.

Kalkbrenner got Clarion's final point on a freethrow with 1:20 left and that wound up the scoring. Belmond went into a stall with a minute left; then lost the ball with 25 seconds to go. But the Cowboys were unable to manage a decent shot before time ran out.

Jack Smith supplied just about the only scoring support Kalkbrenner got, with 12 points. Bob Rise and Greg Fuller got two apiece to complete the Bronco total.

The Belmond froshmores had little trouble taking their game, 54-38, as Lee Barkema poured in 21 points. Greg Steenblock notched 11 and Jerry Boelman nine. Coach Chuck Stalker substituted freely in the last half.

Broncos to meet Cards tomorrow

Belmond High's basketeers will resume conference action here tomorrow night with an important matter of business at hand. The Broncos have sharply in their memory the costly defeat they suffered at the hands of Garner just 3½ weeks ago, 73-65, and would like to settle accounts.

On that occasion, Coach Ted Besch was lacking both Rich Stadtlander and Doug Thompsen from the line-up and their absence — plus home court advantage for the Cards — was more disadvantage than the Broncs could overcome.

Stadtlander, who is still recovering from a case of mononucleosis, may not yet be available tomorrow night as recuperation from that ailment is a long process. It is hoped, though, that he will soon be able to make at least spot appearances as he has been working out with the squad in limited fashion.

Bill Engstler, Garner's high-scoring ace, was a decidedly "hot hand" in the earlier game and it can be taken for granted that Besch will be plotting a defense aimed at holding the Cardinal marksman well under the 42 points he poured in before. That it CAN be done was demonstrated just a week after the Garner-Belmond game when the Northwood Vikings held Engstler to a single point.

Belmond prospects for the balance of the season looked brighter on the basis of Doug Thompsen's fine showing against Clarion. The Broncos have not been getting the scoring they should from their front line, much of the time, and an added threat in the forecourt would perk up the offense considerably.

Talk no more so exceedingly proudly; let not arrogancy come out of your mouth. — I Sam. 2:3

Free enterprise could hold key to feeding the world

In these unsetled times when the world seems to have almost more business to tend to than it can handle without peering farther ahead than the next problem in prospect, there nevertheless is necessity as never before to keep a studious eye on the future.

For example, it is forecast that by the year 2000 — now, only 33 brief years away — the globe will contain 6.1 billion mouths to feed. This stacks up as a monumental task.

One mind that has been directing some serious thinking to the challenge is that of C. W. Cook, chairman of the General Foods corporation. At the recent 71st Congress of American Industry held in New York City, this gentlemen expressed concern over a growing trend toward ever more limitation of free enterprise by government controls.

"The driving force of our private enterprise organizations can, and must, be brought increasingly to bear on the vital problem of world food production. . . . American agribusiness has the skills to do the job, in partnership with government."

But, he added, "If America's food industry, from farm through distribution, is to take on the formidable task of carrying know-how around the world, then some major revisions will have to be made in some alarming and growing concepts now prevalent in Washington as to how free enterprise works best."

"The freedom and incentive to plan and to operate which has made us the outstanding 'have' nation in history must be extended rather than curtailed if we are to lead the 'have nots' out of the misery and insecurity which threaten the security of the entire world."

It is true that the totalitarian nations have shown small promise of being important contributors to the increased food production that the world will very soon seriously require. Recognition of WHY the best hope lies with our nation lends weight to Mr. Cook's warning.

No lack of "readiness" in meeting disaster here

While we would not wish to fault an agency that contributed importantly to helping Belmond get through the critical period that immediately followed the October tornado, a question enters our mind as to whether a recent proposal of the Iowa Highway Patrol was justified by the experience here.

Patrol Chief Ted Mikesch at a meeting of District 7 patrol officers who served in this community following the disaster implied that patrolmen should be equipped and ready to take command at future disasters as soon as they appear on the scene.

This would include issuance of disaster kits to all patrol areas which would include: tags for marking search areas, injured persons and workers authorized to enter an area; passes for residents and relatives wishing to enter the area; mapping paper to help set up a search map; a public address system; and an emergency procedure list.

The procedure list would include all necessary papers for calling out National Guard, Red Cross and Civil Defense units.

Sheriff Bob Blecker had an inclination to see red when he saw the story regarding the highway patrol proposal; and we can't say that we blame him. There was also good reason for the Belmond Fire department members to ask "Why?"

Considering the scope of the local disaster, the manner in which local law enforcement and public safety personnel took charge was truly remarkable. The firemen were launched on their house-to-house search for victims almost within a matter of minutes. Neighboring fire companies appeared almost as if by magic to assist with emergency clean-up.

Disaster work rapidly moved ahead under the direction of Sheriff Blecker. The highway patrol, very properly, concentrated its attention on traffic control. There was certainly no necessity, in Belmond's case, for the patrol to "take charge'.'

Maybe the patrol is, in actuality, paying a high compliment to local authorities with its implied suggestion that "relief work was well handled at Belmond, but how many places could expect to be so fortunate?"

As we view it, the authority and responsibility for dealing with a disaster SHOULD lie with local officials — and divided responsibility would be inadvisable.

Maybe the Belmond case was NOT typical, and we were inordinately lucky to have emergency relief direction in such capable hands as those of Sheriff Blecker and Fire Chief "Bud" Packard. But on the other hand, there was no basis here for concluding that "next time" the highway patrol should be ready to assume authority.

In outlining the patrol proposal, Col. Mikesch emphasized that its most important aspect was that "action should be taken as soon as patrolmen arrive on the scene." Without intending the slightest discredit to the patrol in the part it played here, we're bound to point out that "action" was well in progress on Oct. 14th well ahead of the time that the patrol was here in force.

Serious doubt if "THAT diagonal" the BEST choice

Freeways have gained quite an ugly reputation the length and breadth of our land for the highhandedness that has been exercised in carving them "the shortest distance between two points," or a reasonable facsimile thereof. Where federal road funds are being spent, the Bureau of Public Roads brooks little interference with its decisions, regardless of what the considerations may be.

Because it isn't OUR ox being gored, we have watched with more or less casual interest the bulldog fight that the farmers of the Dows-Latimer area have been putting up to preserve their farms from the controversial Interstate 35 diagonal.

We must confess that our sympathy has been with them. We must further admit that we harbor no particular regrets that Interstate 35 was moved away from Belmond's own doorstep. Its close proximity is something of a mixed blessing when one regards the amount of land removed from the tax rolls and the inconvenience (to use the mildest word possible) caused the farmers affected.

The overweening consideration in the whole controversy seems to rest on accommodating Mason City with close availability of the interstate. The numerous contradictions that have entered into the argument leave us completely at a loss to decide to our own satisfaction if the presently planned diagonal were not settled upon as much by whim as by geographic (or other) necessity.

Insofar as we can comprehend the situation, there is strong reason for suspicion at this point that a good deal of plain, everyday bull-headedness and arbitrariness has influenced the decision that now stands.

Federal Highway Administrator Rex Whitton has, to all appearances, been giving the Dows-Latimer farmers and state legislators who have been trying to fight their battle a bunch of federalese double-talk that stamps him as a part of the problem, not as a possible element in its solution.

The Mason City Globse-Gazette this past year won the Iowa Daily Press association's top award for "Community Service" for the part it played in getting I-35 shifted from the original route paralleling No. 69 over to Mason City's outskirts.

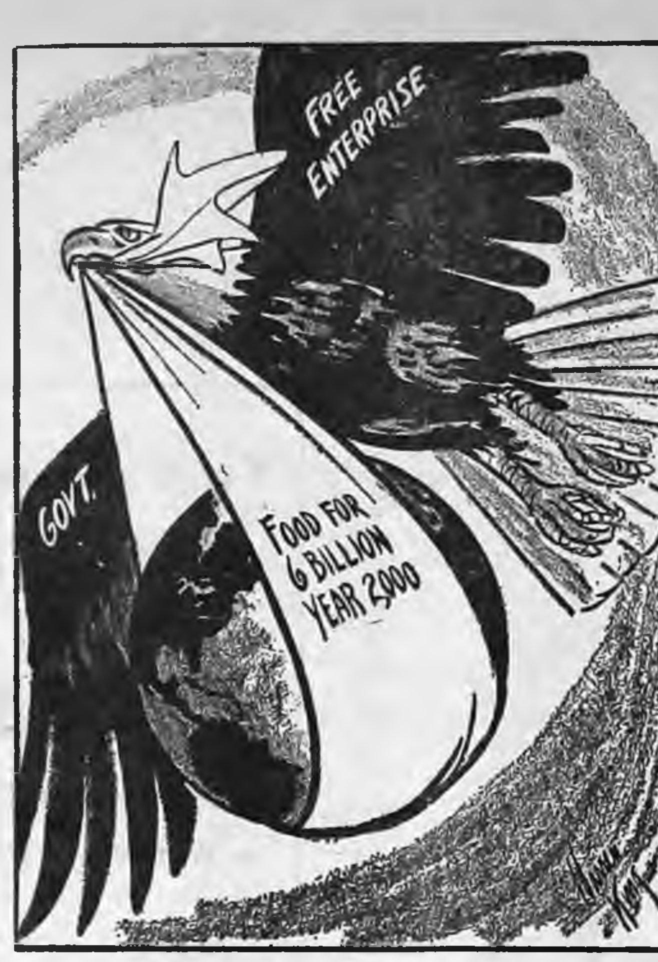
There is no denying that, from Mason City's viewpoint, this WAS a community service of no small proportions. But we've been left wondering why, if the Globe-Gazette's pipeline to the Bureau of Public Roads possesses such remarkable influence, our neighboring publishers don't get this Dows-Latimer tangle straightened out.

The obtuse Mr. Whitten is quoted to the effect that he had not specified the controversial, oblique diagonal and that a shorter diagonal immediately south of Mason City "would be very satisfactory so long as the route was between Clear Lake and Mason City.."

Could it be that if the Globe-Gazette declared, "We'll buy that," it would solve the dilemma?

If we choose to be realistic — probably not. As matters stand, we suspect that the Dows-Latimer farmers are going to be forthrightly put in their place just to prove that NOBODY pushes the U. S. government around. Not even if they're right as rain in their contentions.

Lost in the squabble is the fact that it is the Dows-Latimer farmers' government — just as it's ours, and the Mason City folks'. The whole mess is sort of a stinker.



TOMORROW'S WORLD

CONVERSATIONS WITH THE OFFICE CAT

By Ye Ed

"Quite a doin's yesterday up at the gym," TJ, the office cat, observed as he strolled toward our desk and plunked himself on the easy chair. "Lot of people missing out on a lot of fun by not taking in those grunt-and-groan exhibitions."

"You're right," we agreed. "From the crowd that packed the gym for the finals of the Belmond Invitational Wrestling tournament, some of the visiting teams obviously have a host of loyal followers. But the Bronco tuggers just haven't gotten the backing that they deserve."

"Not bad, BHS having a couple of champs," the feline continued. "I really get a charge out of watching little Jimmy Dickson go after 'em. Wrestling him must be like getting your head caught in a cloud of gnats. There's just no getting away from the scoundrel."

"HE DOES BORE IN, DOESN'T he?" we nodded. "Good counter wrestler. Every time an opponent makes a move, Jimmy has the answer to it before the maneuver's even completed.

"Now Les Steenblock — big Les, he's somethin' different. Plays it cool and easy. Just waits around for his fellah to do something foolish, then goes to work and makes the mistake pay off — for him."

TJ chuckled, "You sure see all kinds. Remember that pair of 165-pounders who spent all of the first two minutes trying to hold hands? And neither of 'em liking the way the other one went about it."

WE ANSWERED WITH A GRIN recalling, "We were sitting by Ronnie Courson — young Ron, that is — when we watched that one. Ronnie declared he has the same sort of trouble sometimes, out on a date.

"What's pitiful," TJ went on, "is to see one of these kids taking on a boy he just KNOWS is going to whip the livin' daylights out of him, if he ever catches up with him. Several of 'em backed up far enough to get clear out of town, if they'd been going in a straight line."

"And," we added, "if they'da been given a choice in the matter they probably WOULD have left town . . . Not too many real mismatches, though. And some of the scraps so even that it seemed a pity either had to lose."

"One thing," TJ said, "by now most of the boys got the misery of weight cutting behind 'em and are feeling more or less comfortable as slim Jims. Since EVERYBODY (or practically everybody) does it, if a boy doesn't knock from eight to 15 pounds off of his autumn weight he can just count on running up against burlier opponents."

"TAKE FOR INSTANCE," WE suggested. "Jimmy Dickson. He was pretty much of a midget for football — even if a tough one. But he had to lop 18 pounds off of his football weight of 145 pounds to get down to his intended wrestling weight of 127 by Dec. 2nd.

"Now, of course, the boys are permitted to add two pounds a month — so that by state tournament time in February a 127-pounder can actually tip the beam at 133 pounds and 'make weight' OK."

"With all that holiday eatin'," TJ remarked, "I'd guess that the most of 'em don't have much trouble picking up the allowed four pounds extra by the first of the year.

"Incidentally, I hear that it drives a lot of the mamas pretty near to distraction when sonny boy 'won't eat' in order to keep in wrestling trim. But you know, I sure didn't see any kids on those mats up at the gym the other night who looked like victims of malnutrition."

"NO 95-LB. WEAKLINGS," WE agreed. "Or 120-lb., or 138-lb. . . . in fact, until you got up to the heavyweight class, where pounds are of no consequence, most of the boys seemed to have muscles on their muscles. Some of the heavyweights, of course, have got their muscles pretty well padded."

The cat lapsed into silence as he thought back on the previous night's proceedings, before stating, "You know, there must be few moments of truth that can match the exertion that goes into fending off a fall. Just about any boy must have a bit more fiber to him after going through that experience.

"THAT'S OCCURRED TO US," we replied. "Trying to prevent a shoulder from sinking to the mat, a measly two or three inches away, with someone your equal size trying for all he's worth to push it down! We suffer with every one of 'em who gets in the predicament!"

TJ laughed, "I didn't see you doing much suffering with the Britt boy when Steenblock was on the verge of pinning him. In fact, you seemed to be taking a most malicious delight in the fate that was descending upon the hapless visitor."

"Which," we informed him, "only goes to show that circumstances alter cases."

Have had long, dry spell, but—

Forest City boasts most NIC cage titles

As basketball action in the North Iowa conference resumes this Friday, the loop cagers will be setting about to introduce some semblance of form to a season that's off to the wildest start ever.

One thing is certain. No team is going to dominate matters like Belmond did with a 14-0 campaign in 1964-65, or as Garner did the year before that. In fact, it seems highly questionable whether the '66-67 champions will be able to match Buffalo. Center's title-winning achievement of 12 wins against two losses last season.

For the defending champions, Belmond, Forest City and Northwood each already has a pair of defeats balanced against four victories; and Lake Mills, who's not yet to be regarded as out of the running with a 2-3 mark, could conceivably top the heap with a good showing the rest of the way.

Forest City "past due"?

If the inspiration of "a long, dry spell" could be a deciding factor, a sharp eye should be kept on Coach Herb Konigsmark's Forest City club. Although the Indians have won more cage crowns than any other NIC outfit, it's been 15 years since they last copped the championship.

All of their nine titles — one shared with Northwood — were hauled down in a period of 14 years, during which their NIC foes got pretty well fed up with the Indians' domination of hardcourt proceedings.

Oddly enough, the next largest number of championships has been claimed by Britt, who in the 14 years between 1929 and 1942 took the title eight times. In recent years, the Eagles have consistently lacked the defensive strength necessary for contention and have been regular occupants on one of the bottom rungs on the loop ladder.

Osage has never won

Except for Osage, which has never won top cage laurels in the NIC, Britt's span of 24 titleless years is the longest in the league. Osage appears destined to see its eighth try since joining the conference go for naught, with victories only over tail-end Garner and Britt in its 2-2 mark to date this season.

Following Britt in number of cage titles are Belmond, Northwood and Garner, each with six to its credit. The Vikings have claimed the championship four times in the past nine years, winning it most recently in '61-62 and the year before that sharing it with Buffalo Center.

Third title for Bison

Last season's title was the third for the Bison, 23 years having intervened between their first success — in '36-37 — and their tie with Northwood six years ago.

During its 10-year membership in the loop, Clear Lake took cage laurels four times before withdrawing to join the North Central conference in 1936.

Forest City, thanks to its 105-52 splurge again Britt, possesses the best offensive mark in the loop thus far this season with a 72.8 average. Buffalo Center, with a 22-point defensive performance against Osage and a 38-point job on Britt. has a big edge on defensive average with 47.7 per game.

Bronco defense weaker

Belmond, which a year ago was holding its NIC foes to a 55-point average, this season has been yielding points at a 61.7 clip — its poorest defensive showing in quite some time. The Bronco's offense has been third best in the league at 65.6, following Forest City and Buffalo Center's 66.6.

Lake Mills has been scoring an average of 65.4, Garner 64.0, Northwood 56.8, Osage 54.7 and Britt 52.

Northwood follows Buffalo Center defensively with a 54.8 average. Then in order come: Forest City 60.2, Belmond, Lake Mills 63.0, Osage 63.5, Garner 69.4 and Britt 79.2.

Vikings vs. Bison

Except for the clash between Northwood and Buffalo Center on the Bison court tomorrow night, all of the league leaders should survive Friday night's round of play if proceedings follow form.

Belmond will be looking to avenge the Broncos' 73-65 upset at the hands of Garner on Dec. 13, when the losers were without two of the first six players. Defenseless Britt doesn't figure to give Lake Mills much trouble in the new Bulldog gym; and Forest City appears to have too much punch for Osage.

The Broncos should have something of a breather next week, playing host to Osage; but then they have Northwood, Buffalo Center and Forest City coming up in a row. It will be a tough row to hoe.

Following is a record of the NIC cage champions, extending back to the loop's establishment 41 years ago:

Clipped Comment

From the Typewriters of Other Editors

Yeh! Who needs it?

"Who needs it?" is enjoying a current vogue second only perhaps to James Bond, and frankly we are running across it more often than we need it. In fugue and variations it appears on two facing advertisements in (a recent) Time magazine:

"With a card like this," says a credit card company, "who needs cash?" "I could hit it big with beavers," says a life insurance company. "Who needs life insurance?"

AT THE BACK OF THE MAGAzine an advertisement for college educations shows a picture of a youth with the line: "Born to lead . . . who needs him?" And in the cinema section . . . a review of "Hawaii" with the same original thought: "A cinema spectacle is like a 10-ton mouse: Who needs it?"

WELLADAY, EVERY PERIOD has its standard phase guaranteed to dispense sparkle and wit, command attention, evoke surprise and end discussion. We mind us when it was a crushing "Sez you" and again when it was a sneering "So's your old man." (More recently . . . "Sorry about that.")

Our own all-time favorite, when we want to say something both clever and culminating, is the Manassa mauler of them all: Twenty-three skidoo! Anybody want to try to top that for fun and games? — St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Broncos have two champs—

Clarion's balance takes mat tourney crown

TEAM FINISH: Clarion 94, Humboldt 77, Alden 48, Belmond 43, Britt 43, Hampton 32, Clear Lake 21, Estherville 9.

Clarion's powerhouse wrestling crew lived up to expectations in the 5th annual Belmond Inviatational Wrestling tournament Thursday of last week, getting all but one man through the first round and then picking off four championships to take the team title with 94 points.

Humboldt matched the Cowboys in individual class winners, but did not have as much team balance and had to settle for runner-up honors with 77. Alden and Belmond each produced two champions.

Steenblock still unbeaten

Without much question, it was one of the finest fields that has completed in this annual classic; and the number of close matches spoke for the general high level of competition.

Typical was Jim Dickson's 3-2 victory over Tim Dillon of Hampton on riding time. The Bronco 127-pounder had advanced to the second round on a bye, then decisioned Dennis Murphy of Clarion 7-2, while the tough little Bulldog — son of former Belmondite Daryl Dillon — pinned Dennis Sielaff of Alden and then edged Jerry Steenlage of Britt 5-3.

Les Steenblock was the other Belmond champion, thereby keeping his season's record unmarred. He pinned his heavier foe, Phil Sweers of Britt, in the finals in 3:50. This gave the Broncos an extra team point an enabled them to tie Britt for fourth place, each with 43 totals. Les opened with a 4-0 decision over John Mayer of Estherville and then blanked Kent Brooks of Clarion, 3-0.

Dorr loses in finals

Robb Dorr was Belmond's only other finalist. He trimmed Lon Christianson of Alden 4-1 and Jim Sundall of Estherville 4-0, but couldn't handle Mark Schilling of Clarion. The Cowboy 112-pounder showed his class by pinning Doug Lloyd of Britt in 32 seconds and Dennis Cooper of Clear Lake in 2:20. He couldn't flatten Dorr, but won the finals with a 6-2 decision.

Belmond got three other tuggers through the first round — Dave Riedel (133), Tom Swaroff (138) and Lance Campbell (145); but each lost in the second round and also was beaten in his consolation match for third place.

Riedel downed Steve Peterson of Estherville 7-4, then lost to Leland Pommrehn of Alden 3-2 in the second round on a reversal with only 15 or 20 seconds of match time remaining. He than bowed to Mike Roberts of Clarion in another scorcher in consolation, 4-3.

Swaroff takes opener

Swaroff surprised Steve Rasmussen of Humboldt 5-4 in his opening match, then was pinned by Darrell Howell of Clarion in 4:25. He escaped a fall in his consolation match with Gary Stevenson of Britt but was soundly decisioned, 11-0.

Campbell got an extra point for Belmond on the scoreboard with a fall over Sam Kennedy of Clear Lake in 5:48 in his opener; but suffered a similar fate at the hands of Tim Blecker of Clarion in his next appearance, in 3:12. In consolation, he was nosed out by Keith Abens of Humboldt, 5-4, on riding time.

Greg McClenahan gave Ron Bygness of Humboldt a good match, 4-2, before losing to the 95-lb. runner-up 4-2; and Lewy Schaal made a respectable showing against Gary Woodely of Clarion, 3rd place winner at 103, but lost 4-0. Steve Courson caught a tartar in his 120-lb. opener and was pinned by Gary State of Clarion, the class champion, in 2:35.

Wayne Smith drew the 154-lb. champ as his first round foe and was beaten 4-0. Mack Gabrielson made a similar draw at the 165-lb. weight and was pinned by Gary Nelson of Alden in 2:35. Fred Whipple (180) lost by a fall in 3:23 to Dave Heimstra of Clarion, who finished second.

Favorites picked off the titles in a majority of the weights, the winner being either the boy seeded No. 1 or No. 2. An exception was the 138-lb. class, where Tim Ryan of Alden surprised second-seeded Gary Stevenson of Britt in the semi-finals 5-2 and then edged top-seeded Darrell Howell of Clarion 5-3.

Steenblock was the only champion to win by a fall. "Butch" Laird had to go into overtime to take the 103-lb. title from Gene Vanderloop of Alden 2-1. Bob Short of Humboldt needed an edge in riding time nose out Larry Olsen of Britt at 154 pounds, 2-1.

How many state champs?

Dickson's 3-2 decision over Dillon at 127 wasn't quite as close as the score might seem to indicate. He had a 2-1 edge as time was running out and deliberately let the Hampton grappler escape, tying the score, secure in the knowledge that he had enough riding time for his 3-2 decision if he could fend off a take-down.

It was the belief of coaches and fans who witnessed the tournament that at least three or four of the champions should be top contenders for state titles later in the season.

Championship matches resulted as follows:

95 —John Nelson (Cl.) dec. Ron Bygness (Hu.), 10-2.
103—Laird (Hu.) dec. Vanderloop (A), 2-1 ovt.
112—Schilling (Cl.) dec. Dorr (Bel.), 6-2

165—Gary Nelson (A) dec. Jim Vinsand (Hu.), 4-2.
180—Geoff Mickelson (Hu.) dec. Dave Hiemstra (Cl.), 6-4.
Hwt.—Steenblock (Bel.) pinned Sweers (Br.), 3:50.

Consolation results were:

95—Schuler (CL) pinned Sheppard (Ha.), 1:40.
103—Woodley (Cl.) dec. Schwichtenberg (CL), 6-2.
112—Cooper (CL) dec. Sundall (E), 4-1.

165—Tjarks (Br.) dec. Summa (E), 4-1.

Hwt.—Schlichting (CL) pinned Brooks (Cl.), 3:33.

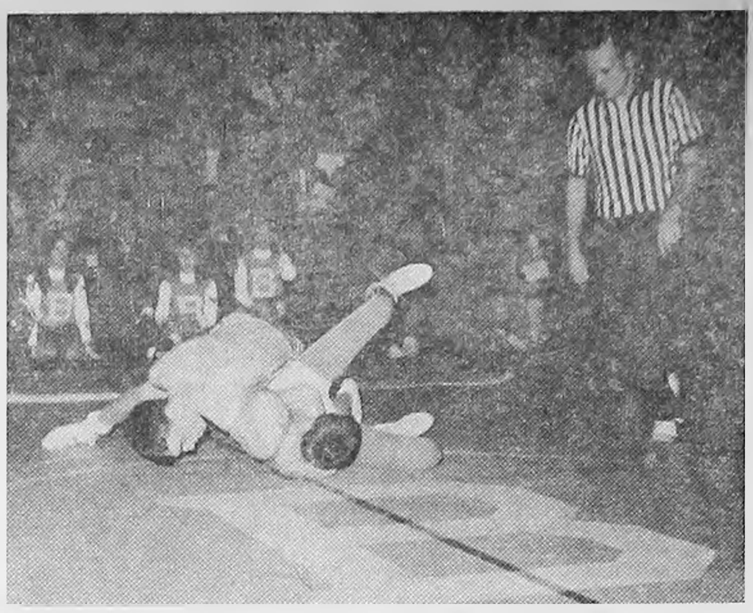
ANOTHER WIN was added to Les Steenblock's string of heavyweight victories in the Belmond tournament semi-final match that provided the action shown above. After the first two periods of his tussle with Kent Brooks of Clarion had ended scoreless, Les got an escape and then a take-down in the third for a 3-0 decision. He was the only champion to win his finals match by a fall.

* * *

ALTHOUGH CLARION easily won the team championship in last Thursday's Belmond Invitational Wrestling tournament, one Cowboy who failed to make the finals (there were several others) was Dennis Murphy, taking his lumps above from Bronco Jim Dickson. Practically from start to finish of this semi-final match, Jim was in control of matters and he wound up with a 7-2 decision. In the finals he beat Tim Dillon of Hampton 3-2 on riding time.



TWO VALUABLE POINTS for a reversal were being chalked up by Robb Dorr in his semi-final match with Jim Sundall of Estherville as this picture was taken last Thursday afternoon at the Belmond Invitational Wrestling tournament. That gave Robb a decisive 4-0 edge, which he held to the finish to gain a decision. That's Dave Harty, Eagle Grove High school coach, officiating. Dorr lost in the finals.

Heart volunteers workshop slated; Jan. 11, Humboldt

State Heart Fund Chairman Jack Schroeder of Bettendorf will be the guest speaker at a multi-county Heart Fund Workshop on Wednesday of next week. It will be held in the First National bank social center in the Humboldt post office building at 2:00 p. m.

As a volunteer, Schroeder, who is serving his second consecutive year as Iowa Heart Fund chairman, is widely recognized for his work with the Iowa Heart Association. A lawyer, he served two terms in the Iowa house of representatives and five terms in the Iowa senate.

Schroeder said, "It is easy to see the importance of the Heart Association programs when we realize that more than half of all deaths in the nation are caused by diseases of the heart and circulation — 17,000 Iowans last year, with many in the middle-aged group."

The Humboldt County Heart unit will host the workshop, Dr. James Coddington presiding.

Dr. A. J. Herlitzka of Mason City, president-elect of Iowa Heart association, is to be present to discuss the group's programs. Present also will be Jean Engel, Mason City, nurse-coordinator of the newly organized North Iowa Stroke Rehabilitation program. Mrs. William Kirchoff, Humboldt County Heart Fund chairman, will take an active part in the program.

Other officers and chairmen of the 14-county North Central division of Iowa Heart association who will be participating are: Mrs. Leo Woodley, Clarion, Wright County Heart Fund chairman; Dr. Dale Harding, Eagle Grove and Dr. Clyde J. Smith, Gilmore City, presidents of Wright and Pocahontas counties respectively.

The workshop has been set up for all Heart Fund volunteers and others interested in the work of the Heart association.

Matmen vs. Lions next Wednesday

Wednesday of next week the Belmond wrestlers will travel to Clear Lake for a dual meet with the Lions. This is only the Lions' second season at the sport and greater experience tabs the Broncos as favorites.

Clear Lake has its best boys at the lower and higher weights. Rick Schuler at 95 pounds was 3rd place winner in the Belmond Invitational tournament last week and Dennis Cooper matched that achievement at 112 pounds.

Ray Schwichtenberg (103) won his opening match in his tough weight class but then lost in the second round and in his consolation match was outpointed 6-2 by Gary Woodely of Clarion.

Craig Hughes made a good showing at 180 pounds, though losing his first round match 5-4 to Tom Stackland of Estherville. The Lions' heavyweight, Wayne Schlichting, finished third in the tourney by pinning Kent Brooks of Clarion in 3:33. Les Steenblock, who was champion heavyweight, had to settle for a 3-0 decision over Brooks in the semi-finals.

garages, This would qualify Iowa for federal safety funds that the state would be ineligible to receive if payment were required for the inspections.

Iowa's sheriffs, Blecker declared, feel a keen responsibility for road safety but have been thwarted in the establishment of adequate secondary road patrols by lack of funds.

At the same time, the 400 Iowa Highway Patrolmen have a full-time job in maintaining the sort of patrol that safety demands on the 10,000 miles of the primary and interstate road system.

"It is the hope of every sheriff in the state," Sheriff Blecker concluded, "that a new approach to the problem of accident prevention on the secondary roads — united with the efforts of the Iowa Highway Patrol on the primary roads — can be adopted to the end of reducing the number of fatalities on Iowa's road systems."

Kathleen Jones and John D. Dunlap wed at Methodist church Dec. 27th

Evergreen boughs, red poinsettias and red and white candles enhanced the chancel of the Methodist church for the wedding Friday evening, Dec. 23, of Miss Kathleen May Jones of Indianola and Seaman John Norman Dunlap of San Diego, Calif. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of satin and Alencon lace featuring a detachable, chapel-length train. The princess silhouette bodice was fashioned with a scoop neckline accented by dainty seed pearls. The long fitted sleeves tapered to the traditional bridal point over the wrists. Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. Dining room hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. James M. Jones of Scottsdale, Ariz., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Jones of Decatur, Ill. Serving the cake were Mrs. Lottie Taylor and Mrs. Mabel Carr, both of Milford and aunts of the bride. Dipping punch was Mrs. Charles Reeg of Boulder, Colo., and pouring coffee was Mrs. John Lems of Canton, S. D., sister of the bride.

Gift pages were Robert Maurice Jones and Bradley Allan Jones, both of Scottsdale, Ariz., and nephews of the bride. Opening and arranging the gifts were Diane Skrivseth of Minneapolis, Minn., and Mary Ellen Steinle of Florida, both sorority sisters of the bride.

As the couple left on a short trip to Des Moines, the bride wore an emerald green, wool dress with ivory lace trim. They are at home at 105 south Jefferson in Indianola.

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 48 NO. 16 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, JAN. 12, 1967 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

You know what causes a mighty lot of trouble? . . . Hooch! Grantedly, this is not a revolutionary new discovery on the part of this department. What brought it to mind was a glance by Ye Ed into a new file drawer in the office of the clerk of court at Clarion containing the last 19 criminal cases to be filed by the district court.

Fourteen of them were OMVI (operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated). And another found the defendant guilty of supplying beer to minors.

That makes liquor the responsible factor behind nearly 79 per cent of the cases the new drawer has thus far received! Quite a bundle of cash was received by the school fund in fine money from the guilty parties. But it's questionable if society benefits as much by these funds as it would if the gents could keep their noses dry.

That very effective ad for Belmond that appeared in the Iowa Business Outlook section of last Sunday's Des Moines Register was written by Mainstreeter No. 3 — and his podners think it was a job well done. Of course, just HOW "effective" it really was will be revealed by the response it gets. The Belmond Industrial Development corporation has been acquiring some good industrial landholdings — and all that's needed is some industry to put there.

On the heels of the Job Corps' appearance in Belmond to help with the tornado clean-up, Sheriff Bob Blecker wrote a letter to the regional director of the OEO in Kansas City commending the boys and their leader (Jack Matthews) on a job well done. This is NOT the type of correspondence that the Job Corps has most commonly elicited, and it caused quite a flurry in Office of Economic Opportunity circles.

Not long afterward a honeysuckle, you-all voice called Bob from Washington, D. C., its owner identifying herself as a member of the OEO's capital staff. She made clear that the arrival of Bob's communication had made it a red-letter day for the oft-maligned Job Corps.

Permission was solicited to print the sheriff's letter in the November issue of the Job Corps Staff Newsletter. That permission was readily granted by Brother Blecker, who admits that the Southern Accent could probably have talked him into a much bigger favor than that. Bob had emphasized in the letter that (1) no one had requested he write such a letter; and (2) that he is a Republican in good standing.

At the risk of having Erv Redder accused again by his daughter of being a "blabbermouth," we feel compelled to pass along another "bright saying" by the popular Rexall druggist. As anyone who has passed through the business district in the weeks since the tornado knows, almost any hour of the day determined workmen can be seen on the roof of Kinseth Plumbing and Heating (in whose building the drug store is temporarily located) trying to make the confounded thing stop leaking.

As the tramp of feet was to be heard overhead one day last week, Erv cast a contemplative glance upward and observed, "That figures to be the first roof ever worn out by pedestrian traffic."

Erv followed up with the remark that he was seriously considering putting up a lunch stand on the roof . . . "More people up there than walking along the street," he declared. . . . While progress on the Kinseth roof hasn't been so rapid, things have rather been humming on Main street, otherwise. That better-looking-than-ever Main street is really shaping up. Wonder how those arcade plans are coming?

Mrs. Anna (E. J.) Soma on Thursday of next week will observe her 91st birthday. Since her present state of health requires nursing care and she is residing at Bel Chris Manor, no special plans are being made for observance of the occasion. Cards from her friends would no doubt help to "make" the day. And her children living in this vicinity will, of course, be calling on her.

It almost calls for a census taker to keep up with the number of Anna's descendents. She has 11 living children and 49 grandchildren. Her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Gabrielson, was certain about that. But in telling us of her mother's approaching birthday, she hedged on the number of great and great-great grandchildren.

"About 90," she said, as to great grandchildren; and "I think, just two great-great grandchildren." Mrs. Soma was born in Polk county but lived most of her life in Norway township, where she and her late husband (he died in '57) farmed until moving to Belmond in 1949. If all her direct kin showed up to greet her on her birthday, wouldn't it make quite a party? . . . Yes! It would!

Latest of a number of literary efforts inspired by the Belmond tornado reached our desk this week, coming from Lena Van Duseldorp — now of Las Vegas, Nev., but before that of Thornton, and originally a Belmond native. Her poetry appeared in a number of North Iowa publications before her departure from Thornton.

Entitled, "Our Little Town," Lena's offering started: "Belmond was put in a terrible fix. A terrific tornado came a-roaring down. And practically wiped out our little town!"

After telling how Belmond struggled back, it concludes: "When the year ended the Top Story did rate. All over the state it took the Sweepstake. Other news just could not compare. With Belmond's Great Tornado registered there!" A large volume could be printed from the wealth of tornado-inspired writings.

MR. AND MRS. HUGH WHITTEN

Married at Rowan in 1897—

Whittens reach 70th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Whitten of Rowan will be celebrating so many years of marriage this week that there isn't even a name for their anniversary. They were wed Jan. 13, 1897, at the Congregational parsonage at Rowan by Rev. S. A. Martin.

This coming Sunday they will be honored at an open house to be held at their Rowan home and all their relatives and friends are invited to greet them between the hours of 2:00 and 5:00 p. m.

After Bertha Walker and Hugh Whitten were married 70 years ago tomorrow, they went to Iowa Falls by train on their wedding trip. She had reached her 18th birthday just three days earlier and Hugh had become 20 the previous Sept. 23.

In the summer of '97, work was begun on a set of farm buildings on the quarter of land northeast of Rowan where Mr. Whitten was born. They moved into their new home that fall and resided there for nearly 46 years before taking up residence in Rowan in 1943.

Four sons were born to the couple. One, Floyd, is deceased. Ralph lives at Des Moines, Clarence in Rowan and Kenneth farms the home place.

For 40 years, Hugh owned and operated a steam-powered threshing machine and with his crews did threshing for farmers in the vicinities of Dows and Alexander as well as Rowan.

Woodworking is a hobby that occupies much of his time and much of the furniture in the Whitten home was made by him out of native walnut. Mrs. Whitten has kept herself busy with quilting, braiding rugs and oil painting.

A highlight of their 70th anniversary was receipt of a message of congratulation received from President and Mrs. L. B. Johnson last week.

Mr. Whitten is a sturdy and agile 90 and has enjoyed remarkably good health. His wife's health has not been equally good since she twice suffered falls last year and sustained injuries that have somewhat incapacitated her.

Last summer she was still pursuing the hobby of raising flowers and had an extensive flower garden, whose blossoms she has delighted in sharing with her friends on such occasions as weddings and to decorate the altar for church services.

Nelson resigns as councilman—

City OK's No. 69 widening with resolution

Dr. Alan M. Nelson tendered his resignation as a councilman-at-large at the meeting of the council held Tuesday night of last week. It was accepted with regret by Mayor Robert Misner.

First elected by a write-in vote in 1961, Dr. Nelson had successfully run for re-election in 1963 and 1965. He was the victim of a breakdown following the tornado in October and was under treatment at a psychiatric center at Des Moines for a period of some weeks, returning home on Dec. 30.

A new councilman to fill the vacancy may possibly be named at the council meeting to be held next Monday night. At that time, also, city employees for the current year will be officially appointed — this matter of business having been omitted last week due to the press of other matters.

One appointment was made a week ago, making Ted Zook the city zoning officer as well as zoning inspector. He has held the latter post for some time, while City Clerk Lois Hammond fulfilled the responsibilities of zoning officer. She will now be relieved of those duties.

Mr. Zook will receive an annual salary of $2,400 plus $300 for car expense. As zoning inspector on a part-time basis, his pay was prorated on the above salary in relation to the amount of time he needed to spend on the job.

For the time being, he will be at the city office regularly on week days from 9:00 a. m. until noon. He can be seen at other times by appointment made by phone.

The council last week passed a preliminary resolution agreeing that the city will fulfill such commitments as demanded of it by the state relative to widening of Highway 69 through Belmond this year.

Plans of the state highway commission call for River avenue to be made into a four-lane thoroughfare 49 feet in width — including curb and gutter at the sides. Right-of-way 71 feet in width will be required to provide adequate state-owned space for snow removal. Some utility poles will have to be moved further from the center of the highway; but most of the state requirements in regard to parking, speed limit and like matters were met by a city resolution in 1963.

The council approved plans and specifications for the new building to be erected for Redder Rexall Drug; also for two buildings being constructed by Followwill Implement company in the 200 block of East Main street. The one occupies the former site of Ted's Shoe store; the other was occupied by the state liquor store and the storage room adjoining it on the west.

In connection with the building that is continuing in town, even with winter set in, it was noted by the council that licenses issued non-resident contractors expired with the end of the year. A license is not required of local contractors, but those from out-of-town doing business here must obtain current licenses.

Bailey named on five committees

Ray Bailey of Clarion, as Wright county's representative for only the second term and a Democrat in a Republican-dominated House, was tabbed as neither chairman nor ranking member of any legislative committees as assignments were made this week.

He nevertheless drew some assignments which were attractive to him and which will provide good outlets for his talents. The committees on which he will serve are: agriculture, commerce, higher education, judiciary and tax revision.

Elwyn Stromer of Garner, Hancock county's new representative, drew the following committees: agriculture, board of control, constitutional amendments and reapportionment, county and township affairs.

MR. AND MRS. TIM GERDES TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Tim Gerdes will observe their 40th wedding anniversary this Sunday. An open house in their honor will be held at St. John Lutheran church between the hours of 2:00 and 4:00 p. m. No invitations are being sent. All the honorees' relatives and friends are cordially invited to greet them during the hours named.

WENZEL TO VIET NAM

Pvt. Gene Wenzel left last Tuesday from Des Moines for Oakland, Calif., and from there will go to Viet Nam. He had spent a 19-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wenzel.

Remedial reading program carries on with grant of Title I funds

Belmond Community School district is scheduled to receive $27,581 as its share of Title I federal funds to be used during the current school year, Elementary Principal Owen Bateson reports. This is 85 per cent of the district's allotment for 1965-66.

This money will be used in connection with the remedial reading program to pay salaries and transportation and to buy equipment, reading laboratories, record books and like materials. This program is an extension of the one which was launched with Title I funds last year.

Teachers in the program thus far this year have been Mrs. Jack Steinberg, Mrs. Viva Parker and Mrs. James Houser.

Mrs. Steinberg teaches elementary groups at Ramsay, Rowan and Goodell. Mrs. Parker teaches children in the 3rd through 6th grades at the main building. Mrs. Houser had high school remedial reading pupils in September and October.

The reading classes for elementary pupils also started in September and will continue through May. If the money remains to do so, this phase of the program will continue through the summer.

In June a six-week program will be conducted for junior and senior high school students who have not participated during the school year.

Elston of Clarion appointed deputy

Vernon Elston, 34, of Clarion was sworn in last Saturday morning as new deputy on the staff of Sheriff Bob Blecker. He fills the vacancy left by the resignation of Harrold Bygness to become Goldfield's town marshal.

A native of Eagle Grove, Elston attended high school there but has lived in Clarion since 1949. He has been a truck driver for 13 years, the past 9½ being employed by Morton Frozen Foods at Webster City.

The new deputy is married and has three children.

During the Clarion Centennial he served as coordinator for the Wright County Gun club as that group collaborated with the sheriff's office on security matters.

Elston says that experience whetted an interest he had had in law enforcement for a number of years. He also worked with the sheriff's department in helping maintain law and order here following the tornado. Otherwise, he has had no formal experience in law enforcement.

Hello, World!

An 8-lb. 6-oz. daughter was born Jan. 6 to Mr. and Mrs. William Mittelstadt. They have named her Lisa Kay.

Sandra Lee is the name chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Merrel Carpenter of Goodell for the 7-lb. ½-oz. baby girl born to them Jan. 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ayers became parents Jan. 10 of a baby girl weighing 8 lbs. 12 oz. She has been named Terri Lynn.

CONCERT MONDAY EVENING

Second attraction of the Wright County Concert association's current winter series will be presented next Monday at 8:00 p. m. at the Clarion High school auditorium. Providing the entertainment will be Ann Gardner, soprano, and John Stewart, tenor, in a concert entitled "Great Moments in Song."

Masons and Stars plan to install officers Saturday

A joint, public installation of their officers for the new year is planned at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening by the Belmond Masonic and Easter Star lodges at the Odd Fellows hall.

Ray Wright will be installed for his second term as Worshipful Master of the Masons. Assuming the offices of Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron of the OES will be Sharleen (Mrs. Lynn) Sorum and Lloyd Cunningham.

Mosiman, Senior Warden

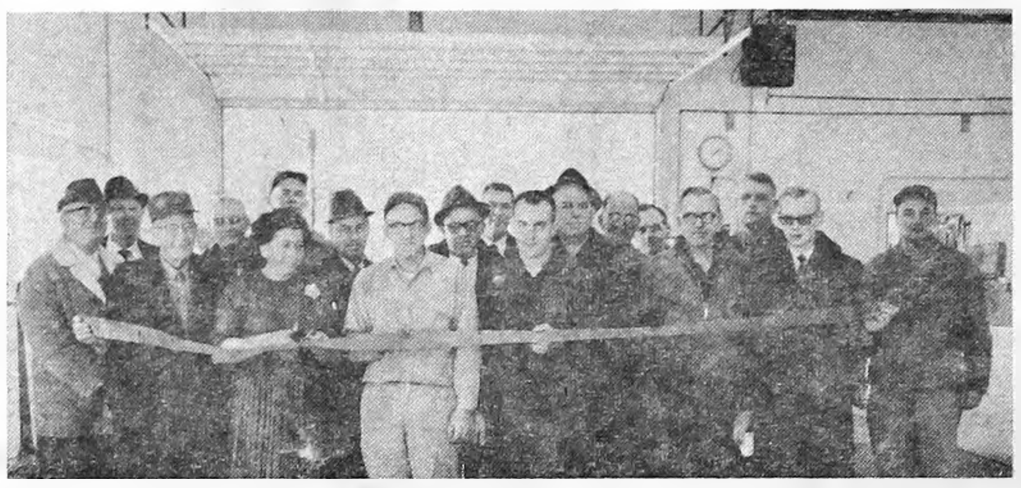
Others taking Masonic posts will be: Eugene Mosiman, Senior Warden; Leroy Green, Junior Warden; Lloyd Lerdal, treasurer; George Jenison, secretary; Gordon Hildebrand, Chaplain.

Also James M. O'Connor, Senior Deacon; Charles Hellman, Junior Deacon; Roland Lerdal, Senior Steward; E. H. "Ted" Zook, Junior Steward; and Loran K. Greenfield, Tyler.

Other Star officers

Those to take Easter Star offices include: Esther Hartwig, Associate Matron; Charles Hellman, Associate Patron; Mary Hildebrand, secretary; Rhea Campbell, treasurer; Juen Anderson, Conductress; Ann Wilson, Associate Conductress.

Also Cora Greenlander, chaplain; Nannette Hildebrand, marshal; Elsie O'Connor, organist; Thelma Cairns, Ada; Marvel Whitten, Ruth; Alice Johnson, Esther; Margaret Jenison, Martha; Venetta Black, Electa; Gertrude Wright, Warder; and Clarence Whitten, Sentinel.



ONE BY ONE, Belmond firms that were prostrated by the tornado are ressurecting themselves and returning to their places in the business life of the community. Latest to join that number is Lloyd's Body Shop, which conducted a symbolic ribbon-cutting Tuesday of last week as Lloyd Cunningham held the grand opening of his all-new establishment. That's Mrs. Cunningham about to wield the scissors as well-wishing Chamber of Commerce members and friends of the couple stand at attention for the photographer.

Thanks to "that" tornado—

Bank deposits here at new high

Would you believe a $2,175,000 increase in the assets of the First State bank of Belmond in just about two months' time?

That rather startling figure came to light in the bank's annual report of condition as of Dec. 31, which appears in this issue.

A year earlier, the total assets had come to $6,651,572 — and that level remained virtually unchanged through the first nine months of 1966. But the end of the year found the assets figure clear up to $8,826,783.

Officials of the bank have to no degree been puzzled by the remarkable increase. It stems, in very large part, from tornado insurance settlements placed on deposit.

Possibly $30,000 to $40,000 may represent tornado donations deposited by various recipient organizations until proper disposition can be decided upon. But approximately $1,437,000 is accounted for by increase in demand deposits and another $668,000 by increase in time deposits — in both cases, expressly deposits of individuals, partnerships and corporations.

Luin Cox, executive vice president, foresees that a very large part of the gain in demand deposits will be wiped out as homeowners and businessmen spend the money on rebuilding and repairs.

On the other hand, a good portion of the time deposits have been placed with the bank for a year's time, indicating no immediate intention of the depositor using them.

Mr. Cox believes that possibly as much as $400,000 of the $668,000 in time deposits belongs to elderly people and some others who do not plan on rebuilding properties that were demolished.

All in all, the Dec. 31, 1966, bank statement will stand as an interesting footnote to the tornado; for, despite very steady growth, the officials did not anticipate reaching the $8,800,000 mark in assets for some years to come.

At the annual meeting of the bank's stockholders on Monday of this week, all officers and directors were re-elected and position assignments remained unchanged.

Besides Mr. Cox, the directors are Roy Henderson, George Heginger, Clarence Hildebrand and Dr. S. P. Leinbach. Mr. Hildebrand continues as president, Mr. Cox as executive vice president and Mr. Henderson as vice president.

George Hinman remains assistant vice president; Ethel Brunes, cashier; and Gen Monson, assistant cashier.

IOOF, Rebekahs plan installation

Police radio goes into operation

A radio base station for police communications, purchase of which was made possible by the $1,338 check presented the city of Belmond from the peace officers' "Bucks for Belmond" solicitation after the tornado, was installed at the city hall on Wednesday of last week.

It was purchased from the C. H. Schulter company of Des Moines at a cost of $543.69, installed. As an adjunct to it, and included in the price, was a mobile radio unit installed in Police Chief Ray Thompson's car. This gives Belmond two mobile units, the patrol car already having one.

Chief Thompson says the station at the city hall is able to communicate with the Wright county sheriff's base station at Clarion and with all mobile law enforcement units. The mobile units also can contact the state police radio station.

Thompson says the new equipment will enable his department to establish much quicker communication with other law enforcement agencies, in case of emergency; and will, of course, enable them to contact the Belmond department.

He says he still plans to have the red light system downtown re-established as soon as he can get an electrician to do the job. It has been out of operation since the tornado.

These lights continue to serve a useful purpose, he explains, because local officers are otherwise out of contact with message sources when they are absent from the police car for door-checks or other reasons.

Need legislative strength—

Beef Producers seek new members

Wright County Beef Producers association has started a membership drive with the twin purposes of strengthening the county group and supporting a recently-announced voluntary beef organization at the state level.

President Leo Woodley of Clarion says a minimum of 300 members are needed in the county this winter to give immediate support to a lobbying effort aimed at removing discriminatory personal property taxes on beef animals.

The newly organized State Beef Producers association will parallel, but not replace, the present tax-supported beef association. Its plans include expanded publicity for beef, quality improvement, disease control work, promotion on a year-a-round basis, and defense of beef against unfavorable legislation, unfair competition, and synthetics now entering the consumer markets.

Beef producer leaders throughout the state are attending a series of 12 district meetings, at which plans are being made to carry out a strong membership campaign, and to make the strongest possible effort to reduce the property tax load during the upcoming legislative session.

Membership dues in Wright county for cattlemen and other interested individuals who want to become members and cooperators in the two associations have been set at only $10. This fee will be split between the county and state organizations and also will provide the member with a free ticket to the annual Wright County Beef Producers banquet.

Although only actual producers of beef may hold office and vote in the beef association, supporting memberships will be offered to commercial interests at a minimum level of $10.

To meet an obvious need for distributing information about beef, the new association has started a regular publication, which will be mailed to all members throughout the state, according to Mr. Woodley.

Loren Schipull of Goldfield is the county membership drive chairman and membership workers are working throughout the county. Checks may be made out to the Wright County Beef Producers association and mailed to the Wright County Extension office in Clarion.

Five from BHS in "honor band"

Five Belmond Community High school instrumentalists have been chosen to play in a concert to be presented Saturday at 8:00 p. m. by an "honor band" drawn from the North Central Iowa area of the Iowa Bandmasters association. The concert will be given at the Clear Lake High school gymnasium, admission being a dollar for adults and 50 cents for students.

Director Maurice Fahrney says each school band director in the 19-county North Central area was allowed to nominate six of his musicians for the "honor band," with at least one to be allowed each school.

Officers of the area association chose those who will perform Saturday night. Picked from Belmond were: Roxanne Slining, alto saxophone; Anita Olson, tenor saxophone; Jean McLaughlin, French horn; Jeanne Anderson, trombone; and Tom Swaroff, cornet.

Director of the concert by the 200-piece band will be Frank Piersol, who is bandmaster of Iowa State university, Ames.

COUNTY REALTORS ELECT FLANAGAN VICE PRESIDENT

Larry Flanagan, local realtor, at the regular monthly meeting of the Wright County Board of Realtors held here last week was elected vice president of the group.

Due to the lack of similar organizations in their own counties, the Wright board has attracted members from a five-county area. Its membership includes real estate men from Franklin, Hancock, Humboldt and Hamilton counties.

New post given to Orvis Fitts

Orvis N. Fitts of Overland Park, Kans., who has been a Standard Oil employee since joining the company as a consumer sales representative at Clarion in 1946, will be going into his 21st year with the firm in a new job.

V. H. Dolen, regional manager for the Standard Oil division of the American Oil company, announces that Mr. Fitts effective Jan. 1 was made employee relations representative on the Kansas City staff. He leaves the post of field training representative.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Corri Fitts, after graduating from Belmond High school Orvis obtained a B. A. degree in economics and history from St. Olaf college at Northfield, Minn.

During his years with Standard Oil he has held a number of marketing assignments, including those of assistant sales manager and field sales manager.

He and his wife Leta have three children. They live at 10272 Rosewood at Overland Park.

HARTWIG TO NEW BASE

Maj. Harold Hartwig of Charlotte, N. C., spent Thursday until Saturday with his mother, Mrs. Esther Hartwig. Major Hartwig, who has completed nearly 20 years in the Air Force, was en route to Fairchild AFB in Washington for three weeks of special training. Seven weeks of additional training at another base will follow before he goes overseas for another tour of duty.

Thespians at BHS will present three one-act plays on Jan. 18th

An evening of entertainment will be presented on Wednesday, Jan. 25, by the Belmond Community High school dramatics department in the form of three one-act plays. Curtain time of the first will be 8:00 o'clock.

Lynn Sorum, who is directing two of the casts, says the program offers good variety and should prove interesting to all attending. The third play will be directed by Glenda Cunningham.

This will be "Judith," by Anne Youngblood. In its cast are: Jane Kinseth as Judith, a blind girl; Ann Reasoner as Isabelle, Judith's mother; Gloria Porter, Barbara Burt, Linda Pals and Delores Hauge.

Because her daughter is blind, Isabelle considers the girl has no business getting married; but this opinion is altered when Judith proves to be the most efficient person in the family when an emergency arises.

"The Man in the Bowler Hat" is a farce-melodrama written by A. A. Milne. "The Man" is played by Greg Kessler. The hero is portrayed Neil Kalkwarf, the heroine by Jane Modderman and the "Chief Villain" is Ed Dana. Other roles are taken by Wayne Bell, Luanne Paule and Jim Jacobmeyer.

The third playlet, which takes only 12 minutes to perform, is "The Sandbox," by the noted British dramatist, Edward Albee. It is distinctly offbeat and won critical praise in an off-Broadway production.

"Grandma," around whom the plot is built, is played by Susan Thompson. Dudley Thompson is "The Young Man," Margaret Hruska is "Mommy" and Larry Sorenson, "Daddy". Kathy Slining, as a clarinetist, also has a part in the proceedings.

3 BHS alumni on Deans' List

Three Belmond Community High school alumni were given recognition for academic excellence by inclusion on the Deans' List at Iowa State university, Ames, for the fall quarter. They were Harold McAlpine, enrolled in forestry, and Jerry Vestweber, science, both of Rowan; and Don Hinman, statistics.

ISU's Deans' List is one of the more difficult ones to gain mention on, as a grade-point average of 3.5 or better is required — 3.0 representing a B grade.

Other Wright countians earning scholastic recognition were: Jeanne Swanson, food and nutrition, Galt; and Tim Blumer, electronics technology, Eagle Grove.

Kanawha had two on the Dean's List — Richard Prelip, electrical engineering; and Ronald Smith, industrial administration.

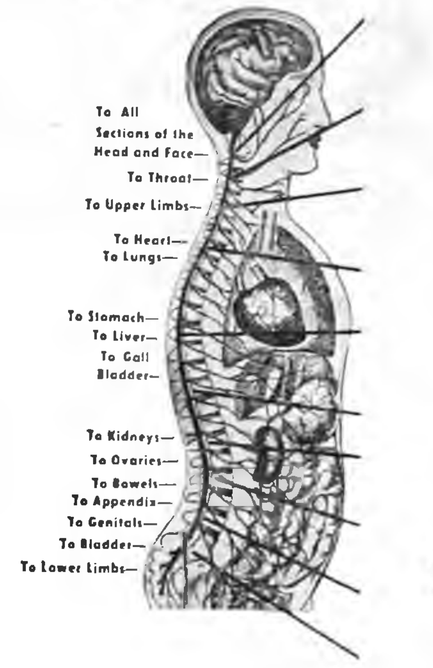
SPINAL NERVE PRESSURE CAUSES MANY DISEASES

The diseases mentioned on this chart are only a few caused by vertebrae "pinching" nerves as they enter or leave the spinal column, transmitting vital nerve energy from the brain to the organs of the body.



1. Slight "pinching" of nerves at this point will cause so-called headaches, eye diseases, deafness, epilepsy, insomnia, wry or stiff neck, facial paralysis, dizziness, polio, arthritis, abnormal blood pressure, anemia, colds, hay fever, sinus trouble, nervousness, etc.

2. A slight nerve difficulty in this part of the spine is the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in the shoulders and arms, goitre, nervous prostration, la grippe, nose bleed, dis-order of gums, catarrh, etc.

3. The arrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein "pinched" nerves will cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism and neuritis of the arms and shoulders, etc.

4. A blocked nerve at this point causes so-called heart disease, pneumonia, tuberculosis, asthma, difficult breathing, other lung troubles, etc.

5. Stomach and liver trouble, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy and a score of other troubles, so-called, are caused by pressure in this part of the spine, so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained Chiropractor.

6. Here we find the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccoughs, diabetes, etc.

7. Bright's disease, floating kidney, skin disease, boils, eruptions and other diseases, so-called, are caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal openings at this point.

8. Regulations of such troubles as so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lumbago, constipation, etc., Chiropractic adjustments at this point.

9. Why have so-called kidney stones, rectal troubles, female troubles, many lower abdominal pains, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause?

10. A slight slippage of both innominate bones, located here, will likewise produce so-called sciatica together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

STUDY THIS CHART CAREFULLY

See how the nerves go through the spinal openings? Nerve pressure at one or more of these points may be the EXACT CAUSE OF YOUR PARTICULAR CONDITION!

Take time to re-study this famous "Health Chart of Chiropractic," reproduced at the left, and you will see how simple it is to understand what an important part YOUR SPINE can play in the maintenance of your good "natural" health. Misaligned spinal bones can cause disease in ALL PARTS OF THE BODY. Notice how the nerves go to every organ, tissue and cell of your body — arms, legs, abdomen, head, etc. So provide your body with the fullest protection against disease with AT LEAST ONE ADJUSTMENT EACH MONTH.

Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace. — Ps. 37:37

"Iowa Stubbornness" makes that Heart Fund "Go"

Meredith Willson in "Music Man" had a number entitled "Iowa Stubborn," which dwelt on the merits of knowing when to set your heels for a good purpose. It appealed to our own streak of stubborness. Really, there's not a thing wrong with a bit of judicious bullheadedness applied at the right time, in the right place.

For some reason, we were brought to this line of thinking by a recent announcement of Jack Schroeder, erstwhile legislative leader from Bettendorf. He's chairman of the Iowa Heart association's up-coming fund drive. He led last year's record-breaker, too.

Proceeds reached the all-time high of $442,960 last year; and that stubborn Schroeder guy wasn't at ALL satisfied. Pleased? Yes. But satisfied? No! Says he is shooting at $500,000 for '67.

This sort of thinking, the Heart association both understands and appreciates. It's something of a stubborn outfit, itself. Those Heart folks regard that so long as heart and circulatory ailments are killing off more Iowans (make it "Americans," and you're still right) than any other causes, it's no time to ease up on the fight to reduce radically the number of deaths.

Incidentally, nearly ninety-two per cent of the entire annual income of the American Heart association is spent on furthering its programs of research and education — which impresses us as cutting administrative cost right down to a nub.

It has made very measurable progress helping people live longer, healthier lives. But the path still stretches far ahead; and THAT is what prompts the Heart association to take an attitude that srikes some critics as "stubborn".

Because the association wants each family and each individual to place their own measure on the generosity they choose to show in support of this important cause, it has remained independent in its fund-raising. This in no wise implies disapproval of united fund giving.

But the Heart people simply consider that they have too far to go, and too little time to get there, to restrict their annual investment in heart research and education to far less than the public has demonstrated its willingness to contribute. And in their case, lives lost are literally the price of delay. Yes, you could probably say they are stubborn on this point.

It's not just contrariness or arbitrary reluctance to "go along". We view them as "Iowa stubborn" — in the best sense of the term. Stubborn to mighty good purpose.

The independent folks living in Wright county very evidently take a sympathetic attitude toward the Heart association's stand. For two years in a row they've outstripped all the rest of the state in per capita giving to the Heart Fund. And if that indicates that WE are stubborn too — well, we can't help but be just a little proud of it.

"Omsbundsman" would held public tackle bureaucrats

State Senator Hugh Clarke is, understandably, receiving a lot of mail these days. A large bulk of it is prompted by his new status as an Iowa legislator and is from individuals or — more often — organizations endeavoring to influence his stand regarding bills that are expected to gain attention of the General Assembly.

Another file contains correspondence he has received while representing the Belmond Industrial Development corporation relative to the desired change in the location of the local post office.

Two letters that Mr. Clarke happened to show your writer had such a curious inter-relationship that we asked the Senator's permission to comment on it.

One of the letters was from John F. Dee, director of the post office department's regional office at St. Louis, Mo., having the following to say regarding the late, unlamented post office site:

"During the remodeling and during our occupancy of the Henser building not ONE (the emphasis is Mr. Dee's) complaint from the community was registered as to the inadequacy of the building because of: lack of parking, poor location, or traffic hazards."

This defense of the highway location hardly calls for any further comment here. No one knew better than Postmaster Bill Walrod and members of his staff — who, incidentally, merited none of the blame — that dissatisfaction over the site DID exist and that it certainly did not diminish during the 14 months of occupancy.

The other letter, which we felt so oddly complemented Mr. Dee's, was from one of Senator Clarke's constituents in Hamilton county. It expressed the hope that the legislature might find opportunity to devote thought to the creation of an official intermediary to represent ordinary citizens who believe they have suffered harm at the hands of the government.

The Swedish originated a term for such a public representative; he's an "omsbundsman". In Sweden, he is a governmental employee whose job it is to represent the public in respect to dealings between the citizen and the bureaucrats.

We nieces and nephews of Uncle Sam have come to stand in awe of the bureaucracy that has been created by our federal government. And while our temerity may not be so great in undertaking to dispute a point with state agencies, the same situation exists there to a lesser degree.

It explains, we suspect, why the growing chorus of complaints over the highway location of the post office never reached the ears of Mr. Dee 'way down yonder in St. Louis. Practically anyone who has had occasion to tangle with bureaucrats winds up with a "What's the use?" attitude. And the word gets around.

We agree with the gentleman from Hamilton county that there is a very real place for the "omsbundsman" in our present society. It would be helpful at the state level of government. And we would judge it a matter of increasing necessity at the federal level.

Belmond soldier evokes editorial

(During a furlough last summer, SP4 Marlo Luick, son of the Albert Luicks, visited in the Oshkosh home of an Army buddy, Phil Lyman. On a Christmas card sent to Lyman's family, Marlo wrote of his feelings while serving at Udorn, Thailand. A transcript of the card's message was sent to the Oshkosh daily newspaper and inspired the editorial that follows.

(Addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Lyman and their daughter Judy, Marlo's card read: "It won't be much like Christmas around here, but deep down inside Phil and I will be happy that we are here. We know that each of our small efforts, and seemingly big sacrifices here will, mixed with all the other small efforts, insure many more happy holiday seasons in the future for you, us, and free people all over the world. We are proud to be serving our country and securing our future and the future of Americans.")

Your attention is called to a letter in the People's Forum today in which a young serviceman from Iowa with the United States Army stationed in Thailand writes of his pride in that his small effort added to that of others similarly engaged will "insure many more happy holiday seasons."

He concludes with "We are proud to be serving our country."

In contrast, there are news stories about other American young men who are fleeing to Canada as draft dodgers. Some of them are settling in the Kitchener-Waterloo twin cities area of Ontario.

THE NEWSPAPER OF THAT area, the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, carried a first page column by one of its writers, Sandy Baird, addressed to such draft dodgers eyeing the area as a haven. He wrote:

"A quarter century or so ago, United States youths were streaming over the border in droves. So much so, that one of our (Canadian) services was jocularly known as the royal Texas air force.

"The brave and eager volunteers were more than welcome. But for a lot of them, their bravery and eagerness brought them death in a Canadian uniform.

"THE WORLD HAS SPUN MANY a time since then, and peace sometimes seems just as remote. And now we are told we may have a new influx of United States youths — not brave and eager volunteers, but you Niagara river wetbacks fleeing the call of your country.

"And despite what our laws may say, in the eyes of most Canadians you are anything but welcome.

"There's no way, just no way, you'll ever convince a lot of us that you're more intent on saving the world than you are on saving your own skins, or convince us that you haven't donned the guise of idealism to escape the chance of a slug in the guts.

"THAT'S YOUR WORRY, OF course, because you'll have to live with the knowledge that while your countrymen were dying you were up here in Canada spouting homilies.

"Canada's worry is your impact on our students. Some of them — in the misguided post-adolescent fervor that is forever in search of a cause — have already cast you as martyrs. Heroes be damned — you're cowards.

"YES, CANADA NEEDS NEWcomers, but not your kind.

"If you quit on your own country, you'll quit on us, too, when it comes to the crunch. So do us a favor, and either stay home or go somewhere else.

"Because, the men who are dying in Vietnam are better men than you are. Everyone of them is a better man than you are."

Well said, Sandy Baird. — Oshkosh (Wis.) Daily Northwestern

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by
IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION

LEGISLATURE IN SESSION—

The legislature is in its first week, with indications that naming of committees will get it off to a faster start than usual.

Its problems are knotty ones but not unfamiliar to legislative oldtimers — how to provide more service but with lower taxes.

With a Democratic majority in the Senate and a Republican majority in the House, the partisans will have an interesting time trying to establish political credit. Each bill that becomes a law must pass both houses, hence each party may assume half the credit, or accept half the responsibility, for those proposals which are enacted into law.

On the other hand, there will doubtless be many bills which pass one house but not the other. These may provide the political background for the election of 1968, which suddenly seems not far away.

THE CAT'S GONE to Des Moines to sit in on the legislative sessions, so this space will be occupied by the Capitol News Letter while the 62nd General Assembly is convened. If he gets something on his mind, though, we'll probably be hearing from him.

GOOD LEADERSHIP—

Many previous legislatures have had good presiding officers, but many political observers think the 1967 Assembly will be unusually fortunate.

Lt. Gov. Robert Fulton, Waterloo Democrat, established a high reputation as a presiding officer two years ago Speaker Maurice Baringer, Oelwein Republican, has earned an equally high reputation as a level-headed and articulate member of the House.

Neither is considered a "diehard" partisan. Neither is a "professional" politician. Both are highly respected by members of the opposite party.

It's entirely possible they'll be able to persuade a Republican House and a Democratic Senate to work together in harness, perhaps even in harmony!

CONSERVATION CHANGES—

The governor's committee on conservation of outdoor resources has sent a letter to each legislator suggesting it is time for a major new conservation program. Lawrence Ladin, Des Moines, chairman of the committee, said the group is suggesting legislation which would allow the state to buy or condemn certain landowner rights in order to prevent future subdivision, billboard or commercial development of top recreation areas.

"Conservation easements will provide a new and valuable tool for preserving such resources, yet keep the land on the tax rolls and allow the former ownership occupation and land use to continue," Ladin explained.

The committee also endorsed the proposed $100 million, 10-year conservation program, including an appropriation of $14 million for the next biennium.

LIQUOR DECISION—

A Polk county district court judge has upheld the state's "reverse local option" provision of the Iowa liquor law. Judge Dale Missildine held that the sale of liquor-by-the-drink in Sioux county was legally halted last September — three years after the county voted to go "dry."

Iowa's liquor law provides that all areas of the state are "wet" unless residents of a county vote to go dry. Licenses in effect at the time of an election are good for three years. The three-year moratorium was designed to protect licensees from economic losses.

A bill is expected in the 1967 legislature to discontinue local option elections on sale of liquor by the drink.

CONTEST FOR OFFICE—

A Warren county Republican is challenging the election of a Democrat from the county as state representative. The challenger is George Fischer, Norwalk, who was nosed out — in the unofficial returns — by 21 votes.

Fischer plans to contest the election of James Middleswart. The matter apparently will be decided by a special elections committee made up of state representatives from both parties appointed by Speaker of the House Maurice Baringer.

CHOLERA ERADICATION—

The Iowa hog cholera eradication committee has recommended that Iowa move into the third or eradication phase of the hog cholera fight. The 1965 legislature authorized the move into the eradication phase, but did not appropriate money for indemnities. The committee feels that indemnities are an essential parts of the eradication phase of the program.

The committee has decided to ask this legislature for an annual appropriation of $500,000 for indemnities for infected hogs condemned under the program. The state appropriation would be matched by available federal funds.

Annual summary short 3 months—

'66 weather was dry; and—Oh, yeah! It blew!

This is the time of year that The Independent has annually published a "weather round-up," relating the weather highlights of the previous year along with month-by-month developments.

Highlights — or THE "highlight," at least — is no problem for 1966. It occurred in the form of you-know-what on Oct. 14th and made anything else weatherwise that happened last year pale to insignificance.

It also played hob with our weather records, for at approximately 2:55 p. m. on the day in question all the weather equipment at Armour Agricultural Chemical company took off for parts unknown. Along with the weather station files.

2½ months of nothin'

We've done the best we can to come up with the annual weather resume up to mid-October, using what data were recorded in The Independent. Of course, we had nothing to go on for the last 2½ months of the year — or, to be more precise. from Oct. 11 on.

Manager Harold Rose informs us that claims to replace the weather station equipment are being filed with Armour's insurors, and that when a settlement is arrived at the station will be re-established. We suspect our readers eagerly await the day.

Since The Independent HAS touched on the tornado and its effects, we won't go into that — other than to state that the anemometer went WITH the wind, instead of measuring its intensity; and that neither the barometer or rain guage were available for reading after the ruckus was over.

Rain in short supply

Otherwise, 1966 weather was probably most significant for the small amount of rainfall. Up to T-Day, precipitation had totalled only 16.49 inches — which is far less than enough to provide a satisfactory amount of subsoil moisture for the best sort of crop outlook in 1967.

The drencher that accompanied the tornado possibly unloaded another inch or so; but during the remainder of the year, there was hardly any precipitation worth notice until the snowfall of Dec. 28th. This was fine for the purpose of rebuilding homes and businesses, but contributed further to stamping 1966 as a relative "drought year".

The entire rainfall for 10-plus months was barely an inch more than the 15.46 inches that the Belmond area got in the 33-day period of Aug. 29 through Sept. 30 in 1965. Total precipitation for '65 was 39.35 inches. Closer to normal was the 27.19 inches in 1964.

Files cover just 284 days

A comparison between last year and the year before as to monthly rainfall ('65 shown in parentheses) runs as follows: January .90 (.49); February .43 (1.18); March 2.12 (4.40); April .89 (2.76); May 2.51 (4.93); June 3.42 (2.32).

July 3.06 (2.96); August 2.68 (4.19); September .38 (12.14). In '65, precipitation was .48 in October, .98 in November and 1.52 in December. Prior to the tornado, Belmond had gotten only .12 inch of rain in October. The deluge with the storm probably measured the better part of an inch or possibly more; but November and December precipitation without question was well under that of the same months the year before.

Out of the 284 days for which the newspaper files provide data, there was a measurable amount of rain on only 36 and traces of precipitation on 12 others.

Low of -26 recorded

In January and February, there were 25 days when the mercury dipped below zero. The severest spell stretched over a period of 16 days, beginning Jan. 17. The bottom figure of -26 was reached on Jan. 29, being the lowest reading in Belmond since the Armour station went into use in April of 1963 and five under the 1965 low.

The past year was the fourth in a row that saw the 100 mark reached at no time during the summer. There were 27 days when 90 or higher was recorded — the top figure being 99 on July 10. There were just 10 days when 90-or-more was reached in '65. In 1964, 12 days hit or surpassed 90 degrees; but in 1963 there were 23 days in the nineties.

Close to ideal summer weather was enjoyed, by and large, if one of the tests is whether a blanket or sheet for cover is needed at night. On only 10 nights did the mercury stay up over the 72-degree mark.

Nights cold in May

Perhaps the farthest from normal of all the statistics available for '66 was the average low reached during the month of May. While the average high was a tolerable 67.6, unseasonable chill descended regularly with nightfall to bring the average low figure to 39.0.

Average highs and average lows for the nine months recorded were as follows (with corresponding figures for 1965 in parentheses): January 17.0 and -1.6 (22.7 and 2.4); February 28.6 and 10.7 (28.3 and 8.5); March 48.2 and 27.6 (27.6 and 17.0); April 55.6 and 25.8 (53.4 and 38.8)

May 67.6 and 39.0 (80.0 and 60.8); June 82.4 and 62.4 (79.7 and 64.0); July 89.7 and 71.2 (84.0 and 65.3); August 84.2 and 57.0 (82.5 and 58.0); September 79.0 and 46.3 (69.0 and 47.7).

Highs and lows noted

High and low marks for the various months, with 1965 comparisons, are: January 36 and -26 (43 and -19); February 51 and -7 (49 and -21); March 74 and 5 (40 and -2); April 72 and 26 (76 and 29); May 83 and 25 (88 and 53).

June 94 and 43 — with the hottest day following the coldest night (84 and 56); July 99 and 65 (96 and 50); August 86 and 33 (97 and 42); September 86 and 33 (83 and 31).

Mean temperatures for the nine months, with comparisons with the previous year, were: January 7.7 (12.5); February 19.7 (18.4); March 37.9 (22.3); April 45.7 (46.1); May 53.3 (70.4); June 72.4 (71.8); July 80.4 (74.6); August 70.6 (70.2); September 62.9 (58.3).

Each years seems to make its own individual mark, weatherwise — with either too much rain, or not enough; a long cold spell, or a siege of hot weather. As mentioned, the tornado was "it" for 1966 — bringing a general agreement that the weatherman should stick to more standard procedures in the future.

Can't hold that Engstler!—

Bronco cagers down Cards, 87-73

Belmond's Bronco basketeers demonstrated here Friday night that one good man cannot handle a well-balanced team — and at the same time gained revenge for the upset Garner dealt them (73-65) on Dec. 13. Bill Engstler added 38 points to the 42 he'd piled up against Belmond the first time; but the final score favored the Broncos, 87 to 73.

Every one of the victors' starters wound up in double figures, while Engstler got next to no support from any of his team mates in the second half. The sharp-shooting Cardinal was held to a dozen points before the intermission but poured in 26 more in the final two quarters.

During the opening period, there were indications that a ball game might be brewing as Garner led on several occasions and tied the count on several others. At the horn, the Broncos were nursing a slim 22-20 advantage. The Cardinals clung on the Broncos' heels until a Belmond flurry broke away from a 32-31 situation and produced 16 points while Garner was netting two.

That made it 48-33 at halftime and when play resumed Belmond charged to its widest margin at 55-35. Slow-down tactics by the Broncos late in the third quarter and the early part of the fourth didn't work out well, and from a 66-49 tally entering the final stanza the Cards scored nine points to Belmond's three.

With the margin sliced to 10 points, 68-58, the Broncos got back to work and built up a 19-point pad — 85-66 — before Coach Ted Besch ran in the subs.

Gail Stark assisted Engstler with nine points in the first half and Al Berge with six, but they wound up with 11 and 10 respectively as Bill took over the show after intermission.

In contrast, Gary Meyers — who actually did little shooting in accumulating his points — and Terry Nelson each potted 18 points and Bob Rise was close behind with 17. Doug Thompsen played good, aggressive ball in adding 14 and Tim Roberts came through with 12. Four points by Dave Dirks and a couple each by Rich Stadtlander and Joel Gabrielson completed the Belmond total.

For Garner, Rick Kaduce chipped in with six, Greg Schoneman and Gary Lemke three each and Chuck Roe two (though it just might have been a Gabrielson rebound attempt htat produced Roe's pair).

The freshman-sophomore game started out in somewhat the same fashion as the varsity contest, with the Junior Broncs having trouble drawing away. In the last half, though, they had things pretty much their own way and wound up with a 49-35 victory. Rick Hawley and Greg Steenblock paced the win with 15 and 11 points.

Osage Imps here Friday; and then, Broncs to Newman

Coach Ted Besch's Bronco basketeers have a couple of engagements on schedule for the next five days, playing host to Osage this Friday night and traveling to Newman High at Mason City next Tuesday.

This year's Green Devil quintet has been having more or less typical luck and appears doomed to occupy a position in the lower half of the North Iowa conference standings. But anything can happen on any given night in basketball — and almost did a couple of years ago when a highly favored Belmond team met the Imps on the local floor.

On that occasion, the Broncos had to fight for their lives before downing the visitors 61-59, which proves a point that Coach Besch is probably keeping in mind (at Osage, Belmond won 81-43!).

There will be no taking the Newman Knights for granted. They are coached by former BHS mentor Jim Crimmings. A rather small outfit, they have not been enjoying the best of success this season; but no Crimmings-coached team can be counted on to "lie down," so the Broncos have every reason to expect they'll have a scrap on their hands.

Britt wrestlers here Wednesday

Next Wednesday night Coach Don Jones' wrestlers will take on Britt in a meet at the BHS gym which will have added interest due to the two teams' 4th-place tie in the recent Belmond Invitational tournament.

Each, on that occasion, posted 43 points — which proves not much of anything, where the dual meet is concerned. Ordinarily the Bronco grapplers would be conceded very small chance of handling the Eagles. But this has been a "down year" for Britt in wrestling and top performances by all members of the home team could make it an interesting affair.

A year ago the Eagles had a "typical Britt team" and squashed the Broncos 28 to12. Most of the visitors' personnel on this occasion will be comprised of members of last year's Eagle reserves who walloped the Belmond second-stringers 43 to 2.

Action in the reserve meet will start at 6:30 p. m., with the varsity teams taking over about 7:45 o'clock.

Jr. high quintets split with Britt

Coach Jack Steinberg took his junior high basketball teams to Britt Friday afternoon and they split a double-header with the host 7th and 8th grade teams.

Belmond's 8th-graders had an easy time chalking up a 39-17 victory, leading 35-3 before Steinberg swept the bench. Fred Erdman tossed in 14 points, Dave McLaughlin and Dave Snyder eight each.

The 7th-graders found it tougher going against an adversary paced by an agile lad reaching better than six feet in height, losing 24-16. It was the Britt outfit's fourth game, and Belmond's opener. Nick Classick collected six points and Kenny Robbins five for the losers.

The Colts are now idle until going to Garner on Friday of next week.

Britt wrestlers overcome Colts

Belmond's junior high wrestlers found the pickin's slim against Britt here Tuesday of last week. Only two of the 7th grade grapplers and four from the 8th were able to win their matches.

Mike Anderson, with a 55-second fall over Ricky Mattoon at 102 lbs. and Steve Burt (118) with an 11-2 decision over Leerar got team points for the 7th-grade Colts as they lost 36 to 8.

On the losing end were Jim Krugler, Mark Cullinan, John Waltzing, Russell Barkema, Fred Steenhard, Jerry Suntken, Verlynn Andrews and Mike Griffin.

Eighth-grade victors were Bob Berns (102), 4-3 over Alan Brown; David Nelson (118), 9-0 over David Huling; Duane Anderson (125), by pin over Paul Larson in 2:40; and Doug Thompson (150), 10-2 over Steve Weiland.

Also on the 8th-grade team were Bill Quigley, Steve Riedel, Jon Crawford, Jim Cullinan, Paul Rogalla, David Swaroff, Virgil Miller, Duncan Campbell and Jim Kennedy.

VOL. 48 No. 17 | OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, JAN. 19, 1967 | OFFICIAL CITY PAPER | 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

There is being circulated around town this week a petition directed to Carroll and Marguerite Hensel (now residing in Bloomsburg, Pa.) and the U. S. Post Office Department, imploring that the Belmond P. O. be rebuilt in a more satisfactory location. The petition points out that the suggested location — immediately south of the city park — would have some marked advantages over the pre-tornado site on Highway 69.

Mentioned are the facts that a dangerous traffic hazard would be eliminated, adequate off-street parking could be provided, the building would be accessible by sidewalk for pedestrian patrons, and that the central location would better accommodate more people.

Through the endeavor of the Belmond Industrial Development corporation, a swap of property has been arranged for the Hensels' benefit — plus what the BIDC regards as a generous cash settlement — to make possible building of the P. O. on the proposed site. The Hensels view the cash offer in a different light, however; and there lies the rub. It's hoped that the petition may help wield influence toward achieving an agreement.

When John Van Haaften held his closing our farm sale Wednesday of last week, he wasn't at all sure that he would find purchasers for his peacocks. Hopefully, he sounded a call to all "Peacock Lovers" in his sale advertisement, noting that he would have seven peacock roosters among his offerings.

(We wouldn't want to argue with a man who should know more about it than we do, but we thought that a rooster peafowl was a peacock and that the female of the species is a peahen. It was kinda like offering some male bulls for sale . . . seemed to us.)

Anyway, when it came time for Auctioneers Leonard Wiemann and Jerry Staley to knock down the peacocks, the "Peacock Lovers" appeared truly to be out in force. Bidding for them was spirited — and to Mr. Van Haaften's relief they brought an average of $25 apiece; which apparently is a good price for peacocks.

Wednesday morning of last week, teachers and pupils at what is now called Main building (but we can't get out of the habit of calling it the junior high) were a bit miffed when the bells rang for a fire drill. Outside they traipsed, coatless and hatless — and it was cold out there.

Since Janitor Ernie Stadtlander customarily is responsible for ringing such alarms, it was taken for granted that he had done so this time. He was accused of having a working arrangement with Steele Memorial clinic to send 'em patients.

Earnie grinningly confessed that he was to get a commission on all sufferers from colds that he could guide to the doctors' offices — which added to the general perplexity. Then it was discovered that some workmen in the junior high gym had accidentally tripped the alarm!

Bobby Misner earned his second varsity letter in football at Drake university this past fall — which should come as a surprise to no one who follows the gridiron sport. Sterling Laaveg was less fortunate at the University of Iowa. Like Bob, a sophomore, but shooting at his first varsity letter with the Hawkeyes, Sterl suffered a leg injury early in the season that robbed him of a virtually certain chance to win his "I".

Brother Paul Laaveg, also at U-of-I, and Craig Boller at Iowa State university, both earned freshman numerals and are regarded on their respective campuses as excellent varsity prospects for next season.

Neal Waddington to all appearances is slated to succeed Tim Van Galder as field general of the Cyclones at ISU next fall. Some Garner folks are boasting that "Waddington will make Tom Busch and All-American in '67." Don't know about that, but these two former high school rivals should make quite a passing combination for Coach Clay Stapleton, sure 'nuff.

This particular week in January could earn a very mean reputation, unless it cuts out the funny business. In the "average" year — if there is such a thing — we seem to go sailing along with fairly tolerable winter weather until the ides of January have just passed . . . and then, powee!

Typically, the mercury hereabouts on Tuesday night plummeted to 20 degrees below zero or so (who knows, for sure, with our weather station gone?). In 1966, Jan. 17th saw the thermometer drop to -14; and Jan. 16 in '65 produced a -18 reading.

Now this is too much of a much; or perhaps we should better say, not enough of enough. Even so, it COULD be worse. In gathering our way back when items for this week, we noted that the third Tuesday in January 60 years ago produced a minus-37 degrees! Wonder if they checked that thermometer?

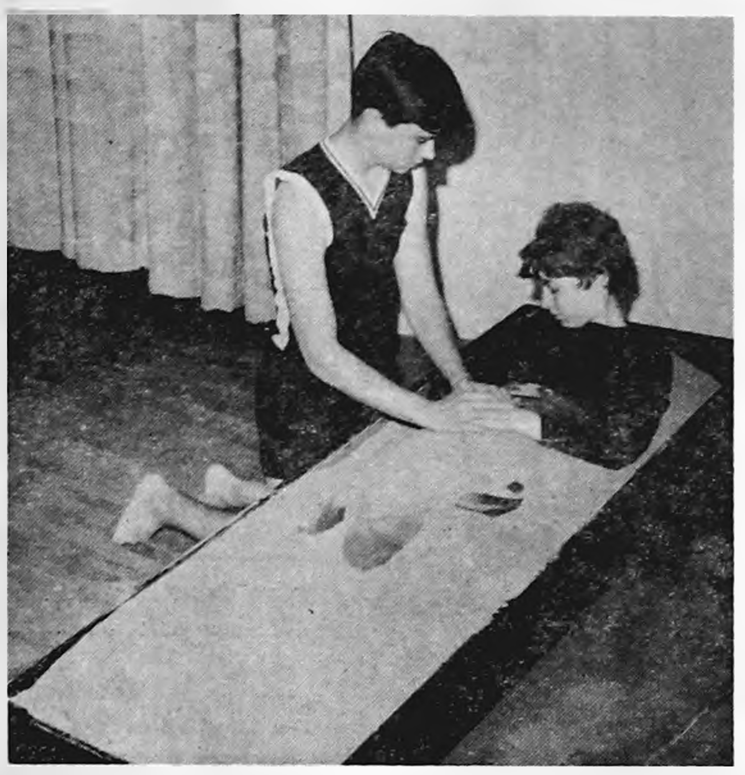
Weather too bad to hold meetings

Monday night's blizzard conditions caused postponement of several meetings planned for that evening.

Regular meeting of the city council that was to have been held was delayed until Wednesday night. A meeting of the zoning and planning commission also was postponed until later

Bill McLaughlin of the Iowa Development Commission staff was coming from Des Moines to show members of the council, planning committee and New Belmond Action committee some films but could not make the trip.

His visit will be re-scheduled. The films he is to show depict business district re-development projects, along the line planned here, that have been carried out in other communities.



"SOMETHING DIFFERENT" is what Director Lynn Sorum promises in the unusual playlet, "The Sandbox," which is one of three one-act plays his BHS thespians will present to the public next Wednesday evening at Luick Memorial Auditorium. He directed a student cast in this Edward Albee excursion into fantasy when he was teaching at Meservey-Thornton High school and it won a superior rating in state competition. Shown above in a scene from the Albee play are Dudley Thompson as "The Young Man" and Susan Thompson as "Grandma," expiring in the sandbox. Also on the program starting at 8:00 o'clock are "Judith," a heart-warming story of a blind girl, by Anne Youngblood; and "The Man in the Bowler Hat," a farce-melodrama by A. A. Milne — whom youngsters will know as the creater of "Pooh," the lovable bear.

Seed corn headquarters will stay here—

Texas-based industrial firm purchases Tomco

Anderson, Clayton & Co. of Houston, Tex., a worldwide food manufacturing, vegetable oilseed processing and coffee and cotton merchandising organization, announced today that it has signed an agreement to purchase the common stock of Tomco Genetic Giant, Inc.

Making the announcement jointly were T. J. Barlow, president of the diversified Texas-based business organization, and R. B. Thompson, president of Tomco. Both firms end their fiscal mid year quarter on Jan. 31 and Mr. Barlow and Mr. Thompson expect all details of the transaction to be completed by that date.

Mr. Thompson will be general manager of Tomco for Anderson, Clayton, says Mr. Barlow, and will also manage the firm's Paymaster sorghum and cottonseed operation in Texas and Kansas. Anderson, Clayton has sorghum plants at Plainview, Tex., and Leoti, Kans.

The above units, including Tomco, will be a part of Anderson, Clayton's Agricultural Products division, headquartered in Abilene, Tex., and directed by Ben R. Barbee, division president.

There will be some expansion of the Tomco accounting department here, as the Belmond facility will be headquarters for all of Anderson, Clayton's seed plant accounting operations.

Dr. Harold D. Loden, currently manager of Paymaster Seeds, will be director of seed research for the Agricultural Products division. Charles Wilmarth, who has been Tomco's director of corn research, will continue to oversee that phase of the division's research program.

Tomco, in the course of a series of mergers in recent years, has expanded its production and marketing of seed corn in Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska and presently has sales organizations in 24 states. Since its most recent merger, with Steckley Genetic Giant in 1964, it has also produced grain and forage sorghum and engaged in merchandising alfalfa seeds.

Mr. Thompson says that the local staff of Tomco will continue to be employed under the new ownership. He expresses his personal pleasure over the imminent association with Anderson, Clayton, saying, "Its officers are the same sort of people as in the Tomco organization and it has won a reputation as an employee-minded enterprise."

President of Anderson, Clayton since last November has been 44-year-old T. J. Barlow, who joined the company as a trainee in 1946. It had assets of $328,121,000 as of July 31, 1966, and had net income for the fiscal year ending with that date of $14,589,000, on gross sales of $543,416,000.

Diverting from what was once its most important activity, cotton merchandising, Anderson, Clayton in recent years has redirected its resources into an expanding business of processing and distributing agricultural-based products and services throughout the western hemisphere.

Today it describes its functions primarily as: consumer food processors and distributors; vegetable oilseed crushers and cotton ginners; producers of formula feeds and hybrid planting seeds; general merchandise warehousers; full coverage life, fire and casualty insurers; machinery manufacturers; extensive private crop financiers; worldwide cotton merchandisers; green coffee exporters from Latin America; key traders in cocoa.

Ag' short course set for February; farmers invited

Bob Bernhardt, county extension director, announces the dates Feb. 7-14-21 have been set for a three-day short course to deal with agronomy.

Phases of crop production concerned with row spacing, plant populations, adapted varieties, fertilizing trends, stress of weather and how a plant grows will be covered by the agronomy specialists.

Jim Hughes, area extension economist, and Bob Bernhardt, county extension director, at the third meeting will discuss management. How a good cropping system fits in with the total farming system will be emphasized.

Dr. J. A. Phillips and Dr. Regis Voss will open the agronomy school on Feb. 7 with discussions on soils, including characteristics, management and soil fertility.

Second-day speakers will be Iowa State university agronomy specialists Dr. E. P. Duncan and Dr. Harvey Thompson. How weather affects crop production and crop production practices will be discussed by these two men.

Farmers, fertilizer dealers and seed corn dealers are all invited to attend the short course. There will be a $2.50 registration fee.

All interested in attending are asked to register at the extension office in Clarion. The meetings will be held at the First National bank.

Clarion taxes take big drop—

Millage for Belmond goes up 3.26

Belmond taxpayers will be having a little bigger bite put on them this year in property taxes. The table of Wright county tax levies for 1966, collectible this year, which appears in this issue of The Independent shows the levy on propertyowners in the Belmond corporation to be up 3.263 mills over last year, putting the total at 82.863 mills.

Eagle Grove is experiencing a rise in taxes, also, but amounting to only 604. The total there is 86.535.

Clarion taxpayers have a happier situation, due to their school reorganization affecting their levy for the first time this year. Whereas their school tax was 42.512 last year the millage to be paid this year is only 27.490. As a result, the total Clarion levy is 58.761 — down 13.204 mills from the 71.965 of a year ago.

The state and county levies applicable to all corporation property is down from 8.14 to 7.718 mills; but part of this gain is erased by an increase in the county school board levy from .404 to .498. New to all the taxing districts in Wright county this year is a levy for area community college support. In the Mason City area, the levy is .731 and in the Fort Dodge area is .692.

The county and state levy on rural Wright county property went down slightly, from 15.049 to 14.371. This was despite the new levy of a quarter-mill on rural property for library support.

Belmond Community School district's levy is slightly reduced, being 40.514 for this year compared to 41.9 last year. The city levy was up, though, from 29.556 to 33.402. Modest tax increases for the general fund, public safety and debt service mainly accounted for the difference.

Levies on rural property in the Belmond school district were generally down a bit. In Belmond township, the drop was from 57.323 to 56.318; in Pleasant township, from 57.384 to 56.297; in Iowa, from 59.250 to 58.415; in Norway, from 57.685 to 56.635; in Grant, from 57.649 to 56.850; and in Blaine from 57.190 to 56.240.

Assessor Ross Henry says no Belmond taxes payable this year will be affected by property damage done by the tornado. The 1966 levy applies on all property as it existed on Jan. 1 of last year.

Such homes — or businesses — that might not be rebuilt will hereafter be off the tax rolls, though. And replacement buildings that go up during the coming year will not be taxable until 1968, payment on which will fall due in 1969.

Jaycees to pick '67 outstanding Belmond farmer

As they have done in a number of past years, the Belmond Jaycees plan to honor an outstanding young farmer of this vicinity when chapter awards are presented next month.

These young men, between the ages of 21 and 35, must be directly engaged in farming and derive at least two-thirds of their income from this occupation. Candidates are also judged on their activity in civic affairs.

This year's "Outstanding Young Farmer" committee is soliciting nominations from the public. Persons wishing to nominate a particular candidate are asked to call the name to Harold (Harry) Nelson, Keith Carlson or Richard Wirth.

Such nominations should be in the committee's hands not later than next Wednesday, Jan. 25.

Therapist signed for school post

County Supt. C. W. Sankey announces that Mrs. Virginia Eilers of Renwick has been obtained by the county board of education to serve as a speech therapist in the Wright county schools. Both of the speech and hearing therapists on the county staff last year resigned to engage in further study in their specialty.

Mrs. Eilers began her duties on Monday of this week, having been signed to a contract for the balance of the current school year. She received a B. A. degree in speech therapy from State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls, in 1951.

She served schools in Humboldt, Pocahontas and Palo Alto counties for a period of six years, but at the end of that time had to interrupt her career due to family responsibilities. Her husband operates a business in Renwick.

Koolbeck signs as NIAC coach

Athletic Director Art Lundblad of North Iowa Area Community college, Mason City, informed The Independent by phone Wednesday morning that Rich Koolbeck was signed the previous evening as NIAC's new football coach.

While a coach at Belmond Community High school from the 1959 through 1964 seasons, Rich compiled one of the finest coaching records in the state with 34 wins against five losses and a tie.

He left Belmond to accept a coaching position in Arizona. During the present year he has a National Science Foundation grant for advanced study in mathematics at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

At NIAC, he will coach golf as well as football. Mr. Lundbald said the NIAC school board regarded that the college was most fortunate in obtaining a man of Mr. Koolbeck's calibre for the coaching staff.

CUSTOMER APPRECIATION DAY AT FARMERS GRAIN

Farmers Grain company is holding its annual Customer Appreciation Day this Saturday, a number of special attractions being planned by Manager LeRoy Hayes.

Ham sandwiches, coffee and doughnuts will be served free to all the firm's farmer customers and some worthwhile door prizes will be awarded on the basis of registration.

Mr. Hayes says an opportunity will be offered, also, to take advantage of special discounts on livestock feed, fertilizer and seed orders placed on the open house day.

Big event here on Feb. 4th—

Plans for farm clinic shaping up

How earnestly the Belmond Chamber of Commerce regards Belmond's farmer friends as important contributors to this community's economy is being demonstrated on Saturday, Feb. 4, when the Chamber will conduct a Farm Clinic with farmers of the area as its guests.

Ellis Elliott, Chamber secretary, says, "The town-and-country committee of the Chamber has lined up a decidedly outstanding program for this event. We believe every farmer in the Belmond trade territory will find it of personal interest."

Tickets good for free attendance at the clinic and for the dinner to be served at noon are already being distributed by local business firms. They are obtainable for the asking, Mr. Elliott says. All costs are being underwritten by Belmond industries and business concerns.

Don Bunnell of the Tomco staff is chairman of the town-and-country committee. Also in the planning group are Mr. Elliott, Lem Long, Ray Wright, Clarence Triggs, LeRoy Hayes, Chester Hill and William Lanphere.

Keith Wiggins, Central Soya manager of grain purchasing, will serve as master-of-ceremonies for the program at Luick Memorial Auditorium that starts and 9:00 a. m. After a cafeteria-style dinner in the high school gymnasium at noon, the program will resume at 1:30 and continue until 3:30 p. m.

Tickets will be available to 700 farmers, that being the seating capacity of the auditorium, and Chamber officials confidently expect a "full house".

Informative talks by a number of manufacturer representatives will be heard in the morning, plus remarks of interest from spokesmen for Tomco, Central Soya and Armour Agricultural Chemical company.

On the afternoon program will be an outstanding guest speaker of statewide reputation, plus several specialists from Iowa State university at Ames in talks on their particular fields.

There will be a number of display booths set up in the gymnasium for inspection. Another attraction of the event will be the awarding of some valuable door prizes.

JUST NOW IN VIET NAM

Pfc. Garland Just, who spent a holiday leave at home before departure Jan. 3 for Viet Nam, has written to inform his parents — Mr. and Mrs. John Just — that he arrived there before the end of the week. His outfit is stationed at Pleiku; and he says that he's had to "take to the bunkers" several times to seek protection from enemy fire.

Clarke "pleased" with assignments

Senator Hugh Clarke, who last week was seated as state senator from the 34th District, expresses pleasure that his committee assignments included spots on the governmental affairs committee and the permanent sub-committee on government reorganization.

His other assignments were to the committee on agriculture and that on safety and law enforcement.

Senator Clarke has been co-sponsor for five joint resolutions involved with proposed amendments to the Iowa constitution. One concerns home rule for municipalities; one would give the governor power to veto items in appropriation bills; and another would provide for linked votes on governor and lieutenant governor so both would be from the same party.

The other two would provide for annual sessions of the legislature; and relating to composition and apportionment of the General Assembly and the establishment of Congressional districts.

Senator Clarke reports on legislature's start

Senator Hugh Clarke plans to make a weekly report to his constituents of the 34th Iowa district during the 62nd General Assembly, which convened last week at Des Moines. The Independent will carry these reports as often as available space permits, to supplement the legislative news to be found in the Capital News Letter on the editorial page.

First of the reports from Senator Clarke follows:

A Republican pledge to be constructive and meet Iowa's major problems head-on was quickly put into action in the opening week of the legislature.

The pledge for constructive action was voiced by leaders in both the House and Senate as the 62nd General Assembly spent the first week getting organized and hearing the required State-of-the-State and Inaugural Addresses by Gov. Harold Hughes.

Despite the usual slowness of the first legislative week, Republicans started introducing the bills to carry out the ideas supported in the party platform. One of these proposals dealt with a new reapportionment plan which would guarantee subdistricting in those counties electing more than one senator or representative.

This proposal, introduced by more than 25 Republican senators, would replace a plan passed by the last Democrat-controlled legislature which permitted, but did not require, subdistricting.

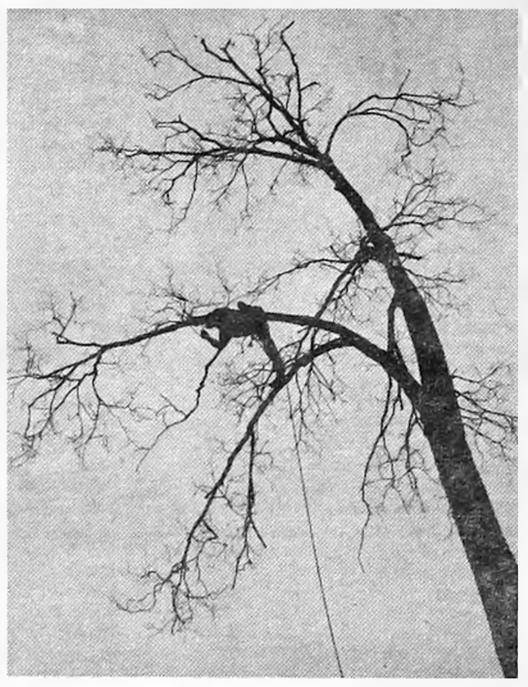
In addition, the new proposal would bring about a smaller 100-member House and 50-member Senate at an earlier date than the old plan. The 1965 plan indicated it could not go into effect until the 1972 elections, whereas the Republican proposal moves that date up to the 1970 elections.

The Republicans also moved quickly into other platform proposals. For example, several bills were introduced which would extend veterans' benefits under present state laws to all veterans who serve during the Viet Nam war.

In another proposal, a move was made to extend the idea of "home rule" to counties. The plan calls for repealing the section of law which requires county courthouses to be open on Saturday. This would let local officials decide their own hours.

Old trees "topped"; new planted—

Park destined to have shade again



Looking like a "spider in the sky," this workman for the Midwest Tree Service of Sioux Falls, S. D., was engaged in "topping" a salvaged tree in the city park last Friday afternoon when this picture was taken.

It was the last of 10 trees that James Phelps, foreman for the tree service concern, had recommended that the city save from among those in the park that were damaged to a lesser degree by the tornado.

Nine of the survivors were hackberries and one an ash. The hackberry is a member of the elm family, but survives high winds much better than the European elm, Phelps says.

All but the sturdiest and healthiest of the elms in the storm's path were destroyed, according to Phelps—which constituted an effective "Dutch elm disease eradication program" in a fair share of the town.

Phelps says the topped and severely pruned trees in the park will branch out to make presentable shade trees in in two or three years' time. He added the opion that some additional ash trees in the tornado's major path could have been saved and would have "grown back" into good trees, had they not been hurriedly removed.

Another step toward rehabilitation of the city park has taken place since the storm in the planting of 40 new trees purchased from the Ames Nursery at a cost of $800.

Some are ornamental, flowering trees, some of the conventional shade varieties and some replaced the planting of evergreens in the northwest part of the park that was destroyed.

Mrs. R. B. Thompson, who was active in the garden division of the former Belmond Woman's club that did extensive tree planting in the park, says that most of the saplings planted during that project seem to have survived the tornado.

We 3 Market "back in business"

Business was bustling last Thursday morning at the We 3 Market soon after these pictures were taken at the all-new store. The first store was among the most completely demolished of any business places struck by the tornado; but Followwill Implement has rebuilt "bigger and better than ever" for Proprietors Ed and Wilmer Gabrielson and Wes Boller.

At left, check-out girls Jo (Mrs. Richard) McMurray, Diane Draper and Eleanor (Mrs. Alex) Zeiger were waiting for the flow of customers to start just after the doors had opened.

In the center, Ed Gabrielson was holding the traditional "grand opening ribbon" while Duane Anderson as vice president of the Chamber of Commerce prepared to snip the streamer (with tin snips, it would appear). To the right of Anderson are Ed Pulver, whose bakery is now a We 3 department, and Chamber Secretary Ellis Elliott. A good turnout of other Chamber members witnessed the ceremony.

At right is the sparkling new bakery department, with Ed Pulver's head to be seen toward the rear and Mrs. Frank Pruisman waiting on a customer. The mouth-watering aromas eminating from the bakery, Ed Gabrielson believes, help a lot to put his customers in a food-buying mood.

County's firemen hear about arson

Belmond had three representatives at the monthly meeting of the Wright County Firemen's association that was held last Thursday at Rowan. Gordon Sandman, George Swaroff and Asa White were present from the local department. Twenty-five firemen attended and all departments but that at Galt were represented.

Harold Schurtz of Mason City, a deputy from the state fire marshal's office, gave a talk on arson and also reviewed fire laws that will be coming up for consideration during the 62nd General Assembly.

Kenny Mayes of Clarion, the county association's secretary-treasurer, reported six fire calls in the county during December that involved an aggregate of $6,885 in losses.

P. O. nearly matches '65 receipts despite '66 business interruption

Receipts far under normal in November caused Belmond post office receipts for 1966 to fall about $1,475 below the record high of $70,679.30 that was attained the year before.

Postmaster Bill Walrod viewed the final receipts of $69,202 as remarkable, considering that the post office was completely demolished in the October tornado and was out of operation until temporary quarters were obtained in the IOOF hall basement.

Receipts for last year, even under the circumstances, were about $365 over those for 1964. A record-breaking figure of $10,067.92 for December — biggest month in the history of the Belmond post office — helped greatly to compensate for the post-tornado drop.

The receipts actually are not recorded by months, but by four-week periods. The 1st, 2nd and 4th "quarters" each consists of three such periods, while the 3rd "quarter" covers four four-week periods.

In the 1st quarter of 1966, receipts came to $17,057.62, a decided gain over the $14,736.63 of the year before. The 2nd quarter saw receipts down to $13,778.12, compared to $15,986.35 for the corresponding '65 period. There was also a slight drop in the 3rd quarter — $19,302.26, down from $19,542.76.

The final 12 weeks of '65 registered all-time high receipts of $20,413.56. It was a $3,000 drop in the next-to-last four-week period of '66 that brought the final quarter's receipts down to $19,064.32.

Contributing to the record $10,067.92 in the last four weeks of the year were some industrial mailings delayed by the tornado, much personal and business correspondence stemming from the storm, and the usual heavy run of Christmas business.

Neoma Johnson, Edward Bather, Jr., married at church in Minneapolis

Miss Neoma Johnson and Edward C. Bather, Jr., were married at the Mt. Olivet Lutheran church chapel in Minneapolis., Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 28. The chancel was decorated with greenery and red poinsettias.

The double-ring ceremony was read by Rev. Douglas Roper. He was assisted by Rev. Dwane Shay, Clear Lake, and Rev. Ralph Johnshoy, Huron, S. D., both brothers-in-law of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talferd A. Johnson and the groom is the son of Mrs. Isabel Bather of Minneapolis and E. C. Bather, Mesa, Ariz.

Mrs. John G. Metzker was organist. She accompanied Mrs. William Barr as she sang "O Lord Most Holy" and played for Mr. and Mrs. Barr as they sang together "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory rayon peau de soie, floor-length dress with an empire waistline from which flowed a removable chapel train. Re-embroidered Alencon lace was on the bodice of the dress and bordered the train. The A-line skirt contained lace motifs as did the bell-shaped sleeves. Caught on a crown of ivory peau de soie was a silk illusion elbow-length veil.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and stephanotis with ivy greens. She wore short white leather gloves and her only piece of jewelry was a pearl necklace given to her by the groom.

Matron-of-honor was Mrs. Ralph Johnshoy and bridesmaid, Mrs. Dwane Shay, both sisters of the bride. They wore identical gowns of red-dotted net over crepe with floor-length cages and long sleeves. Their headpieces were red crepe bows with illusion. Each carried a cascade bouquet of red and white roses.

Best man was Frank J. Brennan, Minneapolis, and groomsman was E. Thomas Jung, nephew of the groom from Milwaukee, Wis. Ushers were Harold C. Lyman, Edina, Minn., and William J. McClellan, Minnetonka Village, Minn. All men of the wedding party wore stroller jackets with stripped trousers.

The mother of the bride was attired in a green wool dress and the groom's mothers wore a beige wool dress. Each wore a corsage of red and white roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the chapel lounge. A three-tiered, pillared wedding cake centered the serving table and was served by Barbara Kaiser and Ruth McCarville, both of Minneapolis. Presiding at the coffee service was Mrs. Mary Jung, sister of the groom.

Mrs. Dean Molin, Hopkins, Minn., was in charge of the guest book; Barbara Jensen and Marcia Baker of Minneapolis were at the punch bowl. Acting host and hostess at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Tokheim of Edina, Minn.

Among the guests present at the wedding were the sixth grade students of the bride. A special place in the church was reserved for them.

For going away, the bride wore an off-white textured raw silk fabric suit with golden brown acessories and a white rose corsage.

The bride has a B. S. degree in education from Drake university, Des Moines, and received her Master's degree at the University of Minnesota. She is presently teaching sixth grade at Cedar Manor Elementary school in St. Louis Park, Minn.

The groom received his B. S. degree in civil engineering at the University of Minnesota and did graduate work at Northwestern university, Georgia Tech and the University of Minnesota. Bailey refuses to "stand off" for pressure group

Most legislators give the matter very sober, second thought when greeted by an impulse to fly in the face of a powerful special interest group. One may quietly make up his own mind that he thinks a legislative favor being asked is without justification; he may even talk the matter over with neighbors on the floor and with other lawmakers over a cup of coffee. But you don't very often find one who will risk maximum publicity in defying such a group.

We were delighted no end when the Des Moines Register a week ago Sunday was so startled by such an action on the part of Ray Bailey, Wright county's state representative, that the resulting story was bannered on the front page of the Iowa news section.

What the story described as "the legislatively powerful trucking group" wants a LOT more leeway than is now allowed in transporting loads over the regular limit on Iowa's highways. Among the items that would be involved would be the ever-larger mobile homes that continually come off the assembly lines. But heavy, cumbersome truck loads of numerous descriptions also would fit in the picture.

Mr. Bailey wrote to Senator John Kibbie of Emmetsburg, chairman of the Iowa Road Study committee, that it is asking too much of Iowa's taxpayers to demand continually "building ever-wider and ever-thicker highways simply to accommodate these products."

Declared the Clarion attorney, "The state should not be part of a subsidization which is neither economically sound or fair. Especially, it should not be a part of subsidization which could very well result in the needless loss of human lives."

Such lobbies as that for the trucking industry stand ready to pour considerable money into party campaign coffers and to engage in such legislative back-scratching as circumstances might permit. Hence the second thoughts before a lawmaker voluntarily risks offending.

A politician, pure and simple, won't. A legislator who aspires to some degree of statesmanship just might. We're gratified to find Ray Bailey aligning himself with the latter class.

"Entertainment" is not the answer to delinquency

We don't know quite what to make of the oft-repeated accusation that we adults don't do enough for our children these days. That is, we don't keep them busy enough. We don't provide enough entertainment and diversion for their idle hours — and that's why some of them get into trouble.

Part of the answer lies in the clipped article at the bottom of the editorial column recalling the variety of purposes to which a tin can once could be put by ingenious, juvenile minds.

A generation ago, kids were mostly left to their own devices and if they couldn't dream up enough activities to keep themselves occupied — and we mean legal, socially acceptable activities — that was just tough.

Sure, there was some playground equipment in the park; and if there was positively nothing else to do, it might be used occasionally. Also we recall an abortive attempt to set up a summer recreation program. But you know what? The kids were too darned busy to patronize it, and it didn't take long to convince the sponsors that they were barking up the wrong tree.

Teen centers? Nobody would have known what you were talking about. The kids had ingenuity and resourcefulness; and you can jolly well believe that they weren't made to feel sorry for themselves by over-solicitous parents. Moreover, there was no boob-tube that occupied every kid for umpteen hours a week and which they had to be beaten away from with a stick to get 'em to do their home work.

You know something we don't buy? That idle time DRIVES kids to shoplifting, vandalism, skipping school (which only produces MORE idle time), beer parties and other such delinquencies. It doesn't; and the behavior of the very large majority of youngsters is to us conclusive evidence that it doesn't.

If a family environment is substandard, that can do it. Over-permissiveness in an otherwise acceptable household can do it. Wrong associations can do it. And since it DOES take "all kinds," a simple lack of sufficiently strong moral fiber in the individual could conceivably be responsible, despite the best efforts of family, friends, school authorities and whatever other influences are brought to bear.

We'd be the last to deny that the whole social environment today is different from what it was a generation ago; and perhaps it IS more difficult to get along in. There are more pressures; more stresses; certainly parents themselves are less relaxed, by and large.

And we aren't pretending that "the younger generation" when we were a member of it could claim any superiority as a group over today's "younger generation". Both had — or have — their share of well adjusted youngsters, middle-grounders, and those who are a problem to themselves and to everyone else.

Those in the latter category we feel a very real sympathy for. We've never known a "delinquent" who became that for sheer love of delinquency. It isn't that much fun.

But no amount of proferred "fun" will swerve these unfortunate youngsters from the course they have set themselves upon. When the guidance and stability they need cannot be supplied by the home, our society DOES fail to provide — all too often — a substitute source. And it pays dearly in wasted lives, not to mention the costs of protecting itself from these young people it has failed.

But trying to keep the delinquent or prospective delinquent "occupied" is NOT the answer. Inculcating a sense of personal responsibility — plus a feeling of security and "belonging" — IS. If this can't be done at home, then a youngster has a problem that no teen center and no amount of "directed recreation" can solve.

Reminiscing on uses of the tin can

Among the failures of my generation is one that the philosophers generally overlook: Our inability to inform our children of the usefulness of empty tin cans.

The knowledge of what to do with them seems to have vanished, along with such skills as banking a coal furnace or cranking a Model T. There are plenty of tin cans around, as anyone who has visited a picnic site can testify, but once they're emptied their usefulness is over. In the old days, it had often just begun.

The simplest use for an empty container then was a game called kick the can. One boy could play kick the can all by himself. He would give it a boot, then stroll along, hands in pockets, and kick it again.

IF HE HAD A FRIEND WITH him, the game was livelier. One boy would kick it, then race the other for the honor of kicking it again. Played solo or even in pairs, it wasn't really much of a game, except that the flattened can made the kind of noise that annoyed the adults, which was reason enough for its popularity.

Shinny was another use for an empty tin can. The dictionary claims that shinny or shinney is a rude version of ice hockey. Apparently whoever wrote the definition grew up in a different neighborhood than mine. Where I lived, shinny was played on a gravel road. If it was played on a frozen pond, it was called shinny-onna-ice.

THE CAN WAS USED IN PLACE of a puck. First it had to be flattened by jumping on it repeatedly, preferably by the boy called "Fats." Then lines were scratched across the ice at each end of the pond to serve as goals. The idea was to knock the tin can across the line by hitting it with a stick picked up in the woods.

Sometimes a boy would hunt around until he found a limb that was bent at the end to form a natural version of a hockey stick, but this wasn't necessary. It was never a game taken very seriously — it wasn't really a disgrace if your team lost, the way it was to lose a game of baseball. The rules were whatever the boy with the loudest voice said they were, although it was not considered friendly to clout an opponent unless you were aiming at the flattened can.

THE GAME WAS SUPPOSED to be played on skates — shinny-onna-ice, that is, as distinguished from shinny — but if a boy was hanging around the fire built near the pond without his skates he could serve as goalie.

Sometimes if you'd left your skates at home, a friend would lend you one of his. Then you'd each travel with a step and a glide, a step and a glide.

Another use for an empty tin can required one that was still solid on both ends, such as the kind that had contained evaporated milk.

IT WAS PLACED WITH ONE side flat on the ground. The foot was raised high and the heel of the shoe stamped down hard on it.

If this was done exactly right, the can was bent to conform to the shape of the heel, so it would stick to it while you walked. With a can fastened to the rear of each shoe, a boy could clump up and down a concrete sidewalk, making a truly remarkable racket.

Parents would come roaring out on porches. Neighbors would slam windows shut. An afternoon that had been monotonous would suddenly crackle with shouted threats and impending violence.

I CAN HEAR IT NOW, THE clunk and scrape and clatter of a small boy marching down a walk with tin on his heels, but only in memory. The sound has vanished. The invention of the unsung genius who first realized an empty can could fastened to a boy's shoe heel has been lost to the world.

The old skills have been allowed to die out among the young, which may explain why so many double-ended cans gleam in the headlights' beams along the rural roadsides. In the old days, the adults hid them carefully away. They know that unless they did, some lad would go clanking and scraping past the window in triumph. — Christian Science Monitor

LEGISLATURE NOW AT IT—

The 62nd General Assembly has convened, as everyone in Iowa must know by now. If the first legislative week is any indication of what's to come, it's going to be a mighty interesting session.

As noted by Senator George O'Malley, veteran Polk County legislator, it's been 30 years since control of the legislature has been so divided. Republicans control the House 89 to 35, while the Democrats hold a slim edge of 32 to 29 in the Senate.

As expected, Maurice Baringer, Oelwein Republican, was elected and installed as Speaker of the House. Earlier, at a Republican caucus, Baringer had defeated John Mowry, Marshalltown, for the post.

THE OFFICIAL CANVASS, BY a legislative committee, gave Gov. Harold Hughes 494,259 votes and William G. Murray, his Republican opponent, 394,518. The canvass also showed that Lt. Gov. Robert Fulton was re-elected by 1,260 votes. Fulton polled 424,968 votes to 423,708 for State Senator Max Milo Mills.

As had been predicted, there were some "printing bugs." The legislative leaders had decided to switch to off-set printing for the printing of bills introduced and the daily legislative journals. The first legislative week, the printers were late in getting the journals and other matter to the lawmakers.

MESSAGE FROM HUGHES—

Article IV, Section 12 of the Constitution of the State of Iowa specifies as one of the duties of the chief executive that "he shall communicate, by message, to the General Assembly, at every regular session, the condition of the state, and recommend such matters as he shall deem expedient."

Through tradition, this message has become known as the "state of the state message." Governor Hughes, in delivering this message before a joint session of the legislature, struck an optimistic note. Hughes said he believes the condition of our state "is one of robust good health and glowing promise for the future."

HE TOLD THE LAWMAKERS that Iowans of all walks of life, of all creeds and political faiths, have to be proud of the breakthroughs for better government and a better society than have been achieved in the past few years. "The credit for this phenomenal advancement belongs to no individual or group, but to the people of Iowa," he asserted.

The governor did not read all of the message, some 6,000 words. In the message he covers everything from fiscal matters (the state is expected to have a surplus in the state treasury in excess of $80 million on June 30) to operation Head-start under the Economic Opportunity program.

REACTION TO SPEECH—

Within minutes after Governor Hughes had delivered his state-of-the-state message, reporters were busy getting reaction of legislative leaders. Said Senator Robert Rigler, minority floor leader in the Senate:

"The governor has the politician's touch for painting a pretty picture of paradise. Iowa and all states have made real progress of which we are all proud; but we still have real, pressing problems not covered on today's canvas. More than the painter's brush will be needed to eliminate them. This is the big task for the 1967 legislature."

NEW REMAP PLAN—

Twenty-four Republican senators have filed a new permanent reapportionment plan as a proposed amendment to the Iowa constitution. In many ways this constitutional amendment is similar to the so-called "permanent plan" which was approved by the 1965 legislature. It reduces the size of the legislature to no more than 50 senators and no more than 100 representatives.

Senators David Stanley of Muscatine and Rigler, New Hampton, told reporters at an early morning news conference that the most important difference between the two plans is the provision in the new Republican proposal which would require single-member districts in both houses.

THEY CONTEND IF THE 1965 "permanent plan" is adopted without change "this will create a grave danger that single-member districts will not be required in the future."

Senator Stanley explained that the Iowa Supreme Court subdistricting decision is based on the 1965 constitution. The "permanent plan" will change the constitution. Any citizen, Stanley continued, could then go to court and argue that the constitution as amended no longer requires single-member districts.

THE TWO REPUBLICAN LEADERS said that there has been a lot of "loose talk" about submitting the 1965 "permanent plan" to the voters in 1967 and making it effective for the 1968 election. They claim this can't be done under the 1965 "permanent plan."

(In order to amend Iowa's constitution a proposal must be approved in identical form by two consecutive general assemblies and then approved by a vote of the people.)

Stanley and Rigler say the plan passed by the 1965 legislature provides for the first redistricting in 1971. "There is no provision expressed or implied, for any redistricting before 1971," they add.

Did she poison him, or not?—

Murder case of 78 years ago caused furore

From time to time, Ye Ed takes pleasure in dipping into the Hon. B. P. Birdsall's "History of Wright County," just to see what he can come up with. A recent perusal brought our eye to the account of one of the county's earliest murder trials — a real "The Lady or the Tiger?" mystery thriller. . . . Or was there a mystery? You, the reader, may judge.

Before the bar was an attractive young lady by the name of Mrs. Bertha Diggle. The year was 1888. The locale was Clarion.

Mrs. Diggle, though the mother of a six-months-old babe, had theatrical aspirations and under the stage name of "Jessie Leland" had accepted a position with the Ford Dramatic Company, a well-known theatrical troupe of the day.

Had deserted infant

The Ford company was making a week's appearance in the opera house at Clarion when on May 24 Bertha's husband George, a barber at Sioux Falls, S. D., appeared to plead with his spouse to return to her home and child. Mrs. Diggle's associates were of the impression she had about decided to do so, or at least had so led her husband to believe.

In an apparent show of amicabilty, Bertha invited her husband to her room at the residence of Mrs. S. Overacker, having first purchased two bottles of beer. The beer was consumed — and a short while later barber Diggle was taken violently ill.

A local physician was summoned, who pronounced the man a victim of poisoning. Four hours later he was dead.

In a sensational eight-day trial that took place at the county seat during the period of Dec. 17-24, it was stressed that Mrs. Diggle had made another purchase in addition to the beer prior to the time that she and her husband retired to her chambers.

At Hamilton Drug store she had made a 50-cent purchase of morphine, explaining to the druggist that she was subject to headaches and took the drug for that reason. During the trial, the prosecution attached some significance to the fact that she had inquired of the druggist if the amount of morphine she was buying was sufficient to kill a man if all taken at once.

She was assured that it was, and the storekeeper offered to divide it into eight-grain doses, but she told him she could do that herself.

Evidence down the w. c.

It was testified, presumably by Mrs. Overacker, that not long after the Diggles had gone to the rented room Mrs. Diggle had "made an errand to a near-by water closet." After the husband's death, authorities took a look at the w. c. and found therein the package in which the drug had been bought, identified by the pharmacist's label.

A coroner's inquest was held over the deceased man's remains and after due deliberation the jurors rendered a verdict that George Diggle had come to his death from taking a fatal amount of morphine.

Senitment in the community was divided, some believing it a plain case of homcide while others leaning toward the theory of suicide by a despondent husband. Local newspaper editors took differing sides and exictement was kept at a high pitch. But the case for the time being was dropped.

County Attorney Humphrey, conscientiously pursing his official duties, kept collecting evidence to go with the drug bottle that had been retrieved from the toilet. He was not satisfied by the verdict of the coroner's jury that the morphine had been administered by "some person unknown".

George Diggle's remains were sent to Sioux Falls for burial, but the stomach contents were first analyzed and it was officially determined that he had consumed morphine in a fatal amount.

"Jessie Leland" did not accompany her husband's body home, but instead continued with the theatrical troupe to Iowa Falls to pursue her life as an actress. The players had gone on to Tama City when the suspected murderess was taken into custody and brought to Eagle Grove.

Once freed for "economy"

A change of venue to Clarion was obtained and at length she was there formally charged with the crime of murdering her husband. A grand jury then in session indicted her for the crime, whereas an earlier grand jury that had hurriedly heard the case had dismissed it without finding a bill against her.

It was June when Bertha Diggles had been arrested at Tama City but, as mentioned, the trial did not get underway until Dec. 17. At the second grand jury hearing it came out that the earlier jury had found no indictment because its members personally regarded her innocent and "did not wish to put the county to so much expense as a trial would cause."

Names of some of the members of the trial jury still have a familiar ring today. They were A. M. Plumley, D. L. Miller, Frank Knuths, R. C. Morse, Fred Boisner, N. W. Owens, Theodore Wiegand, Lewis Nelson, J. Lieuwen, C. W. Hill, James Williams and August Brandis. They found the defendant "not guilty".

"Test" was nearly fatal

Mrs. Diggle must have had very conscientious defense counsel. In preparing their case for trial her attorneys made a test case of the effects to be produced by consuming beer laced with morphine. They mixed some of the potion and D. D. Chase of Webster City, an ex-judge, drank it down. Reported the press of the day. "It produced a stupor which caused much alarm, and came near costing him his life."

So celebrated was the Diggle case that newspapers from Chicago, Des Moines and other cities had their own representatives at Clarion for the trial and it attracted wide attention.

Wrote the Hon. B. P. Birdsall in 1915, "even to this day the opinion of citizens of this county is divided" as to the handsome actress's guilt."

Found of "good character"

He continued, "Her character was traced from a girl of five summers, when a Sunday school scholar in Philadelphia, down to the day of her trail and nothing would indicate she was that type of woman who would commit such a deed. Probably nothing this side of eternity will solve the question of who killed George Diggle."

It was the fifth murder trial in Wright county's 37-year history to that date. All resulted in acquittals except "the Odenheimer case" in the early 'sixties. Perhaps we should look into THAT sometime.

Varsity cagers in "must" battle with Northwood; froshmores, too

A year ago, the Belmond High cagers appeared to have the inside track for a second North Iowa conference basketball title in a row when they traveled to Northwood. But after leading 31-23 at the half, the Broncos completely fell apart and lost 55-49 in one of the more dismal performances ever put on by a BHS hardcourt team.

Playing the Vikings at home on the same spot in this season's schedule, the Broncos once again ripped at the seams after gliding along with a 41-30 intermission lead and had to settle for a 58-55 defeat.

Tomorrow night the Broncs will once again be going into action in the Northwood gym; and again the outcome will be an important factor in deciding the North Iowa conference championship.

Belmond and Forest City last weekend drew tail-enders for their competition and remained solidly in contention with 6-2 records. Northwood kept itself in the picture by breezing past Britt to hold a 5-3 mark. And in the only key battle of the round, Buffalo Center travelled to Lake Mills, where the Bison won an overtime spinetingler, 59-57. This made their record 6-2, also.

Where the Broncos' biggest trouble lies this season is made very apparent by a look at their offensive-defensive averages through the first eight NIC contests. A year ago they were racking up an average of a fraction over 72 points per game; this season, they've been hitting a 70.9-point average.

That's not too much of a drop; but defense is a different matter. Through eight games in '65-66 they'd held their loop foes to an average of 53 points per game and their defensive average this time is 64.6. Bolstering up the defense against the Vikings on Friday night could hold the key to whether their title chances are improved, or whether they end up on the verge of elimination from the championship picture.

Sharing interest with the varsity tilt will be the froshmore contest, as Belmond and Northwood are tied for the freshman-sophomore lead. The junior Broncs won here, 54-42, but had trouble breaking away.

Colts' athletic cards outlined

Jack Steinberg has released the junior high school basketball and wrestling schedules as now set up for the balance of the season.

The Colt cagers will play at Garner this Friday, then will have home engagements as follows: Jan. 25, Clarion: Feb. 1, Britt; Feb. 10, Garner.

In wrestling, Hampton will play host to the 7th, 8th and 9th graders this Saturday. The rest of the schedule: Jan. 24, Clarion (7-8-9), here; Jan. 28, Clear Lake (8-9), here; Jan. 31, Britt (7-8), there.

MRS. CHARLES THILTGEN DIED ON T-DAY, AGE 97

Word has been received by Belmond friends of the death on Oct. 14 of a former local resident, Mrs. Charles Thiltgen of Menlo Park, Calif., who would have been 98 years old this month. She had broken a hip in a fall not long before her death.

The Thiltgen family lived here during the 'twenties, when Mr. Thiltgen was a contractor. Among the structures he built were the Ward Martin building and also the one across the street from it occupied by Dougherty Jewelry.

Three children survive: a son Donald, retired and living at Sedona, Ariz.; another son, Winston, a physician at El Campo, Tex.; and a daughter, Mrs. Ray (Katherine) Mercier, Menlo Park.

Justices uphold Clarion verdict

Tuesday of last week the Iowa supreme court unanimously upheld a conviction rendered by Judge Ed Kelley in district court at Clarion that sent Dale Hurd, 43, to the state penitentiary at Fort Madison for a term of up to eight years. He had pleaded guilty to manslaughter after his 28-year-old wife Sylvia was fatally injured in a one-car accident.

Hurd was driving the car on Feb. 16, 1966, when it failed to turn at a deadend intersection in Clarion and crashed into the cement steps at the front of a house. Sheriff Blecker had testified that Hurd had been drinking heavily, left the scene of the accident and was apprehended eight blocks away from the site.

On the day following, Hurd had asked his court-appointed counsel, Ralph Austin of Clarion, to plead him "guilty". Basis of the appeal to the supreme court was a contention that Hurd was in an alcoholic depression at the time and unable to exercise calm, deliberate judgment.

The court opinion written by Justice W. C. Stuart noted that Hurd had at all times been represented by competent counsel, was thoroughly advised of his rights and made no claim to coercion.

Hurd had lived in Alexander until only a few weeks before the accident happened.

Sergeant Davids back in States

S/Sgt. Roger A. Davids, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Davids, who farm southwest of Belmond, has returned to the States after 5½ months in Viet Nam. He was an advisor to the Vietnamese 1st Cavalry and the 36th Ranger Group, working directly with the Vietnamese.

He was transferred back to recover from battle fatigue and presently is recuperating at Fitzsimmons General hospital in Denver, Colo.

During his period of duty in Viet Nam, Sergeant Davids was awarded several decorations. These included a second Good Conduct medal, Vietnamese Combat Armor badge, Vietnamese Service medal, Vietnamese National Defense medal, American Combat Infantry badge and American National Defense medal.

Before entering military service, the sergeant attended Kanawha High school. He completed diploma requirements after enlisting in the Army 6½ years ago.

Alden grapplers here on Friday

Stay-at-home sports fans will not be without athletic activity to watch this Friday night while the Bronco cagers are appearing at Northwood. Coach Don Jones' wrestlers will be playing host to Alden at the BHS gym, and some fine performances are in prospect.

Alden took third place in the Belmond Invitational tournament in December with 48 team points, five more than Belmond managed. Both teams won a pair of championships; but Alden also had a couple of runners-up — which the Broncos couldn't match.

Alden's champs were Tim Ryan at 138 lbs. and Gary Nelson, 165; while Leland Pommrehn (133) and Gene Vanderloop (103) each took second Bronco titleists were Jim Dickson (127) and Les Steenblock (hwt.).

Reserve action will start at 6:30 p. m. and the varsities will go at it about 7:45 o'clock.

Soil conservation projects outlined

The Wright County Soil Conservation district has just completed a highly successful year of accomplishments according to Boyd Patterson, chairman of the district commissioners.

Some of the accomplishments include: 44 new district cooperators, 170 acres of contouring, 42 conservation farm plans, 70 acres of strip cropping, two farm ponds, 360,886 linear feet of tile, 33 outlet pipe structures, two erosion control structures, 25 acres of waterway construction, 2,630 linear feet of surface drains and ditches.

Also one field demonstration on terrace construction, one soil judging contest, five acres of windbreak plantings, four group tile projects, 7,270 linear feet of parallel bench terraces with tile outlets, 162 acres of wildlife habitat preservation and development, and the conversion of three acres of cropland to grassland.

During the course of the year, Raymond Eekhoff of Goldfield became the 1,000th cooperator of the district since its establishment in 1946.

"This achievement is notable in that we have only slightly over 1,500 farms in Wright county," Patterson commented.

Chairman Patterson noted that any one desiring technical assistance should contact the local Soil Conservation office at Clarion.

M. C. foe defeated 66-56—

Broncs' hot shooting tops Knights

Working for percentage shots paid off with a 66-56 victory over Newman High at Mason City for the Belmond High cagers Tuesday night. The Broncos had a sparkling 55.5 shooting percentage for the evening as they hit 26 out of 47 attempts from the floor. The losing Knights bombarded the hoop with 72 hots but were able to hit on only 23 of them — for 32 per cent — and that told the story.

A closer battle could hardly be imagined than that waged between the forces of Coach Ted Besch and Coach Jim Crimmings, who once led Belmond High to cage glory, during early stages of the game. Thirteen times the score was tied after Newman broke the scoring ice on a fielder by Gary Mennen. Neither team was able to acquire more than a two-point margain during the first period, and the second was well along before the Broncos made it a four point spread at 30-26, then increased it to 32-26.

Jim Sallee cut it back to four points with a set shot, but Belmond then ran off six consecutive points — chalked up by Gary Meyers, Terry Nelson and Bob Rise — to reach the intermission on top by 10, at 38-28.

After halftime, the Knights gradually cut the margin as the Broncos took a minimum of shots and by the third quarter's end the Belmond advantage was down to 46-42. Twice, early in the fourth stanza, Newman drew within two points, the last time at 48-46. But the Broncos then ran off 11 points to two for the Knights and with 2:15 to play it was 59-48.

With a little over a minute left, the Knights had chopped their deficit to five — 61-56 — but they were unable to score again as Tim Roberts hit on three of four free-throws and Nelson popped in a rebound to finish off Belmond's total.

In the last half, the Broncos took only 18 shots at the hoop but they made good half of them. During the first half they converted on 17 of 29 floor shots. Gary Meyers was top scorer with 21 points, followed by Sallee with 18.

Belmond again had good scoring balance, Rise tallying 13 points, Roberts 11, Nelson 10, Richard Stadtlander seven and Doug Thompfour. Bob Vander Schaaf made one of his relatively rare appearances in the line-up and, though he didn't score, made a respectable showing.

For Newman, Gary Leucht nailed 14 points, Mennen 10, John Skram and Rich Wolf six each, with Joe Kienast getting the other two.

Belmond's froshmores played what was probably their poorest game of the season in losing 64 to 48. They stayed on the Junior Knights' heels for the better part of two quarters, but faded later in the half to trail 33-18. It was no contest the rest of the way as the host team won 64-48, leading at times by as much as 20 points.

Varsity triumphs, 26 to 18—

Lion wrestlers beaten by Broncos

SPORTS

Coach Don Jones' Bronco wrestlers found unexpectedly stiff opposition when they went to Clear Lake on Wednesday night of last week to tangle with the Lions.

After the first five varsity matches, Belmond trailed in team score 13 to 5; and after seven reserve matches, the Bronco forces held only a 14-13 point advantage. Belmond finally took the varsity meet 26-18 and won the reserve affair 34-15.

Key matches in the varsity meet were those at 112 and 133 pounds, both of which the Lions were hopeful of winning by upsets. Robb Dorr found Denny Cooper a determined foe at 112, but nevertheless posted three points for the Broncos with a solid 8-1 decision.

Jim Dickson was having some trouble with Chuck Miller at 133 when the burly little Bronco suffered a cut by his right eye on Miller's ear-guard. The injury clearly miffed Dickson, and he proceeded to cut his opponent down with a 12-2 decision.

Another highlight was the heavyweight match, in which unbeaten Les Steenblock was by the referee's count held to a 2-2 draw. The call of two points for Duane Schlichting on a rather dubious predicament was not noted by the scorer's table, either of the combatants or the crowd.

But at the match's end Al Deleon, Britt coach and the official of the evening, declared the count to be 2-2 and Steenblock's unblemished record had been marred. Deleon made several calls during the meet that drew vociferous objections from the Belmond spectators. He's one of north Iowa's best officials and as a general rule rarely gets caught in a controversial decision.

Dave Riedel (138 lbs.) and Wayne Smith (154) achieved the only falls for Belmond in the varsity affair. Glen Gabrielson (165), facing a very much taller and heavier foe, gave a game performance before losing by a 7-2 decision that drew complaining howls from Bronco backers several times.

In the reserve meet, Belmond raced to a 14-0 lead before Clear Lake took three matches in a row — two by falls — to make the count 14-13. Kevin Gallagher then got the Broncs back in stride with a 4-2 decision at 145 and in the following four matches a 4-4 draw by Les Andrews interrupted three quick pins by the remainder of the Belmond representatives.

Randy Turner (154) came back from a point deficit to get his man in 1:44, Mack Gabrielson (180) flattened his opponent in 1:09, and Bob McNutt put on a typical show by pinning his startled rival in 47 seconds.

Another bright spot in the reserve meet was a 4-0 decision at 120 lbs. by little Bill Broshar over a much rangicr lad.

Varsity results:

95 — Rick Schuler (CL) dec. Greg McClenahan, 7-2; 103 — Lewie Schaal (B) drew with Ray Schwichtenberg, 4-4; 112 — Dorr (B) dec. Cooper, 8-1; 120 — Jack Anderson (CL) pinned Dave McLaughlin, 1:52; 127 — Robbie Tibbits (CL) dec. Vance Jenison, 2-1; 133 — Dickson (B) dec. Miller, 12-2.

138 — Riedel (B) pinned Kirk Nelson, 2:49; 145 — Lance Campbell (B) dec. Bill Kennedy, 4-0; 154 — Smith (B) pinned Sam Kennedy, 2:10; 165 — Denny Lincicum (CL) dec. Glen Gabrielson, 7-2; 180 — Fred Whipple (B) dec. Craig Hughes, 4-0; Hwt. — Les Steenblock (B) drew with Duane Schlichting, 2-2.

Reserve results:

2nd half rally enables Broncos to whip Osage

It took the Belmond High cagers a full half of struggle to end up with a 36-36 tie here Friday night against Osage high's stubborn Imps. Then in the first 75 seconds of the last half they managed to do what they'd been unable to do in the preceding two quarters — break the game open. That minute and a quarter saw the Broncos rack up four baskets, and then expand their lead to 49-36 before the Green Devils could score.

An 87-66 victory was their final reward for "getting organized" after the half, while the Belmond full-court press — applied from time to time — made the Imps lose their cool.

It was a raggedly played first half, particularly on the Broncos' part, and the visitors led by small margins from early in the second stanza until Belmond finally edged ahead 19-18 early in the second. Osage went in front three more times before the intermission.

Gary Meyers sparked the Bronco surge in the second half, pouring in nine baskets to wind up with 29 for the evening. Terry Nelson gave him good support, adding 11 during the winning drive for a game total of 17. Murray Kloberdanz, who reaped several easy lay-ups when the Belmond press went awry, paced the Imps with 20 points.

By the end of the third quarter the Broncos had a victory virtually in their pocket with a 58-45 lead; and with only 2½ minutes of the final period gone the margin was up to 20 points, 71-51.

Bob Rise and Tim Roberts helped the Belmond cause with 10 points apiece, Doug Thompsen chalked up seven, Rich Stadtlander and Paul Bamford four apiece, Greg Fuller, Joel Gabrielson and Jim Studebaker two each.

For Osage, Dan Cockrum got 12, Jim Doudna 10, Sherman Beye and Garry Benson eight each, with Tom Hartwig adding the final six.

Coach Ted Besch drew a technical in the first half for forgetting where his seat was, and Froshmore Coach Chuck Stalker experienced a similar fate for smiling and wagging his head in disbelief over one of Referee Wally Stittworth's calls.

Stalker's freshman-sophomore crew handed the Junior Imps their second North Iowa conference defeat of the season, 36-28, in the curtain-raiser. The Belmond boys had considerable trouble keeping a lead, but a couple of quick baskets just before halftime sent them to the dressing room with a 19-15 advantage.

Lee Barkema meshed 10 points in the Junior Bronc victory, Ronnie Ginapp and Rick Hawley adding eight apiece. Osage had a good, aggressive froshmore outfit and could to tough to beat on their home floor.

Games were played for recreation. Dinner was furnished by the hostess at noon.

At 2:00 p. m. the senior 4-H girls joined the others for the regular meeting. It was decided that Nancy Smith should look into buying a camera for the club to use.

Nancy Smith gave a demonstration on "Making White Sauce". Lennea Groom demonstrated "Why Cream the Shortening and the Sugar?" A movie on "Pan Size" was shown.

There were 17 members present and one guest, Linda Pals of Belmond, a friend of Nancy Smith. The leaders are Mrs. Jack Freese and Mrs. John Smith.

Alpha circle meeting held with 17 present

Alpha circle was held on Thursday at the Congregational church with 17 ladies present. A New Year's devotion was given by Mrs. Robert Fanselow and Mrs. Vergene Andrews on how we can better our lives in the coming year. They later served the lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bailey left Sunday morning on a trip to Los Angeles, Calif. Their daughter Cindy is staying with Mrs. Alta Burt, during their absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hansen were Sunday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blair of New Providence.

"Why Be Sick When You Can Be Well?"

Dear Friend:

We are healthy most of the time because of our body's amazing adaptive ability. Most of the body's function is done without our even being aware of it. We do not need to tell our hearts to beat, our lungs to breathe, our muscles to move or tissues to replace themselves. When we eat a meal, the flow of the blood to the stomach increases, the glands automatically produce juices aiding in digestion. The body temperature remains at 96.6 degrees even if the outside temperature is over 100 degrees or freezing cold, and the pupil of the eye dilates as to the brightness of light. There are literally thousands of functions the body performs unconsciously. Even foreign substances entering the body are destroyed by nature's defense system.

Every action of the body depends upon the brain to generate the power and send it through the vast nervous system to supply the organs with nerve energy by displaced vertebrae in the spine and some part of the body may suffer without you even knowing it.

Chiropractors are trained to find and correct this nerve interference by gentle spinal adjustments, allowing every organ to regain its full supply of nerve energy and to function properly.

Let us help you to keep healthy.

Sincerely,
Dr. W. W. Weisbrod

VOL. 48 NO. 18 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, JAN. 26, 1967 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

It was quite a party they had up at the Goodell Elementary school a week ago Monday night, when the raging blizzard brought highway traffic to a stop and 42 travelers had to put up at the school for the night. Since Teachers Dorothy McNeal, Aggie Robbins and Clarice Carlson couldn't get home, either, they were right on hand to serve as hostesses for the occasion — with Janitor Roy Boller as the unofficial "host".

Mrs. McNeal made cookies, sandwiches in goodly number were turned out by the others, and a reportedly fine time was enjoyed by the whole aggregation. In due time, the kids were put to bed in the classrooms; and their elders made out as best they could sleepwise in the multi-purpose room.

A lot of geography was represented by the unexpected guests. There was a family from Brandon, Manitoba, Canada. Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Nebraska were represented. Some were "almost home," but couldn't make it the rest of the way — like Mr. and Mrs. Guy Peters (of the Mello Maid) and their two sons, who found the last five miles to Belmond just too precarious to negotiate with visibility a virtual "zero".

Bob Gray, BHS social studies instructor, has been notified that three Belmond High students ranked high in the 31st annual Current Affairs Contest recently conducted by Time magazine. Greg Kessler, Ted Berns and Linda Hanson each scored 93 per cent on the questions dealing with such informational categories as business, sports, entertainment, science, religion, literature and the arts, national and foreign affairs. A grade of 94 to 100 was regarded a "distinguished" performance; which puts the BHS trio in a pretty good class, themselves.

"Put YOURSELF in the picture" is the hopeful invitation of the Belmond chapter of the American Field Service as the effort continues toward obtaining a family to play host to an AFS student next school year. It is the suspicion of the AFS board that some families that would make excellent hosts for a foreign student simply have not thought of themselves in that role. The Hugh Clarkes, who had Valorie Bayley of South Africa in their home during the 1964-65 school year, will readily assure you that theirs was an experience they will treasure for a lifetime.

Deadline for having applications in to the AFS board for consideration as a host family is Feb. 1. There are dozens of Belmond families — in the near-by countryside as well as in town — that could qualify.

Expense? Well, mainly that of having another mouth to feed. Perhaps a few other incidentals, but the cost is not burdensome (and is deductible). It should be a normal, well adjusted household with an "unemployed" mother. The family needs either to have — or HAVE had — a child of high school age. The theory is that the best way to learn how a high-schooler ticks is to live with one. Where YOUR student might be from, you don't know until the assignment is made. Rev. M. L. Jones is the host-family chairman. He'll be glad to fill you in on the details.

A note (with subscription renewal check) from Mrs. Stanley Shahan at Las Vegas, Nev., boasts that the temperature was 55 on the day written — Jan. 18 — but adds that it cools off during the nights to 25 to 30 degrees. Of course, last weekend we were matching those Las Vegas temperatures. Incidentally, Mrs. Bill Stadtlander wondered where we got that estimated -20 for Tuesday night of last week. Said their outside thermometer registered -33 a little after midnight. . . . Reports we got just didn't seem to agree. Anyway, when it gets as much as 20 below, we say — give or take 10 or 12 degrees, who cares?

Belmond's Jaycee-Ettes, in endeavoring to clean-up the Community Chest campaign, have — understandably — run into some unusual problems. They are determined to finish up as completely as possible by the end of this month and could use all the cooperation they can get (and then some).

Up to this week, contributions totalled $3,614. That's more than $2,300 under the goal — which is bad news.

Some business places that were solicited before the tornado will find, if they look into it, that their checks were never cashed. That means the envelope containing them blew away; and it's urged by the Jaycee-Ettes that the checks be replaced. Persons missed may leave donations at the bank.

What local civic groups were unable to achieve in the way of an entertainment center for teenagers of the community, Helge Eide and his wife Shirlie apparently have been able to accomplish. Last week they opened what they call the Win-Mill-Inn, a youth recreation center, in the former skating rink on Luick's Lane at the northeast corner of town.

The Eides are not deluding themselves that they've struck something that'll get 'em rich quick. But they have recognized the crying need for a well supervised "hang out" for the kids, and hope the Win-Mill-Inn may turn out to be just that.

Last weekend, the recreation center enjoyed good patronage. It offers space for dancing to juke box music, a number of coin-op pool tables, and will provide its customers with a variety of refreshments. Helge WANTS to see the kids have FUN. On the other hand, he hasn't much time for rowdyism. Looks like the Win-Mill-Inn could be what the doctor ordered.

THERE WAS PLENTY of information to be exchanged by the gentlemen above last week when Ben R. Barbee (left) of Abilene, Tex., visited with R. B. Thompson during the Texan's two-day stay in Belmond. Mr. Barbee is president of the Agricultural Products division of Anderson, Clayton Co., which the end of this month will obtain ownership of Tomco Genetic Giant by purchase of the common stock of the Belmond-based seed firm. Mr. Thompson, erstwhile Tomco president, will continue in management of the local firm and will also have supervision over A-C's Paymaster Seed Farms, which raise cotton and sorghum seed for planting purposes. The seed farms are located at Aiken, Tex., and Leoti, Kans.

Radio personality coming here—

Farm Clinic speakers to include Lee Kline

Lee Kline, one of the midwest's most popular radio personalities, will headline the afternoon program when the Belmond Chamber of Commerce puts on its Farm Clinic for farmers of the Belmond territory on Saturday, Feb. 4.

He has made "Lee Kline's Notebook" one of the very top attractions on the broadcast schedule of radio station WHO at Des Moines — and it will be excerpts from some of these entertaining interviews that will comprise his offering before the farm audience.

Local industries and businesses are helping distribute free tickets for the clinic, and any farmer who so far has failed to obtain one is urged to "ask around" in order to make sure of getting one. Tickets will be limited to 700 in number.

Don Bunnell, who heads the Chamber's Farm Clinic committee, believes a program of extraordinary interest and value is shaping up. He will extend a welcome to the farm guests and Keith Wiggins of the Central Soya staff will serve as master-of-ceremonies.

Factory representatives from International Harvester, John Deere, Triggs Manufacturing and New Idea will be allotted an hour and a half after the morning program's start at 9:00 o'clock to tell "What's New in Farm Machinery."

Between 10:40 a. m. and noon, the clinic guests will hear from: Everett Bierman of Fort Wayne, Ind., director of public relations for Central Soya, on "New Horizons for Soybeans;" Charles Wilmarth, Tomco Genetic Giant research director, "Narrow-row Spacings in Corn Planting;" and M. R. "Bob" Cox, Armour Agricultural Chemical company, on "Fertilizer Application for Maximum Yield."

During the noon hour when a roast beef dinner will be served cafeteria style in the BHS gymnasium, country music will be supplied by a musical group headed by Gary Gabrielson.

Clinic guests will return to Luick Memorial Auditorium for the afternoon program, which will be led off by Lee Kline, as County Extension Director Bob Berhnardt from Clarion introduces the speakers.

Three outstanding specialists from the extension staff of Iowa State university at Ames will deal with their respective fields. Dr. Harold Gunderson, entomologist, will have "Insect Control" as his topic; Dr. E. P. Sylwester, weed specialists, will talk on "Herbicides;" and Dr. Robert Lambe, plant pathologist, will discuss "Plant Diseases."

Opportunity will be provided to direct questions to these experts before the program concludes at 3:30 p. m.

Several booths will be set up in the gymnasium to give farmers attending the clinic a chance to inspect products carried by local dealers in farm supplies.

Awarding of a number of valuable door prizes will be an additional feature of the clinic.

Aid Camp Fire, city projects—

Lions plan winter sports banquet

Under auspices of the Belmond Lions club, participants in the Belmond Community High school winter sports program will once again be honored this spring with a public banquet.

Such a function was sponsored some time ago by the Lions, and later by the Belmond Jaycees, but for some years now the wrestlers and basketball players have not enjoyed the recognition that the football squad is given annually at the Gridiron Banquet.

President Bill Walrod named Pat Gallagher as chairman and Ernest Doeringsfeld and George Sharp as fellow committee members responsible for lining up a date for the affair and obtaining a speaker. It is probable that the banquet will be held the last week in March.

A motion on sponsoring the banquet was passed at the Lions' regular meeting Wednesday night of last week at the Olde Belmond Inn. The club has changed its meeting time from Tuesday noons to Wednesday evenings, effective the first of this year, in hope that the night meetings will enable it to enlarge its membership.

As another matter of business, the Lions voted to pick up $200 of the cost the city recently incurred for planting of new trees in the park. The total expense of this project was $800.

Also, the club agreed to meet the cost of taking Belmond Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds to the annual Heart of the Hawkeye candy party at Des Moines this Saturday. They will be transported by bus.

Because the local Camp Fire Girls were unable to conduct their usual candy sale here last fall following the tornado, the council sponsored a special councilwide sale of candy in the Belmond members' behalf. It raised enough money to pay one-half a week's fee at Camp Hantesa near Boone for 50 Belmond girls next summer, plus a $200 cash donation to the local Camp Fire treasury.

Service bars for attachment to their Lions pins were presented by President Walrod to eight members of the club. Bars representing 15 years of membership went to Cecil Carstens, Ed Kennedy, Dr. A. M. Larson, R. W. Courson and R. B. Thompson. Ten-year bars went to George Sharp, Pat Gallagher and Lloyd Lerdal.

Bars were also received for Carroll Hensel and Kenneth Kinseth, 10-year members, who no longer live in Belmond.

City fathers postpone appointing councilman

Action on appointment of a city councilman-at-large to fill the vacancy left by Dr. A. M. Nelson's resignation was postponed Monday night, pending consultation with a preferred choice to see if the man in mind would accept the post. It is hoped by the city fathers that the way will be clear to make the appointment at a special meeting next Monday night.

Two ordinances were passed at this week's meeting. Ordinance No. 150 prohibits the use of trailers or mobile homes for residential use ("for human habitation," specifically) in the city of Belmond except in a duly licensed trailer park.

Ordinance No. 149 rezones Lots 1 and 2 in Block 10 of the Original town of Belmond — which are the lots immediately east of the Belmond Greenhouse — for commercial instead of residential use.

Jack Bayliss was signed to a contract to salvague usable materials from the city dump, proceeds to be divided equally with the city. Lou McDowell of Sioux Falls, S. D., originally held such a contract but had failed to carry through on his end of the agreement.

Tony Ennen's resignation from the street department was accepted and Theodore Kaduce was hired to replace him. Ennen will be retiring on social security on Feb. 1, but will take up the duties of dump superintendent at that time as the pay with not disqualify him for his retirement benefits.

Raises in pay were approved for several city employees who did not get increases when a number of salaries were raised last summer. Works Superintendent Glen Eccles will receive $535 monthly instead of $510, City Clerk Lois Hammond will get $400 instead of $380, and Lloyd Finn of the street department will get $320 instead of $300.

Payment of another $2,000 in bonds outstanding on curb and gutter construction was approved by the council. These bonds were not scheduled for payment until 1969-70.

The city fathers approved the re-election of R. G. "Bud" Packard are fire chief for the current year.

Three BHS boys honored by ISU

AMES (Special) — Iowa State university has notified 148 outstanding high school students that they have been admitted to next fall's freshman class "With Recognition." Ted Berns, Charles Christenson and Neil Kalkwarf of the Belmond Community High school Class of '67 are in the group.

Records of these students at Iowa State will carry the notation that they were admitted "With Recognition" for their high academic achievements in high school. The selected students rank in the top three to five per cent of the entering freshman class and near the top of the high school seniors in the nation.

Each student receives a congratulatory letter from Iowa State and their principals are sent certificates for presentation to them.

Demonstration on furniture repair Tuesday evening

Demonstrations on refinishing used furniture will be given next Tuesday at the high school industrial arts building commencing at 7:30 p. m., and lasting until 9:30 or 10:00 p. m., according to Geraldine Steele, Wright county extension home economist.

Jack Manders, local faculty member, will show how to remove the old finish, how to remove stains and grease, and the steps in getting the piece ready to finish.

E. H. (Ted) Zook will show the proper way of re-gluing, making simple repairs, removing dents and bruises, sanding and filling nail holes and cracks.

Allen Suby, high school shop instructor, will demonstrate primarily stains and finishes for wood.

Several pieces of furniture which were damaged in the tornado, and have already been refinished, will be shown. There will be a question and answer period.

Mrs. Steele says, "If you are thinking of refinishing, you should take a good look at your piece of furniture and decide if it is really worth the effort and expense of refinishing, if you would have the ability to do the job and if you have the tools and equipment."

These demonstrations will give information which will help answer these questions.

Mrs. Steele adds that persons interested in a special workshop on home planning, remodeling, and renovation, to be scheduled soon under the direction of Naomi Shank, specialist in housing from Iowa State university, Ames, should contact Mrs. Richard Woodin at the Belmond library.

"Bill Johnsons" lead all the rest in sales for Luthern Brotherhood

It was definitely "Bill Johnson Year" in Lutheran Brotherhood Life and health insurance sales circles during the year 1966. From the society's headquarters at Minneapolis comes word that:

(1) William R. "Bill" Johnson of Belmond was top producer of Lutheran Brotherhood's 1,000-man field force when he wrote $3,142,946 in face value of life insurance.

(2) The William A. "Bill" Johnson agency of Minneapolis led all 84 of the society's general agencies in the U. S. and Canada by putting $15,844,814 in force last year.

It was noted that the society — not surprisingly in view of the Lutheran church's Scandinavian leanings — has 24 Johnsons in its field force. But the local Johnson and W. A. of Minneapolis are the only "Bills" in that number.

For a society whose policyholder prospect field is restricted, Lutheran Brotherhood hasn't been doing too badly. Writing Lutherans in 45 states and five Canadian provinces, it had by the end of '66 more than $2.6 billion in life insurance in force, backed by assets in excess of $367 million.

Bena Rubendall's funeral services held on Tuesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Albert Rubendall, 67, were conducted Tuesday afternoon at the Congregational church (United Church of Christ), with Rev. J. Samuel Shelby officiating and Fulton Funeral Home in charge.

Burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Pallbearers were Elmer Dorenkamp of Meservey, Clarence Sandry of Cresco, Raymond Ainger, Harold Ainger, George Sharp and Harold Huse.

Mrs. Rubendall has been ill for three weeks, her death resulting from complications stemming from an abdominal tumor. She died at Mercy hospital in Mason City last Friday evening.

A lifelong resident of Belmond, Bena Annette Dorenkamp was born here on Oct. 10, 1899, daughter of Jacob and Stientji (Stadtlander) Dorenkamp. She was married to Albert Rubendall on Dec. 23, 1924. One child was born to them, Loretta (Mrs. James) Kimball, now of La Mesa, Calif.

Besides her husband, daughter and five grandchildren, Mrs. Rubendall is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Hugh Sharp, Mrs. Francis (Fannie) Sandry and Mrs. Harry (Louise) Larson, all of Belmond; and three brothers, Carl Dorenkamp of Meservey, Jake Dorenkamp of Thornton and Steve Dorenkamp of Goodell.

In addition to her parents, Mrs. Rubendall was preceded in death by a sister.

NORMAN P. BOHNING NOW CAN FLY "WHIRLYBIRDS"

FT. RUCKER, ALA. (AHTNC) — Norman P. Bohning, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Bohning of Route 1, Belmond, graduated Jan. 17 as an aviator from the Army Primary Helicopter School at Ft. Rucker, Ala., and was commissioned a warrant officer.

During the 20-week course, he was taught various fire techniques and tactical maneuvers for helicopter supporting ground troops in Viet Nam. He also received instruction in helicopter maintenance and survival techniques.

Home talent play tryouts scheduled

"The Girls in 509," a rousing comedy in two acts written by Howard Teichmann, has been chosen by the Belmond Community Theater for its 1967 presentation. Tentative plans for giving more than one play this season were wiped out by the October tornado.

Lynn Sorum will direct the play and announces that try-outs will be held at Luick Memorial Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

It has as its central characters a pair of hermit ladies who went into seclusion in a run-down, though once fashionable, New York hotel on that black night in November of 1932 when Herbert Hoover was defeated for the presidency.

Upon their discovery, the press descends upon the eccentric pair along with the national chairmen of both major political parties and exceedingly strange proceedings develop.

Twelve characters comprise the cast, which on Broadway was headed by Imogene Coca and Peggy Wood. Nine of the dozen roles are for males.

Any aspiring thespians who would be interested in obtaining parts in the play are encouraged by Mr. Sorum to show up for the try-outs. The comedy will be presented March 28-29.

Land bank parley will attract 500 here on Tuesday

More than 500 members and guests from Franklin, Wright, Butler, Hancock and Cerro Gordo counties are expected to attend the annual stockholders meeting of the Hampton Federal Land Bank association here next Tuesday evening in Luick Memorial auditorium. A dinner in the high school gymnasium will precede the meeting at 6:30 o'clock.

The program for the meeting will be tied to the 50th Anniversary observance of the Federal Land Bank system. The observance will recognize the contributions made by farmers and ranchers to the economic strength of the nation. The theme of the anniversary si "America's Farmers: Providers of Plenty."

Special Golden Anniversary features of the meeting will include cutting of a cake commemorating the Land Bank's 50 years of service to agriculture and the showing of a new movie, "Providers of Plenty," which tells the story of modern American agriculture.

Kenneth Showalter of Hampton, association president, will be chairman for the business session. Featured speaker will be R. Edward Baur, chairman of the board of directors of the Farm Credit Banks of Omaha. Max J. Holmes, manager of the Hampton association, will give the annual report on the association's lending activities.

Women from the Belmond High school hot-lunch staff will serve the meal.

Holmes noted that two directors will be elected to three-year terms on the association board during the business meeting.

Directors of the association are: Kenneth Showalter, Hampton, president; Roger Rust, Sheffield, vice president; Raymond Wickham, Dumont; Chester Hill, Belmond; Oscar Holmes, Dows; and Alvin Benson, Clarion.

TRAGER BACK TO ELDORA

Dennis Trager, 17, on Jan. 9 was returned to the state training school at Eldora for violatioin of parole. He had been at Eldora earlier this year but was placed on parole during good behavior. Because of his involvement in a juvenile beer party and several other escapades in recent months, his parole office declared the parole revoked.

Tax money goes to five libraries

Trustees of the Belmond public library on Tuesday of last week were informed officially of the amount the library will receive from the special countywide library tax being levied in Wright for the first time this year. It will give rural residents throughout the county free borrowing privileges at the county's five libraries.

Total yield of the tax levy will be $8,398.20. Eagle Grove's library will receive 35 per cent of the amount, Belmond's and Clarion's each 24 per cent, Rowan's 9½ and Dows' 7½ per cent.

Dollar allotments will be: Eagle Grove $2,939.37, Belmond and Clarion each $2,015.56, Rowan $797.83 and Dows $629.87.

In addition, the five libraries will be dividing evenly a $5,000 federal grant under the Library Services Act awarded Wright county for extending library services to rural patrons. Each of the libraries will receive $900 and the remaining $500 will be used for transporting and processing the new books to be purchased with the grant money.

In view of the increasing patronage of the Belmond library, its trustees instructed the librarian, Mrs. Richard Woodin, to extend library hours for a three-month trial period beginning Feb. 1.

Under the new hour schedule, the library will be open Tuesday and Friday mornings from 9:00 a. m. until 12:00 noon. If the additional hours appear to be serving a useful purpose, the new practice will be continued indefinitely.

Gaezena Crabtree dies at hospital following stroke

Mrs. Gaezena Pauline Crabtree, 78, died Saturday morning at Belmond Community hospital after an illness of three weeks. Her death was caused by a stroke and followed by three months and a week that of her husband, Samuel Crabtree, who was one of the six local people who lost their lives in the tornado on Oct. 14.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at the Calvary Baptist church, Rev. Louis Miller officiating and Fulton Funeral Home in charge. Burial was in the Belmond cemetery.

Pallbearers were Roy Crabtree of Fort Dodge, Donald State of Galt, Dale Maley of Garner, Charles Wilmarth, George Crawford, Sr., and Jack Fulton.

Mrs. Crabtree was born Aug. 16, 1888, at Klemme, daughter of George and Sarah (Bohning) Frohling. She was married at Clarion on Sept. 4, 1913, to Samuel Crabtree. They were the parents of a son George, now of Washington, D. C., and a daughter, Margarete (Mrs. William) Stadtlander, who lives here.

Also surviving are six grandchildren and four sisters — Mrs. Clair (Elma) Clark of Port Hueneme, Calif., Mrs. Frank (Sarah) Rockwood of Corwith, Mrs. Georgie Fulton and Mrs. Peter (Ida) English.

Besides her parents, a brother and sister preceded Mrs. Crabtree in death.

McMURRAY ENDS LEAVE

Marlene Suntken, Meier brothers top honor roll

Marlene Suntken, a sophomore, was the only Belmond Community High scholl student to pull down straight-A grades for both the second quarter of the school year and the first semester, Principal Ernest Doeringsfeld reports in announcing the semester honor roll.

Close on her heels were a pair of freshman brothers, Irvin and Philippe Meier, who missed A averages by a shade for the second nine weeks but nevertheless had grade averages of A for the semester.

Only other A average on the honor roll was that of Eugene Pals, a junior, for the second quarter. He had a strong B average for the semester.

Twenty-one seniors earned honor roll mention with B averages: Ted Berns, Barbara Burt, Charles Christenson, Glenda Cunningham, Margaret Hruska, Neil Kalkwarf, Marcia Kelley, Dixie Lee, Jean McLaughlin, Pam Meints.

Craig Mennenga, Dave Moe, Barbara Pals, Margaret Prince, Ann Reasoner, Roxanne Slining, Linda Suntken, Doug Thompsen, Linda Thompson, Susan Thompson and Larry Zeiger.

Juniors numbering an even dozen, including Gene Pals, made the honor roll. The others were Paul Bamford, Velma Basener, Kermit Bohning, Glen Gabrielson Deb Misner, Barbara Olson, Kathy Slining, Laura Thompson, Linda Tomson, Janell Wagner and Rae Jean Willey.

Twenty sophomores, in addition to Marlene Suntken, gained the honor list. Those with B averages were: Linda Aitken, Ardith Allen, Evelyn Basener, Brian Bateson, Ellen Bonte, Shirley Buterbaugh, Judy Carwell, Wanda Davids, Karen DeYong, Vicki Dockwell.

Also Greg McClenahan, Shannon McNulty, Marge Meyer, Connie Payer, Carol Sharp, Daryl Steenhard, Dick Thompson, Linda Trager, Nancy Johnston and Rachel Kalkwarf.

Fifteen freshmen had B averages, to join the Meier brothers on the honor roll: David Banning, Rebecca Bell, Vicki Boelman, Richard Bonte, Geraldine Didio, Allen Halfpop.

Lennie Johnson, Martha Jones, Kathryn Kelley, Michael McNutt, Lois Pals, Gloria Porter, Lewis Schaal, Peggy Schroder and Diane Tracy.

INFANT SON OF ANDERSONS DIES 3 DAYS AFTER BIRTH

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning of last week at Bethesda Lutheran church at Ames for the infant son born the previous Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson of Ames.

The baby, a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Anderson, died on Monday.

Burial rites for the infant were conducted at St. Olaf cemetery on Wednesday afternoon, following the funeral at Ames.

Veachel Silvey dies at age 52; rites on Monday

A sudden heart attack last Friday afternoon brought death to Veachel R. Silvey, 52, for the past 10 years proprietor of the Silvey John Deere Implement company here. He had for the past two years been in poor health from arthritis and complications, but the unexpectedness of his death nevertheless came as a shock to his family and friends.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Calvary Baptist church, with Rev. Louis Miller officiating and Johnston Funeral Home in charge. Burial was in the cemetery at Alden.

Was born in Kentucky

Mr. Silvey was born at Smith Grove, Ky., on March 12, 1914, son of Byrd and Goldie Silvey. When he was a lad, the family moved to Iowa and he received his education in the school at Rowan.

After reaching adulthood, he farmed for a time. During World Was II he served in the U. S. Army and following his discharge he was employed by the John Deere company at Iowa Falls. He was married on Jan. 27, 1951, to Frances Frailey at Clarion. They moved to Belmond when he acquired the implement store here in 1957.

Seven children survive

Surviving in addition to his wife are four sons, Jerry, Tony, Tim and Danny; and three daughters, Barbara, Judy and Linda.

He also leaves five brothers — Ruel and Emory of Iowa Falls, Lawrence of Greene, Elmer of Alden and Cecil of Dows; and two sisters, Mrs. Maxine Kilsmier of Buckeye and Mrs. Tinselene Ziestman of Iowa Falls.

Mr. Silvery's parents preceded him in death.

County officer 32 years—

F. Ross Henry dies at 69 years

F. Ross Henry of Clarion, who had served in Wright county public office for 32 years, died very unexpectedly Saturday night at the age of 69. His wife Ruth discovered his body Sunday morning, slouched in a chair before the television.

Mr. Henry had had to take leave of absence from his job as Wright county assessor for a number of weeks in 1964 after suffering a heart attack, but had seemingly enjoyed good health since his recovery.

He had expressed no complaints to family, friends or associates about feeling ill Saturday and had, in fact, returned to his office when the courthouse was closed in the afternoon to catch up on some work. His death was apparently due to a second heart attack.

A resident of Goldfield when he ran successfully for the office of county auditor in 1935, he continued in that position for 13 years, resigning with one year of his seventh term remaining in order to accept appointment to the newly created office of county assessor.

He was highly regarded among his fellow officeholders and last November he was elected for the 12th time as secretary-treasurer of the Iowa State Association of Assessors.

In 1961 he was presented by the same organization with a plaque "in appreciation of invaluable services."

Last September at a convention of the International Association of Assessing Officers held at Toronto, Canada, Mr. Henry was awarded the 1966 Zangerle Award. This denoted that the Assessors Bulletin he edited for the Iowa association had been judged best among all entered in the annual competition for such publications conducted by the international association.

Funeral services for Mr. Henry were held Tuesday afternoon at the United Presbyterian church at Clarion, Rev. Curtiss Russell officiating and Eyler Funeral Home in charge. Burial was in the Evergreen cemetery at Clarion.

County officers and courthouse employees attended the funeral in a body, as the courthouse remained closed during the afternoon out of respect to the late assessor's memory.

Besides his wife Ruth, Mr. Henry is survived by a son, Chester of Colorado Springs, Colo.; and a daughter, Mrs. James (Jeanette) Slaikeu of Thor. Another son, Robert, preceded him in death at the age of 21.

The Wright county conference board is faced with a keen necessity of replacing Mr. Henry as quickly as possible, as the assessor's office is currently facing a couple of extraordinary problems.

One involves the handling of assessments on storm-damaged property at Belmond; the other is concerned with the state-ordered reappraisal of real estate in the county, for which no money was appropriated by the board in its budget for the present year.

Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward. — Job 5:7

"Proportionate sharing" needs income factor, too

There is not much question but what the 62nd Iowa General Assembly feels itself under more compulsion than any previous legislature to take a major step toward increasing state aid for education. Despite some slight improvement in this regard, Iowa remains 47th among the 50 state relative to the percentage of public school costs met by state revenue — now 13.5 per cent. This is drastically under the national average of 39.1 per cent.

Because continually increasing salaries for teachers and administrators have put property taxes in a real bind — and because it's the hope and intention of the educators that the level shall CONTINUE to go up — the Iowa State Education association has been bringing heavy pressure to bear on the legislators. Unless more state money is made available, school districts are going to become extremely hard pressed to meet these salary demands. It can well be said that some of them are already hard pressed.

The ISEA's answer to the problem is "proportionate sharing" concerning which much has been published in recent months. This is the ISEA plan for what it regards as equitable distribution of such additional state funds as should be appropriated for school aid. And there are those who will accuse the educators of being better theoreticians in arriving at their formula, than practical economists.

Under "proportionate sharing," the actual or market value of property in a district would be used as the primary basis for determining what percentage of a school system's costs should be met from state revenue. Of course, that percentage figure would take into account the amount of ADDITIONAL state aid voted by the General Assembly — and the ISEA would like to see it increased to 40 per cent of the total public school costs for the state.

The ISEA quietly admits one major fallacy in its "proportionate sharing" formula when it suggests that the formula is "flexible" and would lend itself to additional factors. It goes further to admit that "the ability of a school district to pay for education should be measured in terms of the income of its people (as well as real property value)." This information is not so easily obtainable as actual property values, but in its absence FAIR "proportionate sharing" would be impossible to devise.

For example, such school districts as that of Ames — where extensive state ownership of property quite drastically diminishes the value of real property on the tax rolls — has as compensation an extraordinarily high level of average income. Without due allowance for this income factor, Ames would receive much more state aid that its actual economic circumstances might require.

Heavily populated areas, in general, would be in much the same position as Ames. Much of their ability to pay local school costs would be measurable in terms of INCOME, rather than property value. This is a serious discrepancy in the "proportionate sharing" formula and would need to be rectified by a counter-balancing income factor, or one type of inequity in distribution of state aid will merely be exchanged for another.

We might add that the powerful influence of the ISEA to create a tax situation that will be favorable to a continuing rise in school teaching and administrative salaries should be accompanied by a sense of responsibility to assure that the public gets its money's worth.

As matters stand, too many mediocre or plainly incompetent teachers happily "go along for the ride" as salaries go up and up. We feel the ISEA should be equally committed to working out a reasonable mode of teacher evaluation that does not require automatic raises where they're not warranted. It seems not unfair to expect that the workman be worthy of his hire.

New owners of Tomco seem sort that will "care"

Last weekend we had the opportunity of chatting for a while with Ben R. Barbee of Abilene, Tex., who is president of the division of Anderson, Clayton & Co., of which Tomco Genetic Giant will soon become a part. We don't mind saying that we were just a little anxious about the sort of impression we might derive from our meeting with him — because we Belmondites have a warm spot in our hearts for Tomco, a local industry that has "made good."

It gives us satisfaction, therefore, to report that we felt relieved after our conversation with the visiting gentleman. He left us with a conviction that Tomco is not destined to be simply swallowed up and become a mere minor cog in a huge industrial machine, wholly robbed of the "personality" that it has acquired during its more than 30 years of existence here.

Anderson, Clayton IS a large and diverse business complex with a tremendously wide range of interests. But we got the feeling that, if Ben Barbee is representative of the type of management personnel that directs the firm's activities, Belmond is not in danger of becoming simply an anonymous colored pin on a map delineating the sites of Anderson, Clayton subsidiaries.

Mr. Barbee was up here in our frosty clime for only a couple of days, as final aspects of the transaction with Tomco were being worked out. But we got the impression that during his short stay, he was not only learning WHERE Belmond is — but WHAT Belmond is . . . a bunch of community-minded, conscientious people with a keen concern for the future of their town and a yen to be friends with all who sink their stakes — or their dollars — here.

We told Mr. Barbee that that's how it is. And he seemed to know just what we were talking about. We have an optimistic feeling that a very satisfactory relationship is going to develop between Belmond and Anderson, Clayton. We have equal confidence that our new Texas friends have ambitious plans for Tomco and are determined to see it continue to grow and gain stature in its field.

Students would vote for dropping of "finals"

We've heard of few statues erected to educators. The truth to tell, we can't think of ANY, right offhand. Educators just aren't the dramatic type of individuals that prompt such public acclaim.

But if a movement SHOULD be set afoot to preserve in memory for generations to come the name of ANY educator, we would guess that President Howard Bowen of the University of Iowa might be as likely a candidate as any.

This gentleman has flatly and publicly declared himself in favor of eliminating final exams! We doubt that there is a student anywhere in this fair land of ours who would not give next week's allowance toward casting Dr. Bowen's likeness in bronze if he can sell the teaching profession on the wisdom of his recommendation.

A school year with no finals? What a prospect for a student to contemplate! Dr. Bowen emphasizes his point that in the course of a college year, nearly three weeks' time, or 10 per cent of the academic year, is devoted to preparing for and taking final exams.

From the time standpoint, a typical student might concede that he's got to be there anyway, so to him the time element is less of a factor than the Iowa president's supplementary point. Added Dr. Bowen:

"The adverse psychological effect on students of final examination periods, and the amount of time devoted to the examination periods, are excessive in relation to the educational returns obtained."

Adverse psychological effect? You can say THAT again, Dr. Bowen. We didn't realize that those on the teaching and administrative side KNEW!

We can think back to the early and middle grades when reviewing for finals was such an aggravating trial, and to our college days when cramming for a final exam was sometimes a traumatic experience that left permanent scars.

If Dr. Bowen can convince his academic brethren that finals absorb "substantial amounts of time and energy that could better be diverted to personal teaching and personal counseling," we'll personally start a movement to get him in the Hall of Fame.

True, we'll never have to prepare for another final (barring the one with St. Peter, and we doubt that any amout of cramming will help there); but the memory lingers on.

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by
IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION

INAUGURAL MESSAGE—

Gov Harold Hughes' inaugural message contained several surprises.

After being sworn in as Iowa's 36th governor, Hughes told the lawmakers, "It may surprise you to hear me say this, but I couldn't care less about my own political future beyond this present term of office . . . and I couldn't care more about what we have the opportunity to do here for the future of Iowa."

Hughes' statement did come as a surprise, since it had been generally conceded that Hughes probably would run for the United States senate in 1968 or for an unprecedented fourth term as governor.

BUT PERHAPS THE BIGGEST surprise was on the governor. In his 8,000 word message, there was no mention of the so-called right-to-work law and other labor legislation. Reporters called this fact to the attention of the governor's office and it was discovered that a page had been inadvertantly dropped out of the governor's speech.

A correction was made immediately. But it was too late, as the governor had completed the speech. However, the governor's speech is printed in the legislative journals and includes the missing page.

HE REITERATED HIS BELIEF that the section of the 1947 law which prohibits various types of union-management contract provisions and is generally known as the right-to-work law should be modified.

Hughes wants to eliminate the statuatory prohibition of union shop contracts between employers and employees when the contract is agreed upon by both parties.

FEW NEW PROPOSALS—

The governor's inaugural message contained few new programs. Most of the proposals had been made during the past campaign or in previous sessions. The governor, first Democrat and the fifth man in Iowa history to be sworn in as governor for a third term, noted that control of the legislature is divided with Republicans in charge of the house, 89-35, and Democrats of the Senate, 32-29. He surmised that the two-party system is on trial.

"If we fail" to face the big issues confronting the state that "are not partisan matters," the governor said, it "will not be the Republican or the Democratic party that will suffer — but our two-party system itself."

The governor's proposals included:

REPEAL OF THE PERSONAL property tax on household goods; increased homestead exemption for needy persons age 65 and older; a civil service system for state employees; a high priority for a statewide communications network including educational television and radio, telephone and data transmission; a "substantial increase" in state aid to schools.

A program for state indemnification to victims of violent crimes, a program of state aid to cities for Dutch elm disease control; and authority for the highway commission to construct toll bridges across the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, financed with bonds to be repaid from toll revenue.

INCREASES IN AID—

The state welfare board has announced increases in both old age assistance and aid to dependent children. Public assistance recipients who receive monthly old age assistance checks will receive about an eight per cent increase in March, while a majority of Iowa families receiving aid to dependent children will get an increase in monthly assistance payments beginning in February.

Welfare officials said funds are available to boost standard basic needs of ADC families from 75 to 82 per cent of the total need. This increase will result in the highest benefit payments since April of 1961 when 76 per cent was paid.

WOULD END NEPOTISM—

Congressman Neal Smith, Altoona Democrat, has again introduced a bill to prohibit nepotism in all Federal offices, departments and agencies, including the legislative, judicial and executive offices.

Smith said, "while about 30 members of the House of Representatives and the Senate have close relatives on their payroll, heads of many agencies and departments including hundreds of postmasters have also followed this practice.

"While the most recent well-publicized case has been that of the wife of Adam Clayton Powell, there are other relatives on the payroll in each branch of the government who perform little service for the salary paid. Neither political party and no one branch of our government has any monopoly on this practice."

Smith said while this is not illegal and in some cases the people actually perform their duties well, "it lends itself to abuses to too great an extent and discourages other employees in the department from thinking that good service will be a principal criteria for determining promotions."

For whom named, uncertain—

Wright county had interesting early history

Wright county is in the rather strange situation of not knowing for sure where it got its name.

Dating back to the day when some of the original settlers were still around, there were two schools of thought on the subject. There was quite a number of emigres from New York state — and they believed the county was named in honor of Silas Wright, a distinguished statesman of his day and the 12th governor of New York.

On the other hand, Indiana was well represented among the early settlers, too (Belmond, in fact, was briefly known as Crown Point, named for the Hoosier community of Crown Point) — and they insisted the county name paid honor to Gov. Joseph A. Wright of Indiana.

Was Indian buffer zone

When Indian possession of this territory was still a matter of consideration to the U. S. government, the land that today is Wright county lay in a neutral territory that was set up to divide the Sioux tribes of the north from the Sacs and Foxes to the south for peace-keeping purposes.

This area in 1834 was incorporated into the territory of Michigan; two years later, it became a part of Wisconsin territory; and in 1838 became the territory of Iowa with 16 counties and a population of 23,000. Because of the similarity of name, it is of perhaps some interest that the first Iowa legislature was held at the village of Belmont, Wis., in October of 1836.

When the first movement to make Iowa a state was legally launched in 1844, the proposed boundaries included no land west of Kossuth county and extended 30 miles into what is now Minnesota.

County established 1851

This proposition was unacceptable to the people, however, and when a second constitutional convention was held on May 4, 1846, it prescribed the now existing boundaries and this was accepted by a vote of the people in August of that year.

Iowa was then admitted as a state by Congressional approval on Dec. 28, 1846. Wright county was without settlements at this time and the lower tier of its present townships was attached to Buchanan county and the remainder was a part of Fayette county.

When Wright county was established in 1851, it was attached to Polk county for election, revenue and judicial purposes; in 1853 it was attached to Boone county; and in 1855 to Webster county, which also included the present territory of Hamilton and Humboldt counties.

Officers elected in 1855

First organization of Wright as a political entity took place in August of 1855, when the following county officers were elected: judge, clerk of district court, treasurer-recorder (then one office), sheriff, surveyor, coroner, school fund commissioner and prosecuting attorney.

This organization meeting was held in the log cabin of S. B. Hewett, Sr., on the Boone river. At approximately the same time, another organizational meeting was held by settlers along the Iowa river in the eastern part of the county and Henry Luick of the infant Belmond community was candidate for county judge.

"The spirit of rivaly ran high," reports Hon. B. P. Birdsall's History of Wright county, which adds reprovingly, "Had it not been for an over-anxiety on the part of the citizens at Belmond, the county seat might have been located on the east side, for, as a matter of fact, there were more actual legal voters on the east than there were on the western border of the county.

Padded the ballot box

"But in order to be doubly sure, the east-siders allowed men to vote who had not become actual voters within the true meaning of the law; hence the election was declared illegal throughout and the election on the west side prevailed."

Mr. Birdsall quoted Edwin Ballou of Rowan, Wright's oldest living pioneer when the "official history" was written in 1915, as confirming that "the east side had plenty of legal voters to have carried the day over the west side, and lost all by some of their over-anxious citizens allowing questionable men to cast their votes."

So much for political hankypanky of a century ago (it seems to be rewarded with more success in the present day and age).

County judge was powerful

Hence Goldfield (actually, the early settlement of Liberty) became the first county seat instead of Belmond "or Ontario, or some other Iowa river place, of which there were a number started with county-seat interests in view," Birdsall notes.

At that stage of American government, the county judge was a one-man power and his word was law. Says Birdsall, "He viewed and reviewed petitions and remonstrances and then decided as he saw fit, usually owing to the personal interest he might have or the location in which he chanced to reside."

Wright's first county seat, actually, was "Eagleville," a non-existent town which was a dream of eastern promoters that never materialized. In March of 1856 a petition was submitted to make Liberty the county seat, and this came to a successful vote in April of 1858.

Clarion created in '67

Here the seat of government remained until it was re-established in the center of the county — where Clarion was created — in late October of 1867.

The petition initiating the move to have the county seat set up in the center of the county was initiated in 1863. Almost simultaneously, a member of the county board from Belmond township — one John C. Cowles — asked that the northern tier of townships be separated from Wright and made a part of Hancock county. The latter petition lacked the weight of sufficient signers, however, and never gained much attention from the board of supervisors.

Originally, the new, central county seat was known as Grant and was located in Clarion township.

Grant voted as name

The latter was a geographic monstrosity of 48 sections constituted in order to get school money with which to erect school buildings. It included not only most of present Grant but parts of Lincoln, Lake and Dayton townships.

Because Iowa already had a post office named Grant, the postal department vetoed the proposed name of the county seat. Consultation of the postal guide for a substitute brought attention to Clarion in Pennsylvania, which was deemed to have a pleasant ring, and that name was selected by interested residents of the embryo city.

Drub Northwood Vikings—

Bronc cagers get revenge, 67-48

Belmond High's cagers gained an ample portion of revenge for their earlier 58-55 home court defeat at the hands of Northwood by trouncing the Vikings on their own floor Friday night, 67 to 48. The victory kept the Broncos in a tie with Buffalo Center for the North Iowa conference lead at 7-2, while it was the Vikings' fourth loss in nine games and virtually eliminated them from the title picture.

Northwood gave signs of making a game of it during the first half and it took a couple of late baskets by Terry Nelson and Tim Roberts to send the Broncos to the dressing room with a six-point lead at halftime, 30-24.

Before Belmond broke away from a 17-all tied midway through the second period, Northwood had held a lead on five occasions. At the end of the low-scoring first quarter, the Broncos were trailing 10-9. The Vikings' biggest lead came at 12-9 as the second stanza opened. Belmond gained a 26-21 advantage as the end period neared; but Northwood chopped the margin to 26-24 before the Broncos established their halftime margin.

Belmond gradually drew ahead after the intermission and got its first double-figure lead at 42-31. As the third quarter ended, though, it was back to eight points, 45-37 — and Northwood cut it to six with the first basket of the final period.

The difference was expanded to 50-39 before the Vikings scored again and remained in the neighborhood of 10 points until Belmond drew away steadily in the final stages. The biggest spread of the entire game existed at the conclusion as Dave Dirks and Jim Studebaker poked in the last two fielders.

It was the one-two punch of Tim Roberts and Gary Meyers that proved more than the Vikings could handle. Tim was strictly a hot hand, hitting accurately on outshots for eight fielders and making four-of-four from the foul line for 20 points and Gary posted 18 points on field goals.

Terry Nelson added 10 points, Greg Fuller seven, Bob Rise five, Doug Thompsen three, Dirks and Studebaker a pair apiece. Fuller saw a considerable amount of service and did some excellent rebounding in addition to his point contribution. Rich Stadtlander was out of the line-up — and will be for the rest of the season — having suffered a broken arm when he slipped on the ice a couple of days before the game.

Oscar Fewins and Tom Nelson topped the Northwood scoring with 10 apiece, followed by Orville Hogen and Brian Bestul, the Vikings' promising sophomore, with eight each. Lynn Gunderson notched seven points, Steve Aase four and Barry Bendickson one.

The Broncos connected on 14 of 28 field goal tries in the first half and were 14 for 33 in the second. Northwood made only five of 20 attempts good in the last half.

In the froshmore game, the Junior Broncos fell behind 13-4 in the opening quarter and were never able to get back in real contention — though they did briefly cut the margin to three points. They suffered their third NIC defeat, 33-25.

The Belmond underclassmen were guilty of multiple turn-overs as they tried futilely to break through their opponents' zone defense and never resorted to outshooting in an effort to soften the defense up. They trailed 19-14 at the half.

Colts' wrestlers lose at Hampton

Belmond junior's high's wrestlers were beaten 24-18 in an 8th grade meet with Hampton last Saturday afternoon and lost to the host 7th graders, 24-11.

Winning Colts in the 8th grade meet were: Jon Crawford (99 lbs.) by fall, 1:49; Jim Cullinan (100) by dec., 9-0; Duane Anderson (121) by dec., 4-3; Paul Schaefer (122) by dec., 3-2. Draws were posted by David Nelson (114) and Jim Just (165), the latter a 7th-grader but competing with the 8th grade.

Seventh grade winners for Belmond were: Mark Cullinan (85) by dec., 6-2; Russell Barkema (101) by dec., 10-2; and Steve Burt (115) by dec., 6-2. Chuck Mikesh (100) gained a 2-2 draw.

Jr. Hi matmen lose to Clear Lake

Coach Don Cleveland's junior high wrestlers were handed a 26-21 loss by Clear Lake at the Lion Cubs' gym a week ago Saturday. For Belmond, Jim Cullinan (100) got a 1:40 pin on Dave Callanan and Paul Rogalla (102) won by a fall in 59 seconds over David Muth.

Other Belmond points were posted by: Jon Crawford (99) over Nick Melhus, 6-0; David Nelson (114) over Rick Lunn, 4-2; and Steve Burt (115) over Louis Schuler, 3-0. Bob Berns (100) drew 2-2 with Hal Hackbarth.

Steve Riedel (90) lost a 6-0 decision; Duane Anderson was beaten 7-0; Paul Schaefer (122) was outpointed 7-2; Doug Dorr (123), Doug Thompson (147) and Lindsey Morris (133) lost by falls.

Britt wrestlers defeat Bronco varsity 27-15

This may be an off year for Britt High in wrestling, but the Eagles still had too much power for Coach Don Jones' Broncos and posted a 27-15 victory in the varsity meet with Belmond here Wednesday night of last week.

The Bronco reserves did better, winning their end of the evening's doings by a 20-18 score with the help of five points on a forfeit at 165 lbs.

Belmond had a winner in five of the 12 weight classes in the varsity meet, but the Eagles' scoring was padded by three falls among their seven wins. Doug Lloyd (103) flattened John Knoll in 3:07, Jerry Steenlage (120) did the same to Dave McLaughlin in 4:57, and Fred Whipple (180) — in poor shape with a neck injury — was pinned by Carl DeWaard in 2:43.

Robb Dorr (112) got Belmond's first points with a 6-2 decision over John Buck and Jim Dickson (127) kept his win string going with a 4-0 victory over much rangier Don Trulson. In the heavyweight battle, Les Steenblock had some trouble finding handholds on tubby Phil Sweers but managed a 3-0 decision.

Less expected were the wins of Lance Campbell (145) and Wayne Smith (154), who probably would have had to be regarded as underdogs in their matches with Gary Stevenson and Wayne Tjarks, respectively. Campbell got a near-fall in the third period for a 6-4 decision and Smith took Tjarks to the cleaners, 3-1.

A second-period reversal gave Roger Daugard (95) a 2-0 decision over Bronco Greg McClenahan; Gary Passmore (133) trimmed Vance Jenison 4-0; Tim Dallman (138) outpointed Tom Swaroff 11-3; and Al Henson broke a 2-2 tie to trounce Mac Gabrielson (180), 9 to 3.

There wasn't a single fall in the reserve meet and the 154-lb. default to Eugene Pals gave Belmond its winning points. The Broncos won five matches by decisions and Britt six.

Results were: 95 — Duane Alphs (Br.) dec. Brian Bateson, 6-3; 103 — Randy Mozack (Br.) dec. Lewy Schaal, 4-0; 112 — Tom Wilson (Bel.) dec. Danny Smith, 4-3; 120 — Bill Broshar (Bel.) dec. Mark Daugard, 6-4; 127 — John Greenwood (Bel) dec Mike Charboneaux, 4-1; 133 — Jim Nelson (Br.) dec. Bob Cullinan, 9-0. 138 — Calvin Huling (Br.) dec. Irvin Meier, 4-3; 145 — Dennis Finn (Bel.) dec. Dennis Schaefer, 9-0; 154 — Pals (Bel.) won by forfeit; 165 — Monty Ryan (Br.) dec. Randy Turner, 4-2; 180 — Chuck Smith (Br.) dec. Glen Gabrielson, 6-3; hwt. — Bob McNutt (Bel.) dec. ILL WIND BLOWS PRAISE FOR STATION KRIT TO FCC

Special — (Washington, D. C.)

On Oct. 14, the small town of Belmond, Iowa (population 2506), was hit by what area residents called a "killer tornado." Six lives were lost, hundreds were injured, damage was great — and communications were knocked out.

Thirty minutes after the storm hit, KRIT (FM) of near-by Clarion (population 3,232) — and the only station within 40 miles — dispatched its mobile unit to Belmond. With the station's general manager, Marvin Hull, at the microphone, KRIT was the outside world's initial source of news on the disaster.

And with power and communications disrupted, the station (where Jerry McLaughlin was doing what a grateful listener has described as an "amazing" announcing job) also served as a link with relief units. Mr. Hull's efforts were credited with arranging the prompt dispatch of ambulance and medical aid to the stricken area. — (Reprinted from Broadcasting, the business weekly of television and radio, issue of November 28, 1966)

Jaycees in need of storm photos

Belmond's Jaycees, in preparation of their book on the October tornado, have discovered they have a drastic shortage of pictures where damage in two parts of town are concerned.

Photos are needed of damage dealt by the storm to the area south of Main street; also pictures dealing with the area on "the hill" in west Belmond.

Dick Bloemke asks that any persons with such pictures bring them to him at Kessler's Pharmacy, with the negatives. An additional print will be obtained for the owner, without charge.

"Why Be Sick When You Can Be Well?"

Dr. W. W. Weisbrod

Dear Friends:

Man's quest for knowledge is limitless. You have often heard the famous remark made by explorers that they climbed a mountain simply "because it was there." We are living in an age which will see outer space conquered. Why? Maybe, simply "because it is there."

We know a great deal today, about our body and its functions. It is strange to say that many of us, even though we profess to know about our bodies, take so little heed of the "up-keep" that is necessary to maintain us in perfect working order.

So while you and I look toward man's conquest of the Heavens, let us be ever mindful that our body's need for constant attention is one field of knowledge in which your chiropractor is skilled.

This office is prepared to render the best in modern, scientific chiropractic care to help you enjoy a healthy life.

Sincerely,
Dr. W. W. Weisbrod

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT GARLAN WENZEL

• • • • • •

Carolyn Wenzel and Robert Wenzel spoke nuptial vows on January 7th

Miss Carolyn Jane Wenzel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wenzel, became the bride of Robert Garlan Wenzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wenzel, Sr., of Alexander, on Saturday evening, Jan. 7, at St. John Lutheran church at Belmond. Rev. Leo Andersen performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated by two-bouquets of white mums.

Two other baskets of white mums and gladioli decorated the chancel and the pews were marked by white bows.

Mrs. Derald Pals, organist, played the nupital music and accompanied Sue Hill as she sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of peau de soie featuring a bell skirt that formed a bustle at the back. Sequin studded lace applique outlined the square neckline and formed a V on the bodice. Lace and sequins outlined the hemline. The chapel-length detachable train, outlined by lace, fell from the side front. Her finger-tip, illusion veil was attached to a single rose fashioned of illusion and seed pearls, highlighted by sequin framed teardrops. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

Norlene Main of Belmond and Donna Ulrich of Klemme were the bride's attendants. They wore floor-length gold dresses, wedding band hats and single strand pearl necklaces. They carried bouquets of white mums.

James Wenzel of Alexander and Emery Wenzel of Peoria, Ill., were their brother's attendants. The men of the wedding party wore black suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

Lynnette Wenzel, niece of the groom, as flower girl, was attired identically to the bridesmaids. Mark Steenhard, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer and he was attired like the groomsmen.

The ushers were Vernon Steenhard of Meservey, cousin of the bride, and Gerald Johnson of Hampton, cousin of the groom Candle-lighters were Merlin Wenzel, brother of the bride, and Alan Steenhard, cousin of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a mint green suit and the groom's mother wore a blue dress, each with a yellow rose corsage.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eckhoff of Belmond as host and hostess. Decorations were in gold and white. The four-tiered cake was cut by Mrs. Jerry Kropp of Garner, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. George Wenzel of Belmond.

Mrs. Marvin Katuin of Mason City and Katy Larson of Rochester, Minn., poured coffee. Pat Koenen of Mason City, cousin of the bride, dipped punch and Mrs. Allen Payne of Thornton presided over the guest book.

Pam Koenen, cousin of the bride, was gift page and opening and arrnaging the gifts were Marilyn Peterson of Goodell, Mrs. Dennis Downing of Nevada, Mrs. Randall Barkema of Charles City and Mrs. Vernon Dippel of Belmond

Mrs. Vernon Steenhard served the bride's table. The other waitresses were Caroline and Barbara Wenzel of Belmond.

As the couple left on a trip through the southern states, the bride wore a three-piece, dark brown suit and a corsage of yellow roses. They are now at home on a farm near Alexander.

The bride is a graduate of Belmond Community High school and Hamilton Business college. The groom graduated from Alexander High school and is engaged in farming.

Three Bel Chris residents feted on birthdays falling this month

Following a custom that was initiated last July, residents of Bel Chris Manor nursing home who have birthdays during the current month were honored with a party last Saturday afternoon.

Arrangements were made by Mrs. Carroll Bamford who, with other members of the Methodist church, has had a hand in planning all of the festivities. Honorees for the month of January were Anna Soma, who was 91 on Jan. 19; Ella Cleveland, 90, and Frances Jenison, 71, whose birthdays were Wednesday, Jan. 25.

Young people, mainly from the Methodist church, have played important roles in helping put on the parties. Those on hand Saturday, in the picture above (left to right), were John Wilson, Vivian Christie, Cathy Steenblock, Sharon Bamford, Patty Stokke and Julane Jenison.

They not only help serve the refreshments but play games with the elderly people at Bel Chris and help in other ways to entertain them.

Mrs. Bamford says the birthday honorees have come to look forward with great anticipation to the arrival of their parties and they provide a monthly highlight for all living at the nursing home.

When Mrs. Soma's birthday occurred last week, quite a host of relatives and friends greeted her on the occasion. These included Mr. and Mrs. George Blau and Mrs. Clara Harms of Alexander, Mrs. Bernice Sebert of Clarion and from Belmond:

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hill, Mrs. Gladys Mehl, Mrs. Viola Morris, Mrs. Margaret Dorenkamp, Mrs. Shirley Gabrielson, Mrs. Eunice Banning and Jana, Mrs. Frank Patterson and Lori, Mr. and Mrs. Norris Soma, Glenda Cunningham and Carol Townsend.

Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Jenison were anticipating a similar arrival of "company" for their birthdays yesterday.

PUBLIC FORUM

Letters to the Independent are welcomed. Please try to limit to 100 words or less.

Dear Editor:

Your last week's editorial concerning the responsibilities of communities to provide recreation for their youth was well put. We owe our youth much; we do not owe them everything.

We are in error if we think that by providing young people with endless entertainment and recreation, juvenile delinquency will vanish.

Many of our offenders in court are coming from homes that are on the "right side of the tracks." Adults have a responsibility to teenagers but the latter should rise above their environment.

If anyone had a good reason to be a failure it was Abraham Lincoln, yet he rose above the environment of a log cabin and went on to greatness. Our local library has a book, "Everything but Money" by Sam Levenson, which tells how children raised in the poverty of New York City went on to become assets to society.

A greater example is Joseph of the Bible, who was a victim of injustice and sold as a slave in Egypt. The atmosphere of a prison compound is not conducive to high morals, yet, with God's help he became the second ruler in that great empire. It can be done.

Sincerely,
Rev. Robert Vander Schaaf

Sign-up to start for Wright farms

The Wright county ASC committee announces that sign-up for the 1967 Feed Grain Program will start next Monday. As in past years, community committeemen from each township will be in the ASCS office during one day from 9:30 a m. to 3:30 p. m. to aid farmers in their township in their sign-up for the program.

Although the sign-up will continue until March 3, the committee urges producers to sign up on the day their committee is in the ASCS office at Clarion. Signing up during the time scheduled will help balance the workload for the office. The township schedule set up for the coming week is:

Monday — Belmond, Blaine, Grant and Vernon townships; Tuesday — Boone, Dayton, Lake and Norway; Wednesday — Iowa, Lincoln, Liberty and Pleasant; Thursday — Eagle Grove, Troy, Wall Lake and Woolstock.

The committee points out that most of the details for the 1967 program are similar to the 1966 program. However, there is a straight 20 per cent diversion on all farms except those with small feed grain bases and the loan rate for the 1967 crop of corn has been increased by five cents per bushel.

Any farmer or landowner having questions about the 1967 Feed Grain Program may contact the Wright county ASCS office.

George Stoffer, Belmond native, died on Jan. 12

George Stoffer of Oskaloosa, father of Donald Stoffer, died on Thursday, Jan. 12, at the Mahaska Manor nursing home at Oskaloosa at the age of 68. He had suffered from a heart condition for the past year and had been a patient at the nursing home for three months.

A native of Belmond, he was born here on Nov. 16, 1898, son of John and Anna (Ruiter) Stoffer. He had made his home at Oskaloosa for the past 14 years, where he was employed as a butcher.

Funeral services were held a week ago Saturday at Garland Funeral Chapel at Oskaloosa, with rites on the afternoon of the same day at the First Reformed church at Alexander. Rev. Alvern Kinrade, pastor of the First Baptist church of Oskaloosa, officiated. Burial was in the Immanuel Church cemetery east of Belmond.

Besides his son living here, three granddaughters and his wife Winona, the deceased was survived by two step-sons, Bob Dalbey of Oskaloosa and Harold Dalbey of Minneapolis; and by three brothers, Henry of Sheffield, Engle and Corneil of Alexander; and a sister, Sophie Blau of Alexander.

49 points against Garner—

Bison ace sets new scoring mark

SPORTS

Buffalo Center's slick-shooting Pete Wessels set an all-time high individual scoring mark for one NIC game against Garner on Friday night to pull into contention for North Iowa conference scoring honors for 1966-67. The Bison marksman amassed 49 points, including 17 on 22 freethrow attempts, to bring his season's average in NIC play to 22.4.

His point explosion in BC's 101-51 romp over the Cards wiped out a record of 46 points that was set on Feb. 10, 1961, by little Bob Nielsen of Britt in a losing cause against Belmond. Despite Nielsen's heorics, the Eagles lost 79-76 and the defeat cost them a share of the '60-61 title.

Wessels cleared the 40-mark one time last year, too. So far as available records show, the only other NIC cagers who have reached or surpassed the 40 level are Nielsen, Bill Engstler of Garner and Neal Waddington of Belmond.

Tom McDermott of Britt, though held to 15 points last Friday by Osage, continues current high individual scorer in the league with a 23.2 average. Engstler is tied with Wessels, despite having posted only 16 points when he fouled out against Buffalo Center with more than six minutes of game time remaining.

If Engstler can finish out the season at his present 22.4 gait, he will wind up the third highest scorer in NIC history on a career basis with around 845 points for three seasons. Waddington is out of reach with 1,123 for four seasons and Nielsen securely in the second spot with 905 in three.

Forest City got into the record-breaking just before the Christmas holidays with its 105-52 spanking of Britt, which constituted a new high team score for the loop.

Insofar as data on hand denotes, 23 NIC cagers are currently hitting the hoop at a rate of 10 points or more per game. Gary Meyers of Belmond is not far away from the select 20-point average group with 19.6 for nine games.

The players in double figures are as follows, with the total on about one-third of them lacking their scoring last Friday night (those who have played a game more than shown are indicated by an asterisk):

Crucial contest with Bison here Friday evening

While tomorrow night's loser in the Belmond-Buffalo Center game in the BHS gym won't necessarily be eliminated from North Iowa conference championship consideration, the winner will possess by all odds the best chance of winding up with exclusive claim to the 1966-67 cage title.

A year ago, this key battle was duplicated at Buffalo Center and the Bison creamed the Broncos 68-48 and Buffalo Center thereby picked off the crown. As matters developed, a Bronco victory would have enabled Belmond to share top spot in the final standings.

Last year, Belmond went into the crucial contest trailing the Bison by a game. This time, the Broncos and Bison have matching records at 7-2. A win will be doubly crucial for Belmond, as the Broncs have yet to meet both Forest City and Lake Mills on their home courts whereas the Bison have only Forest City among the toughies yet to meet and will play the Indians at home. Their other remaining foes are Britt and Osage.

The Broncos will have their work cut out for them in stopping Pete Wessels, who last week against Garner broke the NIC individual one-game scoring mark with 49 points. He hit 41 one time earlier in the campaign and has been averaging close to 22.5 per game.

Buffalo Center also has dependable scorers in Pat Orthel, Darrel Steen and Dewayne Torkelson, so a defense cannot concentrate too heavily on Wessels. Defense has been the Bison forte this season as they have allowed rivals an average of only 48.7 per game. Belmond, in contrast, has been winning despite a 62-point defensive average.

Offensively, the teams are about on a par — Belmond having tallied only five more points than Buffalo Center over the nine-game stretch, 634 to 629.

In 63 games involving the two teams over the years, Belmond has a 48-15 edge in victories; but the Bison have been the victors in eight of the last 16.

Garner Jr. high teams drop pair

Belmond's Junior High Colts posted a pair of cage victories over Garner on the Cardinal Chix' floor last Friday, the 8th grade winning 47-27 and the 7th-graders taking an overtime victory, 17-15.

In the 7th grade game, Garner led at the half 9-8. Kenny Robbins tallied a pair of freethrows with 17 seconds left in the overtime to give the Colts their edge.

The Colt 8th-graders led 28-18 at the half and made a complete runaway of the game after the intermission. Fred Erdman more than doubled the points of the next-high scorer by amassing 19.

Dismal showing by Belmond in Alden mat loss

Turning in what Coaches Don Jones and Jerry Kintzi regarded as probably their worst team performance of the season, the BHS wrestlers were soundly trounced by Alden here Friday night, 32 to 13. In an abbreviated reserve meet, in which the visitors were without men at six weights the Broncos lost 12 to 8 — or won 38-12 on forfeits — depending on how the proceedings were viewed.

One fall, two decisions and a draw was the best the varsity could do. Robb Dorr out-pointed Mike Jass at 120 lbs., 4-1; Lance Campbell (145) edged Bart Lyon, 4-2; Heavyweight Les Steenblock pinned Joe Smuck just before the time ran out, in 5:57. The draw was achieved by John Knoll (103) against Rich Christensen, 1-1.

Major upset of the evening was the defeat of Jim Dickson — his first of the campaign — by Bob Buzzetti at 127 lbs., 4-3. All Jim's points came on escapes, as he was unable to manage either a takedown or a reversal.

The other varsity match results were: 95 lbs. — Paul Hoversten dec. Greg McClenahan, 6-2; 112 — Gene Vanderloop dec. Tom Wilson, 5-0; 133 — Jim Ryan pinned Vance Jenison, :43; 138 — Tom Vanderloop dec. Tom Swaroff, 8-3; 154 — Larry Wilson dec. Wayne Smith, 10-3; 165 — Gary Nelson pinned Eugene Pals, 5:26; 180 — John Wilmer pinned Mack Gabrielson, 1:43.

Reserve results: 103 — John Jass (A) dec. Dan Ketchum, 9-7; 112 — Lonny Christens (A) dec. Lewy Schaal, 5-1; 120 — Bill Broshar (B) pinned Calvin Listan, 5:27; 127 — Dennis Sielaff (A) dec. John Greenwood, 11-0; 138 — Robert Hurd (A) dec. Irvin Meier, 6-1; 165 — Glen Gabrielson (B) dec. Randy Sielaff, 1-0.

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 48 NO. 19 — OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER — WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, FEB. 2, 1967 — OFFICIAL CITY PAPER — 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

A reminder is offered that a special workshop on home planning, remodeling and renovation is contemplated for Belmond to assist in pre-spring construction planning — if sufficient interest is shown.

Geraldine Steele, county home economist, can obtain the expert services of Naomi Shank (specialist in housing from Iowa State university, Ames) to conduct the workshop. It's promised that Mrs. Shank can provide answers to a lot of home-planning questions that might be troublesome. Sounds like opportunity knocking.

If you are interested in having Mrs. Shank put on this workshop, call Mrs. Richard Woodin (librarian) at the city library. The number of responses will determine whether or not "the deal is on".

Jerry McLaughlin of the KRIT-FM studio staff at Clarion, who wonders "How do I get into these things?", is again Wright county chairman for the March of Dimes. In this capacity he was distributing throughout the county last week coin containers to receive contributions for this cause. No direct solicitation will be conducted; so if you want to give to the March of Dimes, the place to put your donation is in one of the coin canisters.

Members of the audience at the one-act plays last week at Luick Memorial Auditorium received the sort of entertainment they have come to expect from Belmond of High's thespians under the direction of Lynn Sorum. Pretty high quality stuff. In the opening play, "Judith," Jane Kinseth gave a particularly sensitive portrayal of the blind girl and Barbara Burt's acting of the fiance's mother was especially well handled.

Unfortunately "The Sandbox," which was a pathetic tragedy based on the too often calloused attitude taken toward senility, was treated as an uproarious comedy by some children in the audience — and even a few adults. It was beautifully and effectively acted by Susan Thompson, Dudley Thompson, Margaret Hruska and Larry Sorenson (with creditable clarinet obligato by Kathy Slining). The cast deserved a double-measure of credit for doing an excellent job under the most trying of circumstances.

"The Man in the Bowler Hat" found Greg Kessler thrust into the leading role on 24-hour notice due to sickness on the part of Neil Kalkwarf. He coped with the situation unbelievably well — so well that even the fact that he was obliged to read his lines was quickly disregarded by the spectators. Ed Dana handled his villian's role with despicable suavity; in fact all cast members did themselves proud. . . . "More!"

This time we COUNTED the number of names we put in the BHS and junior high honor roll stories. All were present and accounted for! For ONCE, we thought, there'll be no omissions. So what happens? Either the machine operator skipped from one first name to the next last name, or a line of type someway got lost. Result. Norman Olson and Sonja Nelson got left off the 8th grade list . . . Maybe next time!

It sure takes 'em a long time down on the sports staff of the Des Moines Register to get Bob Misner properly pigeon-holed. Last football season they were still being surprised from time to time by his adeptness as a pass-receiver.

Then last Saturday, Bob showed up in track uniform (a leg injury last year limited his action as a member of the Drake university indoor track team). Against the Air Force Academy, speedy Bobby won the 50-yard low hurdles in the very respectable early-season time of :06.1.

Commented the Register story: "Drake football halfback was a surprise winner in the 50-yard low hurdles." Shucks, you fellahs down there should be getting over it. You just can't tell WHAT that Misner kid may be doing next!

Lots of Belmond people are learning that the postlude to the roar of a tornado is the musical (but disheartening) plop-plink-plunk of water dripping into a variety of containers as melted snow or rain leaks through wrenched roofs.

What had seemed to be unscathed or satisfactorily repaired roofs proved in a good many cases to be otherwise when last week's heavy rainfall descended. At such places as Kinseth's Plumbing and Heating, whose roof has defied all efforts at repair, sheets of plastic were philosophically spread over merchandise.

At The Independent (which joined the club), the reaction was less philosophical as water streamed down the west wall of the shop and dribbled through a number of roof holes. One wonders if the confounded roofs ever CAN be made waterproof!

Prayer meetings planned for Lent

Women of Belmond Bible church, Bethany Reformed, Immanuel Reformed, Methodist and Trinity Lutheran churches have made plans for a series of joint prayer services. These meetings will be held during the seven weeks of Lent beginning with Ash Wednesday, Feb. 8.

The meetings will be at 9:00 a. m. each Wednesday. The places of meeting are:

Feb. 8, Bethany Reformed church; Feb. 15, Methodist; Feb. 22, Belmond Bible church; March 1, Immanuel Reformed; March 8, Trinity Lutheran; March 15, Bethany Reformed; March 22, Methodist.

All women of the Belmond community are welcome to these prayer meetings.

• • •

Students elect Linda Suntken as Winter Queen

Linda Suntken was elected by the BHS student body to reign over last Friday night's Winter Sports Festival, succeeding to the title of Queen that has been borne the year before by Lora Howell.

The Bronco basketball team did not entirely enter into the spirit of the occasion, losing to Buffalo Center 71 to 55 and trailing 40-20 as the halftime ceremonies saw Miss Suntken and the three Princess from the lower classes crowned.

Bestowal of the traditional crown and bouquet on the Queen fell to the Bronco game captains, Gary Meyers and Bob Rise.

Chosen as Princesses of their respective clases were: Barbara Olson, junior; Nancy Smith, sophomore; and Barbara Greenwood, freshman.

GEORGE BACK IN BUSINESS

George Swaroff announces in this issue that George's Auto-Electric Service is now back in operation and prepared to serve all customers in that line of business. The building on Main street housing the firm was very largely destroyed by the tornado. It has now been rebuilt and re-equipped and George says he's "already to go".

Beta Sigma Phi chapter to conduct Heart drive

Xi Beta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority has agreed to accept responsibility for conducting the 1967 Heart Fund Drive in Belmond.

Mrs. Leo Woodley of Clarion, county campaign chairman, says, "The Heart association has been very fortunate to obtain this civic-minded group to put on the drive in Belmond."

Four Beta Sigma Phi members have consented to serve as co-chairmen of the drive — Mrs. Glenn Meints, Gen Monson, Mrs. George Sharp and Mrs. Gail Thayer.

Mrs. George Sharp, speaking for the co-chairmen, commented, "In view of all the generosity that has been shown Belmond in recent months, we felt the community would be most anxious to give the Heart association the same sort of support that it always has."

She noted that Sheriff Bob Blecker has accepted the fund drive chairmanship for the entire 14-county North Central division of the association, which for two years in a row has led all districts in the state in campaign support. She observed, "The busiest of people seem to find time for this worthy cause, which plays such an important role in fighting heart disease by education and research."

Beta Sigma Phi members, in accepting the campaign assignment, kept in mind that Wright county has been 1st in all Iowa in per capita giving to the Heart fund in each of the past two years.

XBU chapter has been making preparations to launch the local drive just a rapidly as possible and the co-chairmen hope that work assignments can be completed so the kick-off can be held next week.

As an important phase of the campaign, all local organizations will be contacted for contributions, in addition to the house-to-house solicitations.

Interesting event promised Saturday—

Expect crowd of 700 to attend Farm Clinic

Biggest concern of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce in connection with the Farm Clinic to be held this Saturday, as of the early part of this week, was to make sure that all interested farmers of the area have obtained free tickets for themselves.

Chamber Secretary Ellis Elliott told the Independent on Tuesday, "There should be tickets available to all farmers in the Belmond area who want them. And with the excellent program that the town-and-country committee has set up, we feel confident that every ticket should be claimed."

He expressed the Chamber's regret that this year's Farm Clinic event has had to be limited to men, but added, "Plans to include some special events for the women in connection with 1968's Second Annual Farm Clinic are already receiving thought."

Not only will all men in attendance at the Farm Clinic this weekend be presented with a program promising both valuable information and entertainment, and a free, full-course dinner at noon, but all will have a chance at some very attractive door prizes to be given away on the basis of registration. Fourteen local firms are donating these prizes.

From the time Don Bunnell, Tomco marketing director, expresses a welcome to the guests at 9:00 a. m. at Luick Memorial Auditorium until the program closes at 3:30 p. m. there will be not a lull in the day's activities.

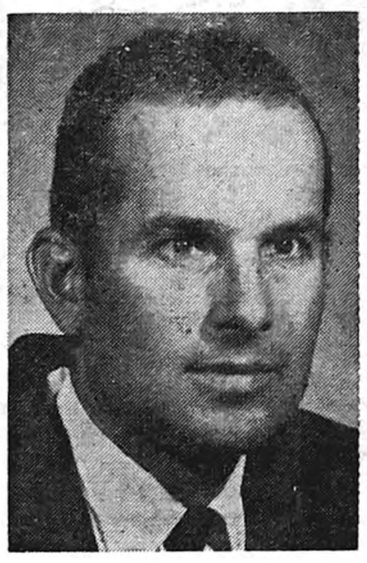
EVERETT R. BIERMAN



DR. ROBERT C. LAMBE

DR. HAROLD GUNDERSON

Keith Wiggins of the Central Soya staff, as master-of-ceremonies, will introduce during the first phase of the program four speakers whose remarks will be related to "What's New in Farm Machinery?"

First to be heard will be Helen McLane of International Harvester's public relations department at Chicago. She will be followed by S. R. Majors, Moline, Ill., of John Deere's sales promotion staff. Next will be Clarence Triggs, telling of implements being produced right here in Belmond by Triggs Manufacturing company; and this section will conclude with words from G. H. Garth of Fort Dodge, branch manager for the New Idea Manufacturing company.

At 10:40 a. m. the direction of the clinic will be turned to products of Belmond's three major, farm-related industries. Everett Bierman of Fort Wayne, Ind., director of public relations for Central Soya, will talk on "New Horizons for Soybeans."

Then C. E. Wilmarth, Tomco Genetic Giant corn-research director will discuss "Narrow Row Spacings to Boost Corn-plant Population." He will be followed by M. R. "Bob" Cox of the local Armour Agricultural Chemical company staff, whose topic will be "Fertilizer Application for Maximum Yield."

After time is allowed for questions. the gathering will adjourn to the school gymnasium for a cafeteria-style dinner featuring oven-roasted Iowa beef. Gary Gabrielson and some cohorts will provide a background of country music; and the diners will find at their places favors provided by Belmond Chamber members.

Getting the afternoon program off to a fast start at 1:30 o'clock, Lee Kline of radio station WHO at Des Moines will present some amusing and interesting excerpts from his popular human interest program, "Lee Kline's Notebook." Bob Berhnardt, Wright county extension director, will then introduce the agricultural specialists who will be responsible for the balance of the program.

First of three extension experts from Iowa State university, Ames, to take the podium will be Dr. Harold Gunderson. The ISU extension entomologist will speak on "Insect Control." Dr. E. P. "Dutch" Sylwester, weed specialist, will follow with a talk on "Herbicides;" and Dr. Robert C. Lambe, plant pathologist, will wind up the formal program with suggestions relating to "Plant Disease."

The farmers will be given an opportunity to question each of the specialist regarding problems in his particular field before the clinic adjourns.

Several booths containing displays of general interest will bid for the clinic guests' attention in the gymnasium.

Chamber President Ed Gabrielson says, "The town-and-country committee is to be commended highly for getting up such an outstanding program for this First Annual Farm Clinic. And certainly the industries and businesses who are underwriting the major portion of the event's cost are owed the thanks of the entire Chamber for making this event possible.

"If this clinic is the tremendous success that we feel we have every reason to believe it will be, it should certainly be followed by some even 'bigger and better' Farm Clinics here in the years to come."

Pollitt elected by city council to fill vacancy

Frank Pollitt, local service station and repair shop operator, was named by the city council at a special meeting Monday night to fill out the unexpired term of former-Councilman A. M. Nelson. He will serve in the post of councilman-at-large through the current year, on strength of the council's action.

Mr. Pollitt has been a resident of Belmond for 10 years, having come to Belmond in 1957 as an employee of Sheldon Chevrolet garage, the predecessor to McLaughlin Brothers as the local Chevrolet agency. He established Pollitt Auto Service on River avenue in September of 1958 and has since operated that business.

His confidence in the future of Belmond was manifested by the speediness with which he had his business rebuilt after it was totally demolished by the Oct. 14 tornado. In just 26 days, a new building had been constructed and he was back in business.

Frank and Mrs. Pollitt have three children; Kathy is a BHS junior; Jimmy, a freshman; and Susan is in fifth grade.

As another matter of business Monday, the council officially signed the contract with the Office of Urban Renewal under which the city will be eligible for up to $112,942 in demolition funds. This full amount would require matching funds from the city — or their equivalent in acceptable services — coming to $23,800.

DRAKE ECONOMICS DEGREE GOES TO JOHN J. KADUCE

"Tornado Fund" set up here—

We received; so now we will give

What a horribly familiar story it was that the Des Moines Register carried Wednesday of last week!

Two persons killed and 217 injured as a vicious twister lashed through St. Louis county in Missouri. Our death toll was six; number injured, around 120 — but only 32 hospitalized.

Number of homes totally demolished by the Missouri tornado, 168 (our figure was 109); homes dealt major damage, 258 (here, 160); homes with minor damage, 1,485 (here, 308).

Since the Missouri tornado struck a much more highly populated area than was in the path of our Oct. 14th twister, the families suffering loss came to 1,975. Only where business damage was involved did Belmond's disaster outstrip the one last week. Seventy-five small businesses were hurt here, compared to 60 in the Missouri calamity.

In view of the generosity that was shown our community by sympathizers from far and wide when Belmond's need was so great, Mrs. E. J. Elliott believes the people of this community will want to demonstrate their gratitude by helping the Missouri victims.

As disaster chairman of the local Red Cross chapter, she has arranged for The Independent and the First State bank to serve as collection points for donations to aid families in the Missouri tornado area. Names of donors will be published in the Independent unless a wish is expressed that the contributor be kept anonymous.

Receipts of the Belmond Disaster Fund (some continue to straggle in, even at this late date) now stand at just under $110,500 — $10.98 less, to be exact. Outlays by the Red Cross for mass care and disaster relief here. plus administrative costs, came to approximately $155,750.

In addition, contributions to various other funds in the community brought the total money funnelled into Belmond expressly for disaster relief or related needs very close to the $250,000 mark, in all.

In the St. Louis area, 8,000 persons have been receiving emergency mass care in the form of feeding, shelter and clothing and the St. Louis Bi-State chapter of Red Cross is busy at servicing welfare inquiries.

"This is all such a familiar story to Belmond people," says Mrs. Elliott, "that I am sure many will want to show their appreciation for the wonderful response to OUR need by extending a helping hand to our Missouri friends.

"In fact, we may well expect the public to be watching us to see what the measure of our gratitude is."

Red Cross looks at further costs tornado prompted

Marvin Hersey, American Red Cross field representative from Des Moines, was in Belmond on Monday to review several city expenditures — either already paid, or potential — that might still be met by the Red Cross as involving tornado relief.

After discussing the outlays with directors of the local Red Cross chapter and with city officals, Mr. Hersey advised that he would personally recommend that regional headquarters at St. Louis pay $2,437 on specific, storm-related bills.

Largest in the group was one of $1,100 that the city met for emergency tree clearance immediately following the Oct. 14 tornado. He said that the final decision on meeting the additional costs would rest with the regional office.

The field representative told the local Red Cross board that the ARC has to date spent $155,734 as a result of the Belmond tornado. Of that amount, $121,757 was for family care in all its aspects, $16,366 was for mass care and $17,611 was administrative expense for the period of time that the Red Cross had headquarters here.

Besides the latest total of $110,489 contributed to the Belmond Tornado Fund at the First State bank, $3,093 was received by the regional office from various chapters for inclusion in the fund. That made the total in this fund to date, $113,582.

Good start!

When it "leaked out" the first of this week that a local fund was being raised for the benefit of the St. Louis area tornado victims, the early response was both prompt and generous. Donations that had already been received by The Independent's press time were as follows:

We 3 Markets $30, First State bank $25, Pollitt Auto Service and Mello Maid each $20, Redder Rexall Drug $15, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fahreny $15, Belmond Creamery $10.

$5.00 each — Dr. R. E. Misner, Earl Hinman, L. B. Cox, Bill Walrod, Mr. and Mrs. George Sharp, J. R. Gallagher.

This gets the fund off to a splendid start, with $165 already reported.

Local project poses problems—

Hearing tonight on widening of Highway 69

Complaints from a number of proprietors with businesses on Highway 69 are anticipated when a hearing on widening the thoroughfare to four lanes through Belmond is held tonight (Thursday) at 7:00 o'clock at Luick Memorial Auditorium.

A majority of the businessmen directly concerned, however, have indicated that — while they are unhappy at prospect of another business interruption — they will welcome the long-range benefits of the improvement.

This hearing has been called by the Iowa State Highway commission and staff engineers will be present to supply data in regard to the project, which — as planned — would reportedly close the highway to traffic for a good part of the summer.

The present city administration had put in a request for widening of River avenue and the north and south approaches to Belmond into a four-lane thoroughfare when blacktopping of the surface was done in 1963. Through a misunderstanding as to when application for the project needed to be made, the commission found it impossible to do the work that season.

As an intended accommodation to the community in view of the blow dealt Belmond by the tornado of Oct. 14, the commission put the project into its construction plans for the present year — although it had not appeared at all in the five-year program set forth by the highway body in 1965.

Mayor Robert Misner and members of the city council were pleased by this "favor," as the 49-foot paving (from back-of-curb to back-of-curb, since curb-and-gutter would be included in the project for proper drainage) would represent a valuable civic improvement.

Their initial pleasure was premised on the supposition that one-way traffic could be continued along River avenue while the widening project was in progress. But surveying of the 1.3-mile stretch in early winter divulged that elevations of the existing concrete slab would not provide satisfactory drainage.

Improvement of drainage — which has been bad along some parts of River avenue — is one of the major objectives of the widening proposal, along with improvement in the flow of traffic. And to correct the faults in the present highway through town would require tearing out the existing concrete and entirely replacing it with new.

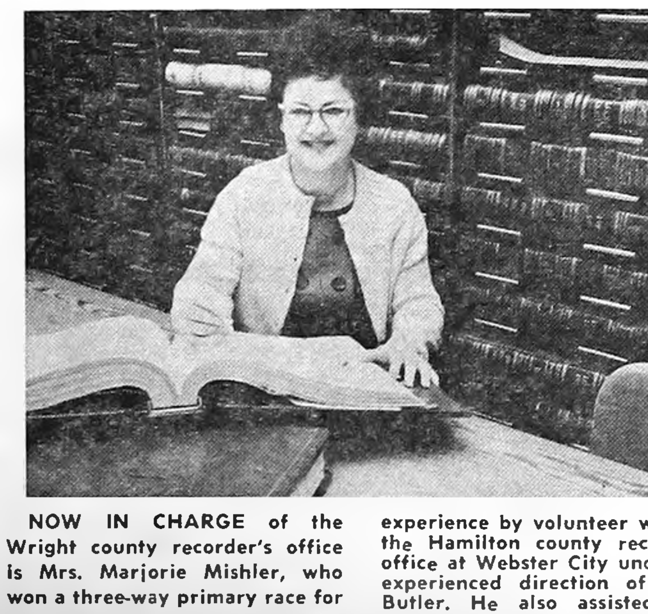
This would entail not just inconvenience to highway businesses, but would practically put some out of operation and seriously reduce the trade volumes of others for the period of weeks that would be needed to tear out the old concrete and to lay and cure the new.

The project would extend from slightly south of the Iowa river bridge that is just inside the southern city limits to the Great Western tracks on the north. It is budgeted at an estimated cost of $512,000, which bespeaks the long-range value of the project to the community.

Work scheduled includes a new bridge at the south end of the project — which would totally block off traffic from the south during construction — plus installation of railroad crossing signals and erosion control.

Since establishments along the highway suffered tornado damage ranging from major to complete demolishment, and suffered serious losses of business as a result, their owners view with a total lack of enthusiasm any prospect of another enforced and extended period of shut-down or limited operation while the highway through town might be closed to traffic.

On the other hand, sufficiency of the segment of road involved in the widening project is rated by the highway commission at "52 points," which places it in the "poor" classification. Traffic tie-ups at the entering streets, which are common and sometimes prolonged, are among the symptoms that substantiate the rating.



NOW IN CHARGE of the Wright county recorder's office is Mrs. Marjorie Mishler, who won a three-way primary race for the Republican nomination and then defeated Democrat Virgene Cullinan in the general election. Prior to taking office the first of the year, Mrs. Mishler gained experience by volunteer work in the Hamilton county recorder's office at Webster City under the experienced direction of Alvin Butler. He also assisted Mrs. Mishler during her first day and a half in office in "learning the ropes". Assisting her as clerk is Mrs. George (DeeLorys) Baker of Clarion.

Camp Fire Girls presented gifts of $888 value at Candy Party

More than 80 Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds from here, with 17 adult leaders, had the time of their lives last Saturday at Heart of the Hawkeye Council's annual Candy Party at Des Moines. Held at the North High school gymnasium, the affair brought together about 5,000 youngsters from all over Heart of the Hawkeye's broad area.

Cost of transporting the Belmond girls and their chaperones to Des Moines in three school buses was met by the Lions club out of funds bestowed on it by other clubs in Iowa and elsewhere for tornado-related projects.

Belmond's Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds were special guests at the party this year because the tornado made it impossible to conduct the annual sale of Camp Fire candy here.

They received from Genevieve Clayton, executive director of the council, a check for $230.86 for the local budget representing proceeds from 3,298 boxes of candy sold in the Belmond district's behalf. This was considerably more than the local candy sale usually yields for local use. The check was received by Debbie Thielen, Belmond's Candy Queen of 1965; Cecil Carstens, who for years has served as candy sale chairman here; and Mrs. Eugene Waage, Belmond representative on the council board of directors.

Besides the check, Belmond was awarded 66 "camp scholarships" that will pay half-a-week's fee toward attendance at Camp Hantesa near Boone for a one-week session next summer. This gesture constituted the equivalent of $858 in camp fees and should enable a record number of Camp Fire Girls from Belmond to attend camp this year.

Entertainment at the party was provided by Shrine clowns, a Shrine bagpipe band and a group of junior high pantomimists from a Des Moines school.

Understanding is a well-spring of life unto him that hath it. — Prov. 16:22

U. S. spending makes even some Democrats nervous

President Lyndon Johnson's budget message left no doubt that he is determined to continue gung-ho in pursuit of his "Great Society".

Only a minority of U. S. citizens would quarrel with his resolution to support the fighting in Viet Nam, his social legislation — or most of the other tax-consuming programs. But a larger number would be more at ease if they could convince themselves that humanitarian motives, to the exclusion of vote-getting appeal, prompted the whole "Great Society" agenda.

The demands for increased spending have had a disturbing affect even on LBJ partisans, which suggests that prejudice alone does not prompt the misgivings of those not politically bound to the administration.

Rep. George H. Mahon, who is chairman of the House appropriations committee and a Texas Democrat, contemplated the proposed budget and remarked, "We are suffering from some legislative indigestion; from too much government, from too much spending, and from too much inflation. We have made small down payments this past year on some of the newly authorized programs. The costs of many of them will increase year by year."

When such comments come from the Democratic ranks, it is not surprising that a peek at the future has an unsettling affect on citizens of moderate inclination.

Typical of the programs that point themselves toward uncharted territory that is suspected to hold tax sinkholes that could absorb dollars in almost incalculable numbers was that launched by the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act.

The original program envisioned the involvement of only about 50 or 60 cities (New York's Mayor Lindsay suggested his bailiwik could use $50 billion in a period of 10 years to rebuild blighted areas); but this is already being dismissed as a rank underestimate.

Even here in "blighted" Wright county, the beneficent hand of the Demonstration Cities program is extended toward farm families — that's right, farm families — who can qualify for expanded housing credit that will be dispensed by the Farmers Home Administration.

The new legislation, it is explained by the FHA, "makes more mortgage credit available to low and moderate income families in Wright county by increasing the level of activities of the agency's housing loan program."

So it goes. And so goes our spiralling inflation — because it seems nothing can "wait"; everything must be done NOW.

We can only hope that plaintive wails from us in the grass roots may reach Washington, still audible, to the affect that we aren't in THAT much of a hurry. And that it's going to help, in the long run, if the dollar retains a semblance of value.

Study aimed at proving county school mergers pay

As was recently mentioned in this column, Wright county is lagging noticeably in following a trend toward merger of adjoining school systems for greater economy and efficiency — particularly efficiency.

We bring the subject up again due to information that came our way in the meantime. Our first remarks on the subject were prompted by the action of Cerro Gordo, Floyd, Mitchell and Worth counties setting up a combined district for administrative purposes. Subsequently, we learned that mergers are presently under study that would set up 19 combined districts serving a total of 43 Iowa counties.

First merger in the state combined Scott and Muscatine counties last year, not long after the Iowa law was passed that permits two or more county systems to be combined. Next July 1, not only will the merger involving Cerro Gordo and its three neighbors go into effect but still another one that will combine Black Hawk and Buchanan counties.

So decided is the trend in this direction that the University of Iowa is conducting a study on multi-county school mergers to ascertain the best conditions for merging county school systems and the best services for multi-county systems to offer.

Director of the study is Assistant Professor E Robert Stephens of the U-of-I college of education. On the basis of the study thus far, he says the ideal multi-county system would provide:

Supplementary services (for local systems which lack a program); coordinating services (for local systems which can use help with their programs); and administrative services (to help the state department of public instruction administer the state school system).

Professor Stephens emphasizes that the multi-county system represents, as does the single county unit, an intermediate level between the local school districts and the state department of public instruction. It does NOT supplant the local district, but assists it.

The most obvious area where a multi-county system can serve local districts to good advantage is in the field of special education, where Wright county has experienced difficulty in keeping itself staffed with needed specialists (speech and hearing therapists, specifically, in a late instance).

But there is wide opportunity for a multi-county set-up to better serve affiliated counties in additional fields: instructional materials that could most efficiently be shared; in-service education; expanded curricula; administration and finance.

Those counties that move first to form advantagious mergers are those that will stand to gain maximum benefit. It is a matter highly worthy of serious consideration by the Wright county board of education — and the sooner, the better.

Suspensions hint wild drivers mainly young ones

A report of driver's license suspensions and revocations for an unspecified period of time that appeared in last Saturday's Des Moines Register caught our casual eye — and then our closer attention when we noted the number of young people listed.

There were 90 suspensions for such reasons as being an habitual violator, serious violation, driving while license was already under suspension and a few others; but most for habitual violations.

Our curiosity was sufficiently aroused that we took the trouble to count the number of teenagers who'd been deprived of their licenses. They numbered 39 — or 43.3 per cent of the suspensions. Another 21 suspensions involved drivers of ages 20 to 22, making exactly two-thirds of the 90 who were age 22 or under.

Eight of the 90 suspensions were disqualifications due to old age; so where disregard of the law was the issue, 73-plus per cent who'd lost their licenses for law violations were in the 22-and-under age bracket. Women drivers might be interested to know that only three in that group were females; and the only other women drawing suspensions were four in the over-age bracket.

So much for the relative competence of women drivers (not so bad, huh?); and also . . . so much for the alleged superiority of the young driver.

We realize that a generalization is unfair to the many young people who DO drive sensibly. But it almost appears that a conclusion could be drawn as to what age group represents the biggest hazard on our streets and highways.

Where revocations were concerned, it seemed that we could detect a leniency toward the young "habitual violators". They seem to be given a second — also a third, fourth and fifth — chance. Of 82 drivers who'd had their licenses revoked, only four were teenagers; only 11 were ages 20-to-22. And only one was a woman.

It struck us that there is food for thought in some of these statistics.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

The Iowa House, acting on one of the most important issues facing this legislature, has passed and sent to the Senate a new permanent reapportionment plan.

By a near party-line vote of 86-36, the Republican-controlled House approved a plan which would reduce the size of the legislature, require subdistricting of counties electing more than one representative or senator and comply with the U. S. Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote ruling.

The plan, which was drawn up and sponsored by Republicans in both houses, would replace a proposal which was passed in the last Democrat-controlled legislature. Earlier this session the carry-over plan was approved by the Senate.

THE HOUSE TURNED DOWN the Democrat plan on two major grounds. One was that it failed to require subdistricting, saying this was permissible, not mandatory. Secondly, Republicans said their plan would cut the size of the House from its present 124 members to 100 and the Senate from 61 to 50 a full two years earlier than the other plan because of some improved wording.

The Republican plan now must be acted upon by the Senate. If passed, it would be submitted to the 1969 legislature for second approval. Following that, it could go to the voters at a special election later in 1969, and the new districts be set up by a special legislative session early in 1970 to take effect in that year's elections.

THERE WAS ALSO MUCH ACtivity on several other important constitutional amendments. The Senate passed and sent to the House a proposal calling for annual sessions of the legislature. That chamber also approved a proposed amendment which would permit the governor to veto individual items in appropriations (money) bills. Both received bipartisan support.

The House also moved toward passage of the "home rule" amendment, which would then go to the voters in the 1968 elections. This would give cities and towns more power to solve their own local problems.

This past week the Senate passed an act which, when approved by the House, will legalize the use of tires which have the metal studs. It was surprising that the debate on this issue took more time than each of the Constitutional amendments which have been discussed so far.

LONG DEBATE WAS ALSO ASsociated with another Senate bill — one which provides that a photograph be placed on the drivers license. I supported this bill with some reluctance because a very good amendment which would have left the type of photograph (black and white or color) up to the Commissioner of Public Safety was defeated.

It appeared to me that a strong lobby representing a manufacturer of instant colored photographs was successful in making the color photograph mandatory. I hope the House removes the mandatory color photograph, passes same and returns it to the Senate for approval, because the indication is that the state could save $100,000 or more per biennium.

THIS WEEK I PREPARED A bill which will give the Iowa Corn Growers association the same statuatory status as is currently enjoyed by the Beef Producers, Swine Producers, Iowa Soybean association and other agricultural groups. This measure is long overdue because little has been done by Iowans to promote our most valuable crop.

This bill also provides that corn producers shall have a member on the important agriculture marketing board. It is here that much can be done to provide the education and research necessary to foster new and improved uses of corn products.

BUDGET MESSAGE—

Gov. Harold Hughes, in delivering his budget message to a joint session of the legislature noted that the derivation of the word budget is a matter of some interest.

"It comes from the Latin and French words meaning bag and, in our languarge, a 'budget' formerly meant a 'loose bundle.' Whatever else may be said about the budget I am about to submit, I assure you it is not a loose bundle. A bundle, perhaps but not loose," Hughes observed.

The governor then went on to propose a budget of $376.3 million annually, an increase of $105.3 million, or 38 per cent.

He told the lawmakers that the most widely discussed factor that enters into Iowa's financial planning is the current susbstantial surplus in the state's general fund, which he pegged at $94.4 million.

PART OF THE SURPLUS, HE noted, is non-recurring revenue resulting from the establishment of the withholding system for the indivual income tax last year and from the institution of monthly, instead of quarterly, reporting in the method of collecting the sales tax.

Another very substantial factor in the sharp upturn of revenues from the personal income tax was the fact that the advent of withholding caused thousands of persons to file and pay state income tax who had previously been non-filers. But, the governor concluded, the major part of the surplus results from Iowa's economic growth "on many fronts."

Hughes informed the legislators that originally the total receipts for the present biennium (the two-year period ending June 30, 1967) were estimated at $528.5 million. It is now anticipated, Hughes continued, that the total receipts will be $601.8 million — an increase of $73.3 million for the biennium.

THE INCREASES HAVE OCCURred in all revenue sources, but principally in the two taxes which comprise the major source of revenues — personal income taxes and sales taxes. Sales tax receipts totaled $86.2 million in the first year of the current biennium, and it is estimated that they will total $93 million in this, the second year.

"Percentagewise, these totals represent increases of 11 and nine per cent for the first and second years respectively," the governor observed. Making due allowance for inflation, such increases are unprecedented in the hostory of the state's sales tax revenues."

Hughes told the joint session that he is recommending a "balanced budget" with no increase in taxes. The budget, he said, contains substantial increases for capital improvements and local aids to schools, adding:

"ALSO, FUNDS ARE PROVIDed for other local credits by the state to replace or supplement existing local taxes . . .

"It will be seen that the greatest area of increase is in education and related programs of state aid to local governments. State support of education at all levels through operating funds and state aids, plus the homestead credit, agricultural land tax credit and other state funds that are channeled back to the local level comprise 61.4 per cent of my proposed budget.

"This amounts to $231 million — $64 million more than for this biennium and $23 million more than the entire state budget for 1963-65."

SPENDING PROPOSALS—

Here are some of Hughes' proposed expenditures: An annual increase of $18 million in operating funds for the board of regents' institutions, or a total of $80 million annually; an annual appropriation of $35.9 million for the board of control institutions, as compared to $28.8 million available now.

Increase the budget of social welfare to $33.8 million per year, an increase of nearly 40 per cent; recommendation of $73.3 million per year for state aid to schools, as compared to $48.2 million for the current biennium — an increase of more than 50 per cent . . . and $69.2 million for capital improvements including $30 million for board of regents' institutions.

VETERANS BENEFITS—

A group of bills which passed the Senate under the guidance of Senator Ken Benda of Hartwick will extend veterans' benefits to those who have served in the Viet Nam conflict.

PERSONAL PROPERTY—

At least three Senators are working diligently on repeal or modification of the personal property tax — William Reichardt of Polk, Hilarius Heying of West Union and Joe Flatt of Winterset. All are businessmen. Relief of the tax on inventory is a key issue; both parties are agreed that the tax on household goods should be repealed.

Senator Reichardt, who headed a similar drive as a member of the House last year, points out that his bill would eliminate the products sold but not the physical plant, fixtures or machinery. The discrepancies in taxing personal property are "unbelievable," he says.

DAYLIGHT HUBBUB—

The sigh of relief was almost audible in the legislature when Governor Hughes said that he would veto any bill to eliminate daylight saving time in Iowa. The governor's reputation for being forthright and candid didn't suffer any, either. Before the governor made his announcement, some of the legislators were being flooded with petitions opposing daylight saving time.

Federal law now requires that if a state is on "fast-time" that it be in effect from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October. However, a state can remain on standard time by passing legislation to this effect.

'66 turns $13,000 profit—

Ihm reports hospital year exceptionally good

The stage for opening of the new Belmond Community hospital additions (obstetrics wing to the east, laboratory and x-ray addition in the former court ajoining Rowen Room on the north) was appropriately set in 1966 by a record-breaking year.

Administrator Marc Ihm's annual report prepared for the city council shows that total income from hospital operations last year reached the all-time high of $249,284 — up $56,000 from 1965's $193,170. Admissions of 931 adults and children didn't amount to a record, but the total patient days of 6,928 did.

The financial picture was closely bound to the construction of the new facilities. Clear balance at the end of last year was $32,318 compared to $37,636 at the close of '65. But in the course of the year, $25,000 was transferred from the general fund to the building fund, diminishing the balance by that amount.

Profit up nearly $10,000

According to Mr. Ihm, the operating profit was up to approximately $13,000. In 1965, the figure had been $3,184.

It was a fortunate circumstance that the hospital is doing well financially, for a further draw on general funds will be needed to equip the added facilities. To date, $70,000 has been paid to the contractor and $61,000 remains in the building fund — leaving a difference of $30,000 under the $161.000 contracted cost. It is anticipated that this sum can be made up by money from the Luick Hospital Memorial Trust.

There will be, however, $8,000 to $10,000 more needed for furniture and equipment in the obstetrical wing and the x-ray-laboratory complex; and wherewithal will also have to be found to purchase $24,000 worth of new x-ray equipment. Mr. Ihm looks hopefully for these amounts to be obtainable from general funds.

Charges compare favorably

The pleasing financial situation has been achieved on charges of only $18 per day for a semi-private room and $21 for a private room — figures that compare very favorably with the charges of other hospitals in this vicinity and hospitals of Belmond's size throughout the state. The administrator notes that the hospital now owns the television sets that are made available to the patients and that no charge is made for their use. It is fairly prevalent practice elsewhere to charge an extra dollar a day for television.

Introduction of Medicare has had effects on the hospital in several regards. It enters into the fact that accounts receivable at the year's and were up to $43,019, whereas the corresponding figure was $26,804 a year earlier. But owing to a lag in payments from the federal government, $11,699 was due in Medicare fees; and part of the $4,241 due from Blue Cross was Medicare-related.

Payroll $8,453 higher

Not only have room charges been kept comparatively moderate, but the hospital has kept its sound financial position while at the same time paying its help wages that compare favorably with average wages the state over. Registered nurses were receiving from $335 to $396 monthly and aides $176 to $228. Pay to other staff members also ran average or better, in general.

Semi-annual raises go to all who remain on the staff over a period of time, so total wage cost is a gradually increasing figure. The gross payroll last year came to $118,520, which was $8,453 more than the year preceding.

Medicare made necessary the hiring of one additional office worker; and Mr. Ihm commented that when the new facilities go into use — hopefully, about April 1 — it will be necessary to hire an additional maintenance man and an additional housekeeper.

Tornado brought in 17

The noteworthy increase in admissions, from 842 in 1966 to 931 last year, was attributed by the administrator largely to the addition of an extra doctor to the staff when Drs. Harry and Velda Weber came here after the departure of Dr. Arlo Pitcher.

Mr. Ihm surmised that the inauguration of Medicate may have had a minor affect; and injuries caused by the tornado prompted 17 admissions.

Total of patient days coming to 6,928 was 635 over 1965 and also exceeded the previous record of 6,767 set in 1963. Average length of stay was 7.3 days compared to 7.1 the year before and a national average of 7.7. The "biggest" day of the year found 36 patients in the hospital and the "slimmest" only seven.

Average occupancy 73%

The daily average number of patients was 19 adults and children last year compared to 17.2 the year before and 16.8 in 1964. The previous "record" was 18.5 in 1963.

Average percentage of room occupancy was an all-time high of 73 per cent — very close to the maximum of 75 per cent that hospital authorities regard the top figure "acceptable". In 1965 the average occupancy was 66.1 and the year before that, 64.6.

There was a continuing drop in the number of babies born at the hospital. Live births last year numbered 121, a drop of 12 from 1965 and 31 less than in 1964. There wasn't much question but what "the pill" had an influence on this statistic.

108 more surgical cases

Major surgery cases were up to 331, exceeding the 1965 figure by 108 and Dr. Harry Weber found his services as a surgeon in steady demand. There was little change in the number of emergency room procedures, the 98 being only six more than the year before.

Belmond patients comprised a much higher per cent of total admissions in 1966 than in 1965, the respective numbers being 353 and 289. But it was still a relatively "healthy year" locally, for in both 1964 and '63 the hospital was used by 381 persons with Belmond addresses.

Kanawha continued to provide the next largest number of patients with 137, which was 23 more than last year. Altogether, 49 different communities were represented by patients in '66.

All in all, "good year"

Following Kanawha were: Klemme 74, Alexander 61, Goodell 41, Thornton 37, Meservey 30, Renwick 27, Rowan 23, Garner 20, Dows 17, Clarion and Corwith each 15, Latimer 10, Britt seven, Hampton six and Goldfield five.

There were three each from Clear Lake, Mason City and Eagle Grove, two each from Ames, Forest City, Galt, LuVerne and Sheffield. The 24 cities and towns represented by one patient each ranged from South Dakota and Minnesota to Mississippi and from Oregon to Michigan.

Althogether, Administrator Ihm regarded 1966 as "an exceptionally good year" from the hospital's viewpoint.

Proceedings of the Wright County Board of Supervisors

October 24, 1966
Clarion, Iowa

The Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa met in adjourned session at the Court House in Clarion with the following members present: Walter Weidemann, Chairman, Ed Kennedy, Everett Nelson, Albert W. Christopher and Wendell Duitscher, with the County Auditor in attendance.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

County Attorney Dewayne A. Knoshaug appeared before the Board on request in regard to delinquent taxes of James Gray d/b/a Clarion Variety Store. The County attorney stated that it would be unethical for him to represent the County in this particular action due to being the attorney for the said James Gray at present and in the past. Due to this situation, the County Attorney requested that, if the Board deemed it necessary, the Board have an attorney represent them in regard to this matter — that they hire one at County expense to do so.

Motion by Duitscher, seconded by Nelson, to employ McClure Engineering Company of Fort Dodge, Iowa to update Wright County drainage records and perform an audit on all drainage districts in Wright County. Motion carried.

Motion by Kennedy, seconded by Christopher, to approve bond of Deputy Treasurer, Betty Maxheimer. Motion carried.

THE NEXT BEST THING TO KNOWING IT'S OWNER IS KNOWING ITS OK

Generations ago, the selection of used transportation was a snap. You opened up the horse's mouth and checked his teeth for wear. Now, unless you're a mechanic, it's a bit harder. Which is precisely what the OK symbol is all about. You don't have to slam doors or kick tires at our OK lot. The OK tag tells you the car has been inspected, road-tested and reconditioned, as necessary. One reason of many why it's good horse sense to go OK.

USED CARS

AMES YOUTH SENTENCED FOR B&E, THEN PAROLED

Larry Jewett, 18, of Ames on Monday of last week at Clarion pleaded guilty before Judge Ed J. Kelley to three charges against him based on break-ins last year in Wright and other counties.

He admitted to involvement in the break-in at Whyte's Hardware in Goldfield, specifically; also larceny over $20 and conspiracy. The judge gave him a penitentiary sentence of up to 10 years on each count, to run concurrently.

But because the youth had already spent 45 days in jail and had no previous record, Judge Kelley gave him a bench parole and placed him under supervision of the state parole board.

Exam' scheduled to fill vacancy in assessor job

Notice is published in this issue by the examining board of Wright county that a written examination will be held March 15 in the courtroom at Clarion for applicants interested in the position of Wright county auditor. This post was left vacant by the death of F. Ross Henry a week ago last Saturday.

Members of the examining board, which was set up several years ago against the eventuality of a vacancy in the auditor's office, are: Al Saylor of Clarion, chairman; Mark Ihm, Belmond, secretary; and Moine Yanney, Eagle Grove.

The examination at 9:00 a. m. on March 15 will be conducted by the Iowa State Tax commission, which is responsible for appointing a new auditor. A test grade of 70 per cent on the examination is required to qualify as an applicant.

Application blanks are obtainable from County Auditor Ethel West. Any qualified elector of the state of Iowa may apply. The examination, however, will require extensive knowledge of property assessment and the laws pertaining thereto, so a person with no experience in the field would find it difficult to pass the test.

By law, the salary payable for the job has to be left at that which was being paid when the vacancy occurred. As of the first of this year, the annual pay of Assessor Henry had been increased from $7,200 to $8,000.

Applications for the assessor's position must be in the hands of the state tax commission at Des Moines prior to the examination date.

Ag' short course opens next week

County Extension Director Bob Berhnardt of Clarion advises that there is still time for Wright county farmers, fertilizer dealers and ag-chemical dealers to register for the three-day agronomy short course planned for this month by the Wright County Extension Council.

Broncs lose crucial tilt—

Two big quarters spell Bison win

Belmond outscored Buffalo Center 31 to 22 in the first an third quarters of the key game with Coach Bill Prohaska's Bison here Friday night. Unfortunately the contest was four quarters long and they counted the 2nd and 4th periods, too. The visitors were ahead in those two 49 to 24. That left them on top for the complete proceedings by a 71-55 margin.

If the reader is statistically inclined, he might find it of interest that the victors meshed only nine of 31 field goal attempts in the odd-number quarters for 29 per cent — and 21 of 35 in the even-numbered periods for almost 62 per cent. By halves, Belmond hit just nine out of 31, also, before the intermission. After the rest period the Broncs did better — 15 of 33 for 45-plus per cent — but not nearly good enough.

The big difference in the game was a slender, clever guard by the name of Pete Wessels who potted 26 points, fed adeptly to his Bison team mates, and played a better than adequate game on defense. The Broncos simply couldn't handle Pete. He made only three points in the first quarter; but that was because he did very little shooting. When he really took charge, it was curtains for Belmond.

Throughout the first quarter and until past mid-way in the second, it was a ball game. The first stanza ended with the score tied at 12-all; and with something like 3:50 remaining in the second the Broncos trailed by only two — 22-20. The rest of the way, it was Nellie-bar-the-gate as Belmond went scoreless and the Bison poured in 18 consecutive points for a 40-20 half-time lead.

Coach Ted Besch's boys returned to the floor clearly resolved to make amends, and for a time they enjoyed pretty fair success. As the end of the third period neared they'd pared the deficit to nine — 48-39 — and missed on three quick chances to reduce it to seven.

As the final period got just well started it was once again nine, 52-43; then Wessels & Co., racked up 12 points in a row for a 64-43 bulge and it was clearly evident who was No. 1 — and who was No. 2. The win virtually clinched the NIC title for the Bison, as their only possible challenger in their final three games is Forest City and they play the Indians on the BC floor.

Gary Meyers, the Broncos' ace, was saddled with the job of guarding Wessels, which was a distinct distraction to his own scoring efforts. Particularly after he picked up three rather quick fouls in the first half. He had only two points at intermission time, but added another dozen thereafter to pace the losers with 14.

No other Bronco could get in double figures. Terry Nelson managed nine, Greg Fuller eight, Doug Thompsen seven, Rob Rise and Tim Roberts each six, Paul Bamford four and Joel Gabrielson one. Bison scoring was more even-ingly spread, despite Wessels' 26. Dennis Heiman notched 14, Pat Orthel 13, DeWayne Torkelson nine, Darrel Steen seven and Paul Gray two.

In the froshmore curtain-raiser, the Junior Broncs dominated most of the first half by a big margin and still led 24-11 despite a minor rally by the Bison Calves just before the buzzer. It looked for a time in the second half as if Belmond had a collapsible offense, instead of the better known collapsible defense, and the visitors proceeded to slice the margin to four points.

Just in time, Coach Chuck Stalker's boys padded the gap to eight points as the end of the game neared and the final count was 36-29. Rick Hawley chalked up 10 points, Ron Ginapp eight, Lee Barkema and Greg Steenblock seven each. The victors played relatively steady defense, but in their last two outings their offense has looked decidedly ineffectual at times.

Clarion's matmen whip Colts; but Clear Lake edged

Belmond's junior high wrestlers on Thursday of last week were beaten by Clarion, 39 to 24; but on Saturday, the 8th-grade squad edged Clear Lake, 17-13.

Colt 7th-graders got points on a fall by Steve Burt (115 lbs.); decisions by Mark Cullinan (87 lbs.), 4-0; Mike Anderson (102), 9-2; and Mark Nelson (114), 1-0. Losing their matches were Jim Krugler, Russell Mikesh and Mike Griffin.

Eighth-grade winners were: Jim Cullinan (100)), 7-0 dec.; and Duane Anderson (120), 6-2 dec. David Nelson (108) posted a 0-0 draw, as did Doug Thompson (145). Losers were Bill Quigley (80), Steve Riedel (91), Jon Crawford (99) and Paul Schaefer (122).

Against Clear Lake, Steve Riedel won by 2-1 dec.; Jon Crawford, 2-0; Bob Berns, 4-0, Steve Burt, 4-0; and Paul Schaefer, 4-2; while Duane Anderson earned a 2-2 draw. Losers were David Nelson, Lindsey Morris and Doug Thompson.

Exhibitions not figuring in the team score were won by Paul Rogalla and Jim Cullinan and lost by Mike Anderson.

Albers and Mason knock off $350

Ed Albers and Wayne Mason last week picked off a $350 jackpot that Proprietor Vern Schmale had had posted for a month or so for the first duo that could gross 1,350 pins on a handicap basis at Bowl-Mor Lanes.

Albers, with the help of a 245 high game, scored a scratch 648 series to which he was entitled to add 18 handicap pins for a 666. Mason, a 40-handicap kegler, battered the maples for a scratch 587 — which with his 120 handicap grossed him 707.

The combination gave the pair 1,373, a comfortable 23 pins over the required pay-off total.

Frosh grapplers beat Clear Lake

Coach Jerry Kintzi's BHS freshman matmen trimmed Clear Lake 17-11 in an eight-match dual meet here Saturday afternoon. Terry Boyd got the only Belmond fall, pinning Mike Gilbert in 3:56.

Decisions were won by: Lynn Henn, 6-2, over Doug Ingersoll; Lewie Schaal, 2-0, over Rick Mayland; John Greenwood, 5-0, over Mark Stanton; and Irvin Meier, 4-0, over Tim Turek.

Darrell Bemrich lost 6-3 to Randy Low; Philippe Meier, 16-0, to Mike Lein; and Kevin Dorr was pinned in 4:55 by Rick Ott.

BHS matmen lose two close ones to WC Lynx

Belmond High's varsity wrestlers left unbeaten Heavyweight Les Steenblock with a little too much deficit to make up Wednesday night of last week at Webster City. Les pinned Claude Howard in 3:03, but the Broncos went into the final match trailing 22-16 and the fall left the Lynx still ahead, 22-21.

Bob McNutt, finishing off a an unbeaten career as BHS reserve heavyweight had the same experience — except his team mates left him in a position to gain a tie for Belmond. He took Ted Doolittle into camp on a 5-2 decision, but couldn't manage to pin him. The Broncs lost the reserve meet by two points, 35-23.

Wrestling one class over his certified weight, Jim Dickson saw victory escape him for the second meet in a row when he could do no better than draw with the Lynx' Mike Dinsdale, 2-2. Jim got a first period take-down, but then was reversed in the second period and couldn't score the rest of the way.

Belmond led most of the way in the varsity meet until Webster City drew even when Dan Elkin (154 lbs.) got a third-period reversal on Wayne Smith for a 2-1 victory to tie the team count at 16-all. Glen Gabrielson (165) took a 10-1 thumping at the hands of Chuck Gatewood and Fred Whipple (180) was decisioned by Dean Olson, 7-3.

Greg McClenahan (95) and John Knoll (103) had sent Belmond into a 6-0 lead with 4-0 decisions over Wayne Beach and George Baker, respectively. Jon Burnett (112) of Webster City interrupted the Bronco sweep by edging Tom Wilson 4-3; but Robb Dorr (120) made the team count 9-3 by out-pointing John Randall 4-0.

Dwayne Close reversed matters by decisioning Bronco Dave McLaughlin (127) 4-0 and Dickson's draw was followed by a loss to Lynx Mike Ribbey by Tom Swaroff (138) via a fall in 5:14.

Reserve results were as follows: 95 — Brian Bateson (B) pinned Sandy Arbaugh, 5:04; 103 — Dan Ketchum (B) drew with Dan Althoff, 4-4; 112 — Bruce Britson (WC) pinned Vernon Christie, 4:26; 120 — Steve Burnett (WC) dec. Bill Broshar, 8-7; 127 — Wade Ribbey (WC) won by forfeit; 133 — Denny McCollough (WC) dec. Bob Cullinan, 8-4.

138 — Kevin Gallagher (B) drew with Dan Finer, 2-2; 145 — Dennis Finn (B) dec. John Osweiler, 1-0; 154 — Eugene Pals (B) dec. Tom Boicourt, 5-2; 165 — Mack Gabrielson (B) pinned Earl Warren, 2nd period; 180 — Steve Markwardt (WC) won from Les Andrews by forfeit; hwt. — McNutt (B) dec. Doolittle, 5-2.

Broncs must stop highest-scoring offense in NIC tomorrow at F. C.

Tommorrow night at Forest City, the Bronco basketeers will have to cope successfully with the highest scoring team in the North Iowa conference if they are to keep alive their very slight hopes of figuring in the loop championship. For that matter, their chances of finishing in the runner-up spot could very well be in the balance.

Belmond will be sending against an offense that has been averaging 74 points in conference play a defense that is the weakest a Bronco aggregation has presented in a number of years. In fact, there is good reason to suspect that it is the leakiest defense that a BHS basketball team has EVER possessed.

Part of the explanation to this lies in the fact that offensive play has become progressively more open with the passing years. But where the Broncos have been yielding 62.8 points per game, Buffalo Center has succeeded in holding the same foes to an average of 49.3 — so style of play isn't the whole answer, by quite a bit.

At no time in the eight years that Osage has been in the NIC has Belmond permitted loop foes to score so heavily. In '60-61, the defensive average was 60.6 and the next year, 60.4; but in the other five seasons prior to this one, the Broncos had an over-all defensive average of 51.5. Even in '57-58, the year before Osage joined the league, Belmond posted a 52.7 defensive mark although finishing next-to-last in the NIC with a 4-8 record.

At Forest City, the Broncos will face possibly the best balanced team in the conference. Coach Herb Konigsmark has seven different players who could figure as the team's top scorer in any one particular game, which makes defending the Indians a rugged chore. But the Broncos are going to have to figure out how to do it, or they could wind up as low as fourth in the final NIC standings.

On Tuesday night, Britt will come to Belmond looking for its first win of the campaign. The Eagles, at least, are one outfit who make the Bronco defense look good. They've permitted loop opponents and average of 83.5 per game. But they also have, the highest scorer in the conference in Tom McDermott, who's been hitting the net at a rate of 24 points per outing.

Colts take pair against Clarion

Clarion's junior high cagers were dealt a pair of defeats here Wednesday afternoon of last week as the Belmond 7th-grade Colts came out ahead 32-22 and the 8th-graders coasted to a 54-25 victory.

While the 7th-grade game had its close moments, there was never too much doubt as to the probable outcome. Belmond held a 17-11 halftime lead. Nick Classick pitched in 15 points, Ken Robbins and Marc Gabrielson six each and David Barkema five.

With Fred Erdman accounting for 29 points, the local 8th-graders were in solid control from start to finish though at halftime their lead was only 21-13. Ron Fuller posted eight points, Norm Olson five, Sam McLaughlin and Tim Greenwood four apiece, Dave Snyder and David Goeman two each.

32 players on jr. high rosters

Two 16-player squads have been seeing duty in junior high basketball action this winter under Coach Jack Steinberg.

Personnel of the Colts' 7th-grade squad includes: David Barkema, Dean Barkema, Nick Classick, Randy Covington, Ben Fuller, Steve Gallagher, Marc Gabrielson, Dennis Janssen, Joel Laaveg, Danny Lowenberg, Wayne Lonnevik, Tyler McNeal, Kevin Olson, Curtis Pals, Ken Robbins, Steve Walrod.

Jan. 27, 1967

Dear Editor:

I want to congratulate Lynn Sorum and the crew of "The Sandbox" for their excellent portrayal to the public Wednesday night of a splendid play.

Although I thoroughly enjoyed the play, I was quite disturbed by the response that a major portion of the audience displayed. In spite of the adequate explanation given by the director before the production, several children and adults insisted on continually perturbing those of us who were conscientiously trying to follow the story.

I regretfully feel that something is wrong with our "Belmond society" when the "children" on stage show more intelligence and respect than we "adults" in the audience.

Sincerely
Cindy Musselman

Dear Friends:

The rapid pace of modern living is indeed very taxing on our bodies. The responsibilities to our families, jobs, churches, communities, and friends, require an ever increasing amount of our time and energy. To meet and satisfy the daily demands calls for a high level of strength and vigor, as well as willingness on our part.

Health must be guarded constantly if we are to continue to meet all of the responsibilities of this modern era. The man or woman who loses their health, should exert every possible effort to regain that lost health.

Regular, periodic chiropractic check-ups are the most effective means available to insure a high level of health. Call today and make an appointment for your check-up. Wonderful, glowing, vibrant, youthful health can be yours.

Sincerely,

Dr. W. W. Weisbrod

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 48 NO. 20 | OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, FEB. 9, 1967 | OFFICIAL CITY PAPER | 10 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Hizonner Mayor Bob Misner has proclaimed the current month to be "Heart Month" in these particular parts (as it is the nation over). The proclamation contains a number of whereas-es, the gist of them being that heart and blood vessel diseases take more lives in the U. S each year than all other causes of death combined.

"Doc" Misner also duly notes that "medical science is on the verge of important breakthroughs to further control heart and blood vessel diseases."

"Therefore," concludes the proclamation, "I urge all citizens to help speed their Heart Association's research, education, and community heart programs through Heart Fund contributions and volunteer service supporting the 1967 Heart Fund with the full measure of their generosity." Keep it in mind when your volunteer Heart solicitor calls.

Seems as if more and more couples reach their 50th wedding anniversary these days. Of course, average life span is getting longer and longer, so that shouldn't be surprising. But two couples JOINTLY celebrating their 50th anniversary is really somethin' different. They were the Art Prignitzes and the Gus Halversons. Kinda young, you say? Well, Mr. and Mrs. Pringnitz had reached their 29th and Mr. and Mrs. Halverson their 21st. Add 'em up. . . . . THEY did.

A lengthy story in a recent issue of the Salina, Calif., Valley News tells of an excellent job being done in the near-by King City schools by Mrs. Marty (Charles) Taylor, who was Marlys McLaughlin before her marriage last August. She's a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim McLaughlin, graduated from BHS in '64 and had two years at SCI, Cedar Falls, with Spanish as her chosen field. She first took Spanish under KiRin Kim and, according to her mother, obtained from the likable Korean her inspiration to teach that language.

Like all school systems, King City's is desperate for teachers and when it was learned that "Marty" was qualified to teach Spanish she was drafted for the elementary schools' communication skills laboratory.

She and a young associate, Mrs. Margaret McCune, help Spanish-speaking students improve their English. Marlys is teaching language skills to 50 youngsters with the help of a laboratory that was set up under Title I funds. She has students from grades one through six. She engages in dialogue with the older pupils to help them learn elementary commands and converse on practical topics they might encounter in daily living. In view of her success, it goes without saying that Marlys thoroughly enjoys what she's doing.

Hear, ye! All gentlemen taking size 46 trousers are advised that some firetruck red hunting pants of that size are looking for owners at the city hall. They are the residue of a sizeable shipment of such garments received from an eastern manufacturer who'd asked that they go to local tornado victims. Size 46 victims have proved hard to locate in quantity. About a half dozen such garments remain to be distributed. If they'll fit you — or could be altered to do so — drop in and claim a pair. It's guaranteed no hunter will mistake you for a deer (or even a cow).

From Faribault, Minn., last week came a letter addressed to the Janitor of the Goodell Elementary school. Enclosed was a check for $5.00 from the Allen S. Gilmon family, who had taken refuge in the school during the blizzard a couple of weeks earlier.

Wrote Mr. Gilmon: "Please use this money to partially defray the cost incurred on Jan. 16. My wife and I feel that the goodwill of your community deserves recognition. The storm might have been a frightening experience for our three small children, but for the kindness and consideration of your teachers and community."

Custodian Bill Boller saw that the money went into the Goodell school's hot-lunch fund, along with the several other dollars that had been left by stranded wayfarers . . . perhaps to supply the kids with a "little something special" at some time

Mrs. Elma Shillington of Clarion, who has earned quite a reputation as a poet, was one of just 11 Iowa poets represented in a new book, "Poets of the Midwest," which was placed on sale last month. It was compiled and edited by a professor of English at Defiance (O.) college.

Mrs. Shillington's efforts have won three first places in Iowa poetry contests, plus a number of lesser honors. As Elma Stapely, the Clarion poetess lived for some years here and graduated from Belmond High school. She then attended Iowa State Teachers college at Cedar Falls and taught for a time before her marriage.

She's been writing poetry since she was a child, when her family lived in New Mexico. She continued as a housewife, mother and grandmother and declares that poetry is not just a hobby with her but "a way of life". Over the years, she's had 40 poems published in anthologies and elsewhere

GROUP ELECTS OFFICERS

O-Ki-Ci-Ya-Pi Camp Fire group met Tuesday afternoon of last week and elected new officers. They are: Jeannie Whipple, president; Patti Quigley, vice president; Diane Cooke, secretary; and Debbie Armour, treasurer. The members decided to hold a Valentine dinner to help earn credits toward their Fire Maker's rank.

THOUGH THE AUDIENCE was not large (it numbered 112) at last Thursday night's hearing on the widening of Highway 69, keen interest was shown in the proceedings; and all who wished to participate were given ample opportunity. At right is pictured a portion of the testimony being given by Wilbur Lieberknecht, proprietor of OK Tire Supply, as highway commission engineers behind him listened and made notes. A complete story on the hearing will be found on the editorial page.

Jaycees putting finishing touches to Tornado Album; photos a-plenty

Final stages of preparation are about to be entered in readying the Belmond Jaycees' Tornado Album for the printer. Bruce Schroeder, who has been handling editor-in-chief duties on the project, believes that the album will constitute a memento of the disaster that will be treasured for many years in many homes.

Its front cover will present an aerial view of Main street shortly after the tornado and the back will offer a picture of the north residential area that was so extensively damaged.

The album's "Dedication" will explain that proceeds are being earmarked for city park rehabilitation and construction of a new peewee ball park.

There will be a page of reading matter dealing with tornadoes in general and another devoted to particulars of Belmond's twister. Two pages will be filled with unusual personal experiences and oddities resulting from the storm.

Two to four pages will contain headlines of stories pertaining to the tornado that appeared in papers from coast to coast and border to border.

"Of course, major interest in the album will lie in the pictures with which it will be liberally illustrated," says Mr. Schroeder. He tells that the book will contain aporximately 160 photographs, which will occupy 98 to 100 pages.

Attached to the back cover of the album will be a fold-out map of Belmond, which will help the reader orient himself as to the locations depicted in the photos.

It is the Jaycees' hope that printing will be completed and the album ready for distribution soon after March 1. It is believed that it can sell for $2.00 and still give the organization a sufficient profit to help carry on its good works.

Mrs. Earl Haupt dies at age 78; rites last week

Funeral services for Mrs. Earl Haupt were held Friday afternoon of last week at the Methodist church, Rev. M. L. Jones officiating and Johnston Funeral Home in charge.

Burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Pallbearers were Raymond Pals, Harold Nelson, Louis Loth, Claude Veeder, Ralph and Arnold Wendel.

Mrs. Haupt's death occurred a week ago Wednesday at Belmond Community hospital, where she had been a patient for a month. She was 78 years old.

May Schanck was born near Belmond on April 4, 1888, daughter of George and Angeline (Owen) Schanck. She was educated in a rural school near her home and later attended a dressmaker's school. She taught dressmaking for a time, afterward.

On Sept. 3, 1921, she was married to Earl Haupt and throughout their married lives they farmed southeast of Belmond. Two sons were born to them, Ernest George, now of Waterloo, and Cortland Owen, Hopkins, Minn.

Mrs. Haupt was a member of the Methodist church and various of its women's organizations. She also was a long-time member of the D. A. R.

In addition to her husband and sons, she is survived by seven grandchildren. Her parents and one sister preceded her in death.

Plans completed for observance of "Prayer Day"

Friday of this week will find four Belmond churches joining in annual observance of the World Day of Prayer. The local service will be held at the Immanuel Reformed church east of town at 8:00 p. m. Mrs. Ben Barkema has been chairman of the planning committee, in behalf of the host church.

Participating besides women from the Immanuel Reformed will be those from the Bethany Reformed, Congregational and Methodist churches.

For nearly 80 years the World Day of Prayer has been joined in by steadily growing numbers of people the world over. It is sponsored by United Church Women, who invite all of the community to join in the observance.

This year, millions in 127 countries will unite in prayer on Feb. 10 in this unique event. No barriers of race, denomination or culture are recognized.

Each year the representative of a different nation is asked to prepare the World Day of Prayer service. This year's was written by a South Sea Island Queen, Salote Tupou of the Tonga Islands. She had ruled her island kingdom for 47 years when the wrote the service in 1965, just before her death.

Her strong Christian faith and sense of the eternal is reflected in the service. Since 1949, World Day of Prayer has been observed on Tonga, the only country in the Pacific to remain an independent kingdom after the 19th century.

Council sets up arcade discussion with architects

Members of the Belmond city council Monday night discussed a contract submitted for consideration by Gjelten and Schellberg, Forest City architectural firm, relative to preparation of plans and specification for the proposed arcade on four blocks of Main street.

Willis Schellberg, partner in the firm, has been invited to attend a special meeting of the council next Monday and go over the details of the contract. If the provisions meet the council's approval, it was the consensus of the members that the Forest City concern should be retained to proceed with design and planning of the arcade.

Annual report of the Belmond Community hospital, as submitted by Administrator Marc Ihm, was accepted by the council.

A special resolution was passed, to be made of permanent record by inclusion in the minutes, expressing appreciation to the State of Iowa for the parts played by state agencies in assisting the community following the tornado last October. Copies of the resolution are to be sent to Gov. Harold Hughes and to the 62nd General Assembly, which is now in session, so both the chief executive and the legislators will be made acquainted with the gratitude felt by the people of Belmond.

The resolution was prompted by the services rendered by the Iowa State Highway Commission, the Highway Patrol, the National Guard, Civil Defense organization, Iowa Development Commission and other such agencies that helped the community after the storm and assisted in planning for Belmond's recovery.

"The help we received," said the resolution, "was an outstanding example of 'government for the people' and we shall ever be grateful."

540 attend; plan '68 event—

Farmers praise clinic's "success"

Although total attendance at last Saturday's Farm Clinic sponsored by the town-and-country committee of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce fell somewhat shy of the number anticipated, the event was regarded a decided success — and well worth repeating in years to come.

Registration came to 540, whereas 700 had been hopefully expected. But Chamber Secretary Ellis Elliott reports that the hundreds who were present expressed much enthusiasm for excellence of the clinic and frank hopes that it would be held yearly.

The immediate Belmond vicinity provided 275 of the registrants. The other 265 came from 31 different communities. There were 37 from Alexander, 33 from Kanawha, 27 from Clarion, 23 from Meservey, 22 from Goodell, 15 from Klemme and 10 or more from Renwick, Rowan, Galt and Latimer.

Fifty-five came from the southeast of Belmond, 52 from northwest, 46 from the north, 37 from the northeast, 31 from the general area to the south. The other nine, in addition to local farmers, came from far and wide.

Guests who went home especially happy as door prize winners were: Lester Buseman, $25 saving bond from First State bank; C. M. Gillespie, Renwick, tractor cushion from Coast to Coast; Harvey Steenblock, Kanawha, grease gun from Silvey Implement; Roger Engstrom, Renwick, canned ham from P & G.

Thurman Gaskill, Corwith, insulated coveralls from Thompsen-Keleher; Bob Ostendorf, Meservey, 50 lbs. dog food from Belmond Veterinary Clinic; Jack Burt, Rowan, ton of fertilizer from Armour's; Loren Kalkwarf, 1,000 free trading stamps from We 3 Market; Larry Swenson, trouble light from Lloyd's Hardware.

Roy Hanson, Jr., block salt holder from Triggs Manufacturing; L. H. Pals, grease gun kit from Helland & Long; Gary Ersland, $30 worth of Master Mix Feed from Central Soya; Lyle Lewellyn of Galt, Paul Hopple of Latimer, Klaas Suntken of Alexander, Chester Hill and John Rokke, each a bushel of Unicross seed corn from Tomco.

Mr. Elliott says the farmers he talked to were unanimous in calling it "a wonderful program" and saying they would look forward to a similar clinic next year.

It is the Chamber's plan to have an entirely new program in 1968 and one that will include some attractions for the farmers' wives.

Mrs. Eva Zeiger rites conducted; died at age 76

Mrs. Eva Zeiger died Sunday at Belmond Community hospital after having suffered declining health for a period of years. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at St. Francis church, Rev. R. A. Ormsby officiating and Fulton Funeral Home in charge.

Burial was in St. Francis cemetery. Pallbearers were Henry Schlagel of Galt, Carol Wiegand and Loren Ziegler of Kanawha, James W. Barry, Joseph Ziller and William James.

Mrs. Zeiger was born Feb. 14, 1890, at Dagot, Russia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schomber. She was married there on May 18, 1910, to John Zeiger, Sr. The emigrated to the U. S. in 1913, living first at West Bend and then at Waterloo before settling at Belmond in 1920.

The family name is preserved in the annals of Belmond history by virtue of their son Joseph being one of the first men from the community to die in uniform during World War II. His name was incorporated into that of Pierce-Zeiger post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Nine children were born to the Zeigers. A daughter died in infancy and a second daughter, Rose Larson, died in 1956. Surviving their mother are: John and Marie Zeiger of Kanawha, Alex and Mrs. Ruth (Clarence) Mickelson of Belmond, William of Stanberry, Mo., and Mrs. Ann (Lyman) Bubar of Tacoma, Wash.

Mr. Zeiger died Aug. 29, 1961, and following his death Mrs. Zeiger made her home with her son and daughter at Kanawha. She had been a hospital patient about 2½ weeks before her death.

She belonged to the Rosary Society of St. Francis church, the VFW Auxiliary and — as mentioned — was a Gold Star Mother.

Surviving in addition to her children are 25 grandchildren.

LATEST IN THE SERIES of business openings — or reopenings — occurring in Belmond on the heels of last fall's tornado was at George's Auto-Electric last Thursday morning. Proprietor George Swaroff is shown third from right as he and a group of Chamber of Commerce associates witness the ceremonial ribon-cutting, Vice President Duane Anderson presiding at the shears.

Annual creamery meeting Saturday

Annual meeting of the Belmond Co-op Creamery will be held this Saturday at the BHS student center. Coffee and doughnuts will be served starting at 10:00 a. m. and the regular meeting will start at 10:30 o'clock.

Ernie Gerardi, accordion virtuoso from Klemme, will entertain during the coffee hour and also during the free luncheon to be served at noon.

Manager Curtis Rise will give his yearly report on the creamery's operations and an election will be held to name three directors. The board members whose terms are expiring are Ray Wicks of Kanawha, Verl Rollene of Dows and Gilman Soma.

Checks for the amount accumulated in the revolving fund during 1962 will be distributed. They will total about $5,100 and go to approximately 150 co-op members who were conducting dairy operations at that time.

George Crawford has been president of the co-op during the past year, Mr. Soma has been vice president and Harold Nelson, secretary.

Mrs. Shirer head of seal campaign

Mrs. Bill Shirer, as president of Xi Beta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority, is Belmond chairman for the 1967 Easter Seal campaign. Her group has accepted responsibility for getting seals of the Iowa Society for Crippled Children in the mail to local homes

The annual campaign will officially open on Feb. 20 — earlier than usual, due to the early date of Easter — and conclude on Easter Sunday, March 26.

Dr. G. W. Patterson of Eagle Grove is serving as Wright county Easter Seal chairman, with Dr. E. L. Sizemore of Clarion as co-chairman.

Mrs. Shirer and her sorority sisters have also agreed to see that the seal letters are mailed to boxholders in Belmond, Pleasant and Norway townships. No seal chairman could be obtained for either Rowan or Iowa township.

Kickoff Tuesday for Heart drive

Mrs. George Sharp, one of the co-chairmen for the local Heart Fund campaign, announces that a kickoff meeting which all workers are urged to attend will be held at 9:30 a. m. next Tuesday at the Town House cafe.

As earlier announced, Xi Beta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi has agreed to direct the Heart Fund Campaign in Belmond for this year.

Mrs. Leo Woodley of Clarion, Wright county campaign chairman, will be present to speak to the solicitors before they begin their canvassing for contributions. Supplies will be handed out during the course of the kickoff meeting.

No drive chairman could be obtained for Pleasant township, but Mrs. Woodley reports that chairmen for other near-by townships are: Belmond, Mrs. Jame McLaughlin; Norway, Mrs. John Rietema of Kanawha; Grant, Mrs. Gail Thayer; and Iowa, Mrs. Melvin McAlpine.

Mrs. Sharp reminds the people of Belmond that for two years in a row, Wright county has been more generous in support of the Heart Fund — on a per capita basis of giving — than any other county in the state.

"Belmond," she notes, "played an important role in bringing this enviable distinction to our county. We confidently expect fine support of the Heart Fund here again this year."

Funeral services for "Con" Hoppel held on Saturday

Death came Thursday of last week to one of Belmond's oldest citizens when complications stemming from cancer brought an end to the life of Conrad Hoppel at the age of 95. He died at Belmond Community hospital after several months of failing health.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at St. John Lutheran church, of which he was the last surviving charter member. Rev. Leo Andersen officiated and Johnston Funeral Home was in charge.

Burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Serving as pallbearers were Clarence Vestweber, William Lacey, Claude Veeder, Bert Kalkwarf, Albert Rabe and Galen Johnson.

Mr. Hoppel was born in Germany on Sept. 17, 1871, son of George and Katherine Hoppel. He emigrated to this country as a young man and first settled at Peru, Ill., coming to the Belmond vicinity in 1898.

He was married on Feb. 24, 1904, to Elizabeth Geitz at the home of the bride's parents in Iowa township. They farmed east of Belmond for the next 50 years, retiring in 1954 and making their home in Belmond thereafter.

Mr. Hoppel had remained a member of the St. John church from the time of its founding.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two sons, William George Hoppel and Clarence E. Hoppel, and a daughter, Mrs. William (Lorine B.) Rabe, all of Belmond. He also leaves seven grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by a brother and sister in Germany.

E. G. club seeks to set up "foster home" system

The goal of a system of foster homes for Wright county juveniles will be sought at a countywide meeting of service club representatives to be held in Clarion Thursday night of next week. The Belmond Lions club has agreed to have representation at the meeting.

The move is a project of the Eagle Grove Rotary club. Since the goal is to find foster homes in all parts of the county, the Rotarians are seeking help from other service clubs in the county because they can each do a more effective job in their respective communities.

The foster homes are being sought as temporary residence for juveniles who authorities feel should be placed in an improved environment on either a temporary or a semi-permanent basis. They would be private homes where the families agree to provide a home for juveniles in need. The foster families would be reimbursed by the welfare agencies in charge.

At the present time there are no such homes in the county. When peace officers need a place to keep a juvenile overnight or for several days, there is no place available except the county jail or in the Webster county detention home.

The juvenile court judge usually has no place to send a juvenile other than to one of the state training schools or back into the environment where he or she originally got into trouble. Families willing to take on the responsibility for these youngsters will be sought.

Two types of homes are needed. The first is a home where a youngster can be taken for periods ranging from several days to several months. Arrangement would be made in advance and the family would be paid during the time the youngster was there.

The other type is a home that is ready to receive a youngster at any time of the day or night and usually for short periods of time. This home would be on a permanent monthly retainer from the welfare authorities.

The meeting next Thursday will be held in the community room of the First National bank in Clarion. Interested individuals are invited to attend, along with the club representatives. Further information may be obtained from Ty Robinson, committee chairman, or members Dr. John Erlander and Dr. Dale Harding, all of Eagle Grove.

Question: Where'd the doggone dogs go?

Would you believe that the dog population of Wright county (as represented by licenses issued) declined by nearly 600 — or 25 per cent — between 1961 and last year?

Neither do the personnel of the auditor's office. Nevertheless, 2,171 canines were equipped with county dog tags in 1961; and last year only 1,581 were licensed.

There's been a rather steady decline in licenses issued during recent years. But Deputy Auditor Helen Mikelson expressed decided personal doubts that the actual canine population has fallen off to any such degree as indicated.

In 1962, dog licenses numbered 1,966; in 1963 they were down to 1,852; they stayed about the same in 1964, at 1,854; but in 1965 the figure was down to 1,803. Then came a drop of 222, to 1,581 last year.

There is a clear indication that a further decrease in licenses may be expected this year, for up to Monday of this week only 459 county dog tags had been issued.

While there was no ready explanation for the downward trend during the 1961-65 period, Mrs. Mikelson says not much guesswork is necessary to arrive at a reason from last year's drop. Certification of rabies inoculation is the answer.

Effective last year, a dog's owner has had to present proof from a veterinarian that his pet received an inoculation that will safeguard him against rabies for a least six months following issuance of the license.

This has led to some arguments. Veterinarians seem generally to agree that a rabies shot should provide immunity for three years. The state law says two years; so every other year a new shot is required. Some dog owners comment, "Cats are as liable to get rabies as dogs; but they don't have to be inoculated. Why?"

A rabies shot, in most cases, costs $3.50 (sometimes special clinics are conducted with a lower price, though). A male or spayed female can be licensed for a dollar; an un-neutered female for $3.00. Some dog owners intentionally let their licenses become overdue, whereupon (May 1) the cost is added to their taxes with a dollar penalty.

Then, when they pay their taxes, their dog is eligible for its tag without any rabies certification. Saves $2.50, they maintain. Mrs. Mikelson points out that the law isn't very effective, when it can be circumvented in this simple fashion.

The most important result of the increasing failure to get dogs licensed by the county at all, is that there's a lot less money in the domestic animal fund. From this fund is paid claims for animals killed by marauding dogs. (Of course, more dogs are left susceptible to rabies, too — when they're not inoculated.)

So far this year, less than a third of the dogs that were licensed by the county last year have been relicensed. In Belmond, 99 were licensed a year ago. Thus far in 1967, only 21 have been.

In obtaining information for this story, incidentally, your reporter found that the style in dog names has changed quite radically over the years. You still find an occasional Rex, Spot, Lassie or Sport. There are no Rovers or Bowsers anymore.

There's a perceptible trend toward more originality. In Belmond last year there were two Skippies, two Ladies, two Trixies, two Smokies, two Cindies, two Friskies. But most names were one to a customer — such as Softie, Cupcake, Bandit, Pixie, Sabastion and (talk of originality!) Pup.

Names of 34 of Belmond's 99 licensed dogs were not registered. In a lot of these cases, fees were mailed in with the information incomplete. In other cases, Dad reported, "Darned if I know what the kids call him. And you wouldn't want to put down what I call him most of the time."

A lot of Dads (farmer-fathers, in particular) also insist, "Wouldn't have a dog on the place, if it wasn't for the kids." This, the auditor's staff usually takes with a grain of salt.

While we're peddling all this information we might as well add that the oldest pet we found being licensed here was 15 years of age. . . . Name wasn't down on the application, either. Surely Pop knows by now what THAT dog's name is!

MORE THAN 400 stockholders in the Hampton Federal Land Bank association on Tuesday night of last week witnessed the presentation pictured above as the organization held its annual meeting at Belmond Community High school. Hubert Heimstra (left) of Clarion received the 50th anniversary cake that centered the main table at the dinner served in the student center. Kenneth Showalter of Hampton, association president, honored Mr. Heimstra in this manner in recognition of 12 years that the latter served on the board of the Clarion Federal Land Bank association before it merged with the Hampton association two years ago. Mr. Heimstra was president of the Wright group for 10 years. This year's annual meeting marked the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the Federal Land Bank system.

Bronco rallies fall short—

Indians take key game, 67 to 61

SPORTS

Belmond High's basketeers made a game try of rallying from big deficits twice at Forest City last Friday night, but they just couldn't get the job done and the Indians preserved a slim chance to share the North Iowa conference title by taking a 67-61 victory. The Indians' hopes rested on the improbable achievement of beating Buffalo Center on the Bison court Tuesday night of this week and then downing Northwood at home.

Occasional slipshod defense — by spurts — and horrible luck at getting the ball through the hoop brought the Broncos' defeat. Down the final stretch, the Belmond crew made only three of nine freethrow chances good, when the lost points were highly important.

With a little over two minutes to play, a basket by Gary Meyers and one charity hit on two tries by Bob Rise had cut to two points — 62-60 — what had been a 15-point edge for the Indians about four minutes earlier. Three quick fielders by Paul Bamford in a reserve role had sparked the surge that encouraged Belmond rooters to hope maybe the Broncs would squeeze out a win after all.

But Forest City pulled it up to 65-60 on a freethrow and basket by Tom Anderson; then, after Terry Nelson made good on the first of two gratis attempts and later missed the initial try on a one-and-one opportunity, Riley Lewis put the game away with a final two-pointer.

What Belmond was going to be up against throughout most of the of the game was suggested in the first quarter when the Broncos were able to connect on only two of 19 field goal tries. Actually, a lot of them were pretty poor chances; but whatever they were, they wouldn't go in — and the Indians sailed to a 20-6 lead. They, in contrast, worked in for good tries and meshed eight of 18 attempts.

It looked as if school was out when Forest City romped to a 26-10 advantage; but the Broncos pecked away at the big deficit and by the arrival of halftime they were only four behind, 30-26. This period saw Belmond connect on six of 14 efforts from the floor while the Indians cooled off to a 4-for-19.

Before Forest City broke away with another splurge, the Broncs cut their deficit to 32-30 early in the third quarter. At that point, though, Belmond again began to fall steadily behind and after trailing 52-40 going into the final stanza saw the Indians blaze into a 60-45 advantage with six minutes showing on the clock.

Shortly before, Tim Roberts — who'd collected 12 points in the first half but didn't score thereafter — had fouled out and Bamford took his guard spot. His hot hand got the Broncos stirred up and the Forest City's margin began to dwindle with rapidity. Belmond could never quite catch up, though, and Coach Herb Konigsmark's outfit got their victory.

Scoring percentages in the last half were pretty much a repeat of the first, Belmond sinking only 11 of 38 floor tries for a cool 28 per cent for the night and Forest City bagging 13 of 25 efforts for better than 50 per cent after the intermission and and a respectable 40 per cent for the game.

Meyers' shooting eye was not up to par and he was held to only 13 points, but the hard-working little guard was still top man for the losers. After Roberts' 12 came Nelson and Rise with 10 each, Bamford with eight, Greg Fuller three, Doug Thompsen and Jim Studebaker two apiece and Joel Gabrielson one.

Schmidt paced the Indians with 17 points, "Dusty" Thompson got 14, Riley Lewis 12, Tim Anderson nine, Ken Groh eight and Tom Anderson seven, in a well-balance performance.

Belmond's froshmore faded entirely out of the NIC freshman-sophomore title picture as they suffered their second loss in the past three games, 44-37. The Junior Broncos trailed 22-17 at the half, trimmed the margin to 22-21, but then fell behind and were unable to threaten again. Lee Barkema with 14 and Greg Steenblock with 12 led the losers in scoring.

Cagers need win over Lake Mills to escape 4th place NIC finish

In the home team dressing room at the high school a poster was placed on the wall at the outset of the current North Iowa conference basketball season stating, "NIC coaches pick Belmond for 4th place."

Actually, the pre-season roundup quoting coaches' opinions of the up-coming race in the loop was not that cut-and-dried. Some of the mentors did, though point to Buffalo Center, Forest City and Lake Mills as having good potential — along with Belmond.

As matters stood this week, though, the poster threatened to bear up as a very accurate augury. The Broncos were, indeed, occupying 4th place in the NIC standings; and only a victory over Lake Mills in the Bulldogs' new gym this Friday night will prevent the outcome that the poster predicted.

As against Forest City last weekend, Belmond will be facing a well-balanced offense that has been clicking at better than a 70-per-game gait. Big Steve Pederson and slick-shooting Roger Bang have been pacing the Bulldogs with averages of 15.5 and 13.5, respectively. But Maury Hope, Tom Westendorf and Stan Olson have all been in double figures with frequency and cannot be slighted on defense.

Like the Indians, the Bulldogs have been taking their lumps at the hands of the Broncos with frustrating regularity in recent years and a victory tomorrow night would be most satisfying to Coach Jim Borcherding and his crew. It would also give the Bulldogs sole possession of 3rd place in the final NIC standings — if Lake Mills managed on Tuesday night to trim Garner on the Cards' home floor.

Colts take two against Britt jr. high teams

Belmond's 8th grade junior high cagers kept their record unmarred a 4-0 and the 7th graders avenged their only defeat in four starts when they handed Britt a pair of defeats here Wednesday afternoon of last week.

Coach Jack Steinberg used reserves freely in the 7th grade game and comfortable leads were wiped out a couple of times before the Colts wound up with a 24-22 victory.

Nick Classick and Ken Robbins each pitched in eight points, Ben Fuller four, Marc Gabrielson and David Barkema two apiece for the winners.

With the Colts' rangy regulars on the floor, the visiting 8th graders were no match for the Belmond crew. By halftime, Britt was trailing 27-6 and with four minutes of game time remaining the margin was 44-12. Coach Steinberg cleared the bench and the final count was 46-29.

Fred Erdman led the Belmond scoring with 12 points, followed by Ron Fuller with eight, Norm Olson seven, Dave Snyder six, Dave Goeman five, Sam McLaughlin four, Dave Hickman and Tim Greenwood two each.

November 14, 1966
Clarion, Iowa

The Board of Supervisors of Wright County, Iowa, met in regular session at the Court House in Clarion, Iowa, with the following members present: Walter Weidemann, Chairman, Ed Kennedy, Wendell Duitscher, Albert W. Christopher and Everett Nelson, with the Deputy County Auditor in attendance.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Ralph Austin appeared before the Board and explained that Wright County had owned Lot 8, Block 8, Original Town of Clarion, Iowa and that, at the time the County conveyed the property many years ago, the deed was not properly approved by the Board of Supervisors and this put a cloud on the title. Mr. Austin asked that the County give a Quit Claim Deed to Mr. A. M. Saylor who is purchasing the property so as to clear the title. A Quit Claim Deed was presented. The County Attorney was asked to examine it and upon his finding it in order, motion was made by Duitscher, seconded by Kennedy, that said Quit Claim Deed be approved and the Chairman of the Board of Supervisors be authorized to execute same on behalf of Wright County, Iowa, to replace the previous deed which was not properly approved. Motion carried.

Motion by Kennedy, seconded by Nelson, to adjourn. Motion carried.

plant personnel to have continuous access to their job site and the absolute necessity of uninterrupted fire protection for the plant.

Wilbur Lieberknecht, proprietor of the OK Tire Supply and its service station adjunct, declared he might as well go out of business if the bulk of his trade were to be shut off for three to five months. His place of business was demolished by the tornado and he is now in the final stages of rebuilding.

In the course of a question period that followed the testimony, Robert Nelson asked if the taxpayers would be required to pay the cost of storm sewer construction that would have to accompany the project. He expressed the opinion that this could be "just too much" in the way of additional tax load.

City Clerk Lois Hammond took the microphone to explain that the entire cost of the city's portion of the project expense would be met out of road use tax funds and that none of it would have to be assessed against local taxpayers.

Mr. Browning assured that "fire trails" through the construction would have to be maintained throughout the time the highway might be closed to general traffic to assure continuous fire protection.

He also stated that access of some sort would be maintained with virtually all the business locations while the project was in progress; but that utilizing those means of access might well involve considerable inconvenience.

How much better is it to get wisdom than gold! And to get understanding rather to be chosen than silver! — Prov. 16:16

Don't use Chamber of Commerce as "pallbearer"

Quite a few things in this life are regarded by some folks as a "necessary nuisance" — like church, the Community Chest, and the Chamber of Commerce, to name a few typical examples.

They put enough more emphasis on the "nuisance" than on the "necessary," that they convince themselves that their PERSONAL support isn't required. . . . "Let those who get more benefits out of it pay the bill," is their attitude.

What brings this to mind is the tornado-busted campaign that the Community Chest is just completing; and the fact the Secretary Ellis Elliott is currently visiting our business establishments soliciting membership dues for the year.

We thought the following editorial that appeared in last week's Iowa Falls Citizen might appropriately be reprinted here:

The 1967 membership drive of the Chamber of Commerce is now in the "work" stage . . . the easy part is past. In other words, most of those businesses which respond simply to a statement have done so. Now, comes the task of making individual calls.

Anyone who has watched the growth of business in Iowa Falls and the work of the Chamber in recent years, shouldn't need a sales pitch on a Chamber membership. But we hearken back to a story told a few years ago by Bob Santee. It's worth repeating because the implication it so true.

* * * *

Seems that a long-time businessman reached the end of his days and went to his heavenly "reward." Not once in his years of business had he ever been a member of his local Chamber of Commerce. Still, his widow asked that the Chamber be responsible for selecting pallbearers.

It was a strange request under these circumstances, so the Chamber manager asked her, "Why do you want the Chamber involved as pallbearers?"

She answered, "Well, the Chamber has 'carried' him all of his life and it had just as well finish the job."

'Nuff said. Mail your 1967 dues today!

(Could this apply . . . to YOU?)

Regulations by the yard keep businessman confused

Sen. Everett Dirksen, whose acting talents were recently demonstrated when he came out with a best-selling record of recitations, struck a blow for the small businessman on the Senate floor a little while back. It's probably a good thing that his performance wasn't too widely publicized. Goodness knows the small businessman feels sorry enough for himself, with no prodding; and he'd have felt even worse if he'd sat in on Dirksen's act.

The gruff Illinois lawmaker set out to demonstrate that the butcher, the baker and candlestick-maker are so occcupied with filling out government forms these days that it's a living wonder they can work in enough time to run their businesses.

With a page boy lending a hand, the senator shed light on some of the rules and regulations a businessman is expected to keep hep on to avoid entanglements with the law. He'd pasted the pages end-to-end (or, more likely, had had some staff member do it for him) and as he clutched the title page he sent his assistant to whatever distance was necessary to get the whole tome unfurled.

"This," said Senator Dirksen, "it a part of the wage and hour act," sending the page boy almost through the side door of the senate chamber before the giant scroll was fully unrolled. "This is something merchants must be familiar with to make sure they're not breaking the law!"

Then he sent his lieutenant gallavanting off with the fair labor standards act, which took a trip of 65 feet. Next, the lad almost left the premises as he trotted off with one end of an "Interpretive Bulletin on Overtime Compensation." Dirksen commented that this particular bulletin runs 19 feet more in length than Niagara Falls is high.

So it went, as the senator's indignance waxed and the page boy's stamina waned. At last, Sen. Frank Lausche (D., O.) asked Dirksen if he, himself, felt capable of interpreting the forms and the Illinois senator replied, "Interpret them? Why, 76 trombones and 77 Philadelphia lawyers couldn't do it!"

So happy landings, fellahs, as you continue the good fight.

School teaching's getting to be pretty good deal

"The index calls for a yearly increase."

That's about all we could understand in reading in a news story that described faculty demands in a certain Iowa school system for differentiating between teachers' salaries on the basis of experience and amount of college education. The formula, frankly, was beyond us.

But "what's happening" is that teacher salaries for 1967-68 in Iowa are taking another giant stride upward. You may rest assured, it will be happening here in Belmond Community School district, too. Contracts have not yet gone out; but the teaching profession continues to enjoy a "sellers market," and to keep good teachers, a school system must maintain a sharply competitive salary schedule.

Last spring, the starting salary for local teachers during 1966-67 was boosted to $5,200 — a raise of $250 over the year previous. If our arithmetic is any good, this made the average nine-month salary for 60 faculty members about $5,550 — with additions for such "extras" as pay for direction of extra-curricular activities and certain other salary adjuncts.

Perhaps in the 17 years we've been on the local scene a year passed when the teachers didn't get a raise; but we think not. As a result, we've pledged to quit feeling sorry for teachers. That annual pay raise, ad infinitum, begins to look pretty good to the farmer, the private businessman, the salesman and others who can only hope next year's income will equal this one's.

We don't begrudge the competent teacher his or her current pleasant position. But we must confess we're getting a little envious. A built-in annual pay raise must be nice!

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

The number of bills passed by the Senate were few this past week. The Governor expressed dissatisfaction with progress of the legislature and I, as a new member of the Senate, feel that more progress is possible

In fact, more action will be required if we are to adjourn within a reasonable time with the laws on the books which were felt necessary by each major political party and was expressed in each of the platforms

Senate File 20, which was an act relating to the treatment of youthful law offenders, provided the finest debate that I have heard. Sponsoring the bill was Senator Lee Gaudineer of Polk county who, I believe, had a sincere conviction that judges need authority to use modern rehabilitation techniques without having the feeling that they are violating the existing Code.

UNDER SENATE FILE 20 THEY have freedom to treat youthful offenders in any way they see fit, if they believe the individual stands a reasonably good chance of being helped

The bill also provided that the judge could set aside a conviction and issue a statement to that effect, if in the opinion of the judge, the offender had overcome the anti-social tendencies which caused the offense in the first place.

Senator Tom Riley from Lynn county used every means available to a legislator, including outstanding oratory, to defeat this bill. Senator Riley was sympathetic to the purpose of the bill, but contended that the existing statutes afforded the judges the opportunity to do those things which were made explicitly clear in Senate File 20.

I WENT ALONG WITH Gaudineer, because there was doubt in my mind that use of the existing statutes for special treatment of youthful law offenders would actually suffice entirely within the law.

Late in the session this week we took up the bill which related to the sale of intoxicating drinks to Indians. This bill passed the Senate with only two votes opposing it. Sponsors of the bill were able to show court cases which held the present statute was unconstitutional because it racially discriminated against the Indians. I felt there really was no choice but to strike the discrimination from the Code.

ON THE HUMOROUS SIDE, A bill was introduced by the agriculture committee to strike from the Code the necessity, which is now incorporated in the Code, that all hotels and motels iron all of their sheets and pillow cases.

This is a typical example of one of the obsolete, unnecessary things that the Code includes which could be eliminated with a thorough study. The control of such matters currently rests with the department of agriculture, which is ridiculous and points out the need to reorganize many government functions.

The House and Senate will have to work out agreement on a resolution urging Congress to set up a revenue-sharing plan gaining attention as a partial solution to the money needs of state and local governments.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN the chambers came about when the Democrat-controlled Senate passed a watered-down version of a resolution approved earlier by the Republican-controlled House. The Senate majority, all Democrats, amended the House resolution, stripping it of its urgency and directness.

The aim of the House version is simple — the state should be guaranteed that a certain percentage of the federal income taxes collected in each state be returned to the states without any strings on how the money is spent.

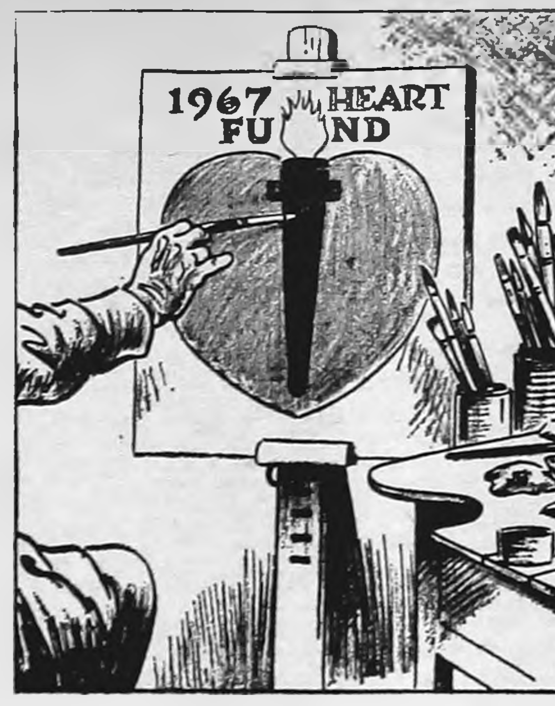
Senate Democrats amended the statement to give the states only "more discretion and responsibility" in using the money.

Iowa Republicans, as well as many in Congress, contend no strings should be attached to the use of this money because it belongs to the taxpayer. The return of the funds would not be a gift, but a right.

THE DEBATES BROUGHT OUT that under the present system the federal government is operating 170 aid programs authorized under more than 400 appropriations administered by more than 20 departments. This has led to lengthly regulations, additional costs and, in too many instances, confusion over administration and carrying out of programs.

Under revenue-sharing, the ability of the federal government as a tax collector is recognized. But once the funds return to the states, each determines for what useful purpose the money will be spent.

The improvement of state and local governments' ability to solve their own problems will result in quicker, less expensive and more direct solutions to the problems. It is easier for a state and local body to come up with a solution to a problem than it is for an administrator in Washington to come up with a plan for all 50 states to solve a dilemma.



Give — so more will live!

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by
IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION

GETTING INTO GEAR—

The Iowa legislature is moving into high gear. After the pomp and ceremony of the first legislative week, the lawmakers have buckled down to committee work and taking action on a number of important measures.

For example, both houses have now passed the proposed amendment to Iowa's Constitution on "home rule." This now goes to a vote of the people.

The rigid limitations on the powers of city councils have triggered the home rule movement, the granting to municipalities of more freedom in dealing with their own affairs.

The home rule proposal cleared the Senate by a vote of 61-0 and passed the House, 113 to 9. The amendment will take effect, if approved by the voters, at the general election in November of 1968.

DAYLIGHT SAVING—

Perhaps the most emotional issue, at present, is daylight saving time. Legislators from all parts of the state have been flooded with petitions, some favoring daylight saving time, some opposed.

Sen. James Briles, Republican from Corning, has introducted a resolution asking for a statewide referendum on the issue. The vote, under the proposal, would be on Sept. 11, the date of local school district elections. However, there is some question as to whether the state can conduct such a referendum.

The 1965 legislature voted daylight saving time from Memorial Day to Labor Day each year. Congress later passed a law which requires a state, if it is to be on "fast-time," to observe it from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October. Iowa has extended its observance of daylight saving time to conform with the federal law.

Gov. Harold Hughes has said he would veto any bill to repeal daylight saving time.

BATTLE OVER REMAP—

The battle over reapportionment continues to make headlines. House Republicans united to pass a proposed new constitutional amendment including a section requiring all legislators to be elected from single-member districts. Democrats accused Republicans, who out-number the Democrats 89 to 35 in the House, of using "steam-roller tactics" in passing the amendment. Republican leaders retorted they learned the tactics from Democrats two years ago when the Democrats had control of the House.

The proposal, which passed 86 to 38, calls for a House of not more than 100 members and a Senate of not more than 50 members.

The House left gasping for life another proposed amendment passed in 1965 and by the 1967 Senate, which does not include a separate district clause except on a permissive basis. A Democrat move to pass this plan was defeated 83 to 37, largely on a party-line vote.

STUDDED TIRES—

Sen. Warren Kruck, Boone Democratic, who lost a case testing Iowa's law against studded tires, has succeeded in getting through the Senate a bill making the tires legal from Nov. 1 to April 1. The Senate voted 52 to 2 to let Iowa join 34 states in allowing studded tires. The bill now goes to the House.

AMENDMENT RATIFIED—

The Iowa legislature has ratified a proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution which spells out the procedure for succession in case of presidential disability. The proposed 25th amendment to the U.S. Constitution has been approved by 32 states; it takes 38 states to ratify an amendment.

PICTURES ON LICENSES?—

Should "mug shots" be required on all drivers' licenses? That's a question being debated in legislative chambers, the Senate having passed such a bill. A dozen states now require pictures on their drives' licenses. The bill passed by the Senate, 46 to 8, would require a color photograph.

WHY FOR CANCELLED?—

A bill has been introduced in the House to require insurance companies to tell why they cancel an auto policy. The bill was introduced by Rep. James Caffrey, Des Moines Democrat. Caffrey said he was prompted to introduce the bill because auto policy cancellations are increasing and in many cases the companies have been giving vague or unsubstantiated reasons.

WINE BY THE JUG—

In the Senate, a bill has been introduced which would allow taverns, grocery stores and drug stores to sell wine by the bottle. Sen. Tom Riley, Cedar Rapids Republican, is chief sponsor of the bill.

PRIMARY BACK UP—

Republicans want the date of Iowa's primary election moved back to June. The Democratic-controlled 1965 legislature moved the primary from the first Monday in June to the first day after Labor Day in September.

ANNUAL SESSIONS—

Should the Iowa legislature meet every year? The Senate believes it should and has approved and sent to the House a proposed constitutional change requiring annual legislative sessions.

Hearing on highway project draws pros, cons

Last Thursday night's hearing on the widening of Highway 69 through Belmond started promptly at 7:00 o'clock, gave all members of the audience full opportunity to express their personal sentiments on the matter and to ask questions; and promptly at 8:25 the meeting was adjourned.

All of the 112 persons in attendance must have departed with a conviction that the Iowa State Highway commission certainly knows how to conduct a hearing efficiently — whatever their opinion of the proceedings might have been otherwise.

A tape recording was made of the entire hearing, so members of the commission will be able to review the testimony personally at their earliest convenience. Since they had met at Ames the day previous and have a full agenda mapped out for their mid-February meeting on Feb. 15, it was regarded by the commission personnel present for the hearing that the commissioners probably won't consider the hearing testimony until next month.

Engineers discuss matter

Because federal money is involved in the $512,000 which is the estimated cost of the Belmond project, the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads will also consider the hearing transcript before any final action is taken. Consequently, a couple of months could perhaps pass before an official decision is reached.

That was the prediction of C. N. Wendell of the highway commission's information department at Ames, who introduced the panel of engineers who were on hand for the hearing. They were:

Dean Browning of Mason City, district construction engineer, who conducted the hearing; O. C. Solem, district urban engineer from Mason City; and Douglas Heins of Britt, resident construction engineer. Also present was Leonard Follmann, resident construction engineer from Mason City.

Misner approves project

Mr. Browning opened the hearing proper by reading the particulars of the proposed project and outlined some of the considerations involved. When he had completed reading of the proposal, the hearing was thrown open to testimony from both persons favoring the project and objectors.

First to be heard was Mayor Robert Misner. He expressed regret that the undertaking would inevitable work a hardship on such business establishments as are located on River avenue — on which Highway 69 passes through Belmond. But he expressed as his personal opinion that, within the framework of alleviating those hardships to the maximum extent possible, the city should avail itself of the opportunity to obtain "this important improvement".

He told that the city had initiated efforts to arrange for the widening project some seven years ago, had seemingly missed one chance to get the job done due to a misunderstanding with the commission, and now faced what presumably might be a "last chance" to have the widening done.

Clarke, Bailey heard

Senator Hugh Clarke likewise spoke favorably in behalf of the project. He introduced a hope that the level of the highway north of the Great Western tracks might be raised to eliminate an existing traffic hazard due to lack of visibility to the south when cars approach from the north.

State Representative Ray Bailey of Clarion also expressed dismay that the project would cause inconvenience to businesses on the highway but expressed agreement that it would be of important long-range benefit to the community to have the project go through.

Dr. A. M. Nelson, observing that the project would have no special affect on himself personally, objected to the timing of it in view of the serious business interruptions that had already been caused firms on the highway by the October tornado.

Chapman states objections

John Chapman, proprietor of Chapman's Truck Stop on River avenue, declared that in personal conversation with 25 proprietors of business on the highway he had found 21 in opposition to the project. He noted that his business had during 1966 paid $119,298 in various types of taxes although out of operation for two to three months because of tornado damage.

He added that his business would have pumped a million gallons of fuel during the year, but for the shut-down; and that 90 per cent of that trade was derived from traffic going through on the highway. He expressed doubts as to the highway commission's sufficiency rating of the 1.3-mile stretch of road as "poor," declaring that transient drivers have told him that Belmond is particularly easy to drive through.

It was Mr. Chapman's contention that there exist no good and sufficient reasons for the widening project to be carried through at this time — or in the near future. He asserted it to be his belief that there are no noteworthy objectionable aspects to the highway in its present condition and width.

Wiggins suggests extension

Lloyd Stevens, a seed corn dealer with a warehouse on the highway, said he would be seriously hampered in servicing his customers if the construction barred him from getting back and forth to his warehouse.

Keith Wiggins of the Central Soya staff noted that there is heavy truck traffic to the Central Soya plant site and that it would be desirable from a safety standpoint to have the widening extend to the plant's north entrace instead of taking up a short distance to the north.

Ivan Evans, who has a trailer park on River avenue, and Nellie Just, who operates Jake and Nell's Place, both testified that the project would unfavorably affect their businesses. Mr. Evans said he would not be able to operate his, at all, if the highway was shut off to transient traffic through Belmond.

Porter for widening

Russell Porter, bulk dealer for Standard Oil company and a city councilman, admitted that the widening project would quite drastically reduce trade at Lloyd's Standard Service station at Main street and Highway 69; but he was nevertheless of the opinion that the city would be wise to go ahead with with the project.

Ray Wright, Central Soya plant manager, pointed out the need for

They know who Misner is, now—

Bob rewriting Drake record book

—SPORTS—

In a letter recently received by BHS Athletic Director Jack Steinberg from Paul Morrison, Drake university business manager for athletics — and drum-beater on football public relations — the Bulldog publicitor had to confess that Belmond's Bob Misner is well on his way to making a believer out of Drake gridiron followers.

He sent along a copy of the 1966 football information and record book. It didn't have too much to say about the speedy ex-Bronco (speedy enough that he's Drake's No. 1 low-hurdler during the current indoor track season).

In mentioning "the top Bulldogs" for last fall's campaign, the brochure omitted any reference to Misner. And with only his freshman season behind him, Bobby had had small opportunity to figure in any all-time Drake records.

The brochure for 1967, Morrison admitted, is going to be something different. Bob is destined to gain mention in seven different connections among Drake record-holders and top performers. And with two years of action still lying ahead of him, there seems good prospect that he may achieve a rather wholesale rewriting of the record book before he hangs up his cleats.

Bob has already chalked up one all-time best among Drake gridders. His 508 yards gained on kickoff returns wiped out a record of 392 that Ron Lind had held since 1955. His return of 18 kickoffs was second-high, ranking behind only Lind's total of 19 in '55.

In the "longest kickoff return" category, Bob can claim two places. His 94 yards against Quantico Marines ties for 3rd longest and his 79 against Louisville ranks 5th. His seven kickoff returns for 181 yards against Louisville both stand as single-game records.

Another all-time mark Misner chalked up last season — but has to share with teammate Manley Sarnosky — is seven touchdown passes caught in one campaign. And in scoring 11 touchdowns in '66, he gained a 3rd-place for a single season.

That winds up the Belmond sophomore's achievements to date, so far as school records are concerned. But his rankings as an offensive star on the '66 Drake squad underline how far he surpassed what was expected of him at the season's outset.

Nowhere did Bobby's name appear in "The Outlook" for the season that appeared in the football brochure, other than he was listed as a letterman end. So what happened?

He ended up as the No. 2 scorer on those 11 touchdowns; and as No. 2 pass receiver with 27 completions for 577 yards and seven TD's. But in addition, he turned out to be the No. 2 rusher in the Drake backfield — a completely unanticipated state of affairs — with a 5.7 yardage average on 188 yards gained in the course of 33 carries.

After his phenomenal sophomore season, Bob may find it somewhat more difficult to surprise the folks at Drake in the next two years. They're beginning to expect the "unexpected" of the 170-pound speedster; and just about anything he does from here on is likely to draw knowing nods insteads of raised eyebrows.

And when Morrison puts together 1967 football information and record book, you'll not have to look twice to find the name "Misner".

KRIT-FM AGAIN RECEIVES TWINS' CONTRACT RENEWAL

Marvin Hull of radio station KRIT-FM, Clarion, announces in this issue of The Independent that his station has received a three-year contract for broadcast of the Minnesota Twins' baseball games during the 1967, '68 and '69 seasons.

Since not all stations that carried the broadcasts last year were able to obtain new contracts, Mr. Hull was highly pleased that KRIT-FM will be able to continue this service to its sports-minded listeners.

Sectional action at Clarion draws Bronco grapplers

First round activity in the Class A sectional wrestling tournament at Clarion will get underway tonight (Thursday), when 95-lb. wrestlers from nine schools — including Belmond — go to the mat at 6:30 o'clock. Before the night's activity has concluded, survivors in all 12 weight classes will have been reduced to the semi-finalists.

That could require a maximum of 60 matches if every school is represented in every weight class. The four unbeaten wrestlers in each class will engage in the semi-finals beginning at 4:00 o'clock Friday afternoon; and the finals and consolation matches will start at 7:00 o'clock.

Champions and runners-up in the Clarion sectional will go to the Ice Arena at Urbandale on Friday of next week for the two-day district tournament. The No. 1 and N. 2 men from this tourney will advance to the Class A state tournament.

Coach Don Jones regards that the Clarion sectional will be probably the toughest in the state. Besides host Clarion and Algona, two of the top Class A powers in the state, the field will include Alden, Hampton, Ackley-Geneva, Eldora, Iowa Training School of Eldora and South Hamilton of Jewell.

As Broncos smash Britt, 96-46—

Nelson sets two new BHS marks

Terry Nelson wound up with two school records and the Broncos amassed the next highest score in BHS basketball history as hapless Britt was administered a 96-46 drubbing here Tuesday night. The record team score was posted against Britt here last year, 100 to 56.

Getting all of his 21 baskets from within virtually arm's length of the hoop, the Broncos' junior center surpassed Neal Waddington's individual scoring record for a game by two with 43 points. His only "long" shot of the night, as he played over the heads of the Britt shorties, was that 43rd point he got on a freethrow — his only charity try of the game.

In addition, Terry hauled down 33 rebounds to surpass by four the single-game record established by Paul Laaveg last season against Osage. All this was done in close to seven minutes less than full-game time, as Nelson sat out 3:10 of the first half and more than 3½ minutes of the second.

When asked why he didn't let Terry go for the North Iowa conference scoring mark of 49 points recently set by Pete Wessels of Buffalo Center, Coach Ted Besch explained, "He's only a junior. He'll have another season to shoot at that."

Holding the Eagles scoreless for the first six minutes and 45 seconds of the game, the Broncos had run up 20 points before Britt broke the ice and by the quarter's end held a 29-3 lead. By halftime the count was 55-17, and Nelson had 21 points. Prior to the intermission Belmond meshed 17 of 45 field goal tries for about 47 per cent, while Britt hit only eight of 35.

In the second half, the pace of the game slowed down and at three quarters the tally was 73-26. Things became a bit disorganized as Coach Besch swept the bench and only Doug Thompsen hit with any regularity for the Broncos during that stage of the fray.

While team rebounding statistics have never been kept for the Broncos, their 104 captures against the Eagles was no doubt an all-time high.

Thompsen and Gary Meyers followed Nelson in scoring with 10 each as 11 Broncos tallied points. Tim Roberts got eight, Paul Bamford six, Bob Rise, Dave Dirks, Bob Vander Schaaf and Jim Studebaker four each, Greg Fuller two and Joel Gabrielson one.

Tom McDermott, Britt's scoring ace, was held to 17. Bill Rasmuson added 10, Doug Hunsley nine, Keiser eight and Carl Thompson two.

In the froshmore game, the visiting underclassmen offered little more resistance than did the varsity. Coach Chuck Stalker substituted freely to keep the final count down to 59-31. Lee Barkema and Jerry Boelman each notched 12 for the victors.

Maddocks leaving Clarion practice

Robert Maddocks, Wright county attorney during the period of 1961-64 and a Clarion attorney since June of 1958, has announced he is closing his law practice at the county seat and will join the legal staff of Massey-Harris, Inc., at Des Moines.

With the giant implement firm, he will be assistant general counsel for the United States and Canada. He has agreed to report for his new duties by April 1 at the latest and is hopeful that he can do so sometime during March. He closed his Clarion office to new business yesterday.

When Mr. Maddocks first came to Clarion, he was associated with Robert Kay for about 2½ years. Since then he has practiced independently.

During his term as county attorney he helped The Independent obtain two rulings from the state attorney general's office that had considerable impact.

One greatly reduced the amount of property tax being paid on the farm that is source of the funds of the Luick Hospital Memorial Trust and has enabled the trust to save about $1,000 annually on tax payments.

The other ruling was to the effect that the county board of supervisors had exceeded its powers in contracting to get the courthouse exterior renovated without advertising for bids on the job. An enabling act passed by the Iowa legislature was required to validate the contract, which the board otherwise could not have honored.

Central Telephone reports on plans for current year

To keep ahead of the ever-growing demain for expanded telecommunications service, Central Telephone company will spend $1,228,400 for construction in Iowa during 1967; up from last year's expenditures at the end of November of just over $1 million. This will provide for expansion and improvement of telephone service in Central's service area, according to K. A. Young, Central's vice president and Iowa Telephone Division manager at Fort Dodge.

In a forecast of approved construction activities, Young said Central will surpass many goals achieved at the end of November 1966, when 1,743 new telephones were added. He said a similar good growth in the number of telephones served is anticipated for 1967 as the company's total investment in plant, equipment, and facilities in Iowa climbs to new highs of nearly $16.4 million by the end of this year.

Total expenditures for the Belmond district — which includes Alexander, Coulter, Goodell, Latimer, Meservey, Rowan, Sheffield, Swaledale and Thornton, as well as Belmond — will run approximately $123,000.

Clinic coming up on corn-n-beans

More than 1,000 North Iowa farmers are expected to be at the Surf Ballroom at Clear Lake next Tuesday for the third annual Corn-Soybean Clinic sponsored by five leading agricultural industries and their area dealers. The clinic is free to all area farmers.

It will start at 8:30 a. m. with registration and free coffee. The regular program will start at 9:00 a. m. and will conclude at 3:00 p.m. A free lunch will be served at noon.

Representatives of these companies will appear on the program to outline new methods of increasing corn and soybean production.

"Fender-bender" gets 2 in Dutch

Two Belmond youths are due to appear in Guy Peters justice of peace court Saturday — one for driving without a license; the other, for letting him.

Driving a car owned by S. N. Hinman about 12:05 a. m. last Saturday night when it was involved in a fender-bender collision two blocks west of the Win-Mil-Inn was Tom Tegland, 14, son of the Paul Teglands.

With him was the owner's son Wayne, 17, who'd been coaxed into letting young Tegland drive. The latter had intended to turn south on 8th avenue at 7th street NE but went by. As he was backing up to make the turn, he was hit by Mark Brinton driving a car owned by his father Homer.

Deputy Sheriff Vern Elston filed the charges. About $25 was the estimated damage to the Hinman car; about $200 to Brinton's.

New tank goes up at Central Soya

Construction was well underway this week on a new water tank at the Central Soya grounds to replace a similar one that was battered to the ground by last fall's tornado.

Manager Ray Wright says the new one — 135 feet in height and of 125,000-gallon capacity — largely duplicates the one destroyed but is of newer design. Fabricators of both was the Pittsburgh Steel company of Des Moines.

It is being erected to the southeast of the plant, whereas the former tower was west of the plant.

In compliance with insurance recommendations, Central Soya will also put up a ground storage tank of 150,000-gallon capacity on the aproximate site of the old tower. This will provide satisfactory pressure for the entire water system that services Central Soya's sprinkler system.

Since the tornado, the only water available for fire protection has been supplied by another ground storage tank that holds 100,00 gallons and which was unharmed by the storm. Pressure in the sprinkler system has been maintained for the time being by a jack pump running continuously.

According to the tank contractor, the new water tower should be finished and in use by the first week in March.

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 48 NO. 21 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1967 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Mrs. Carroll Bamford just a few days ago received a letter from a good friend living on the Isle of Pines, off Cuba's shore, saying she had received on Jan. 26th a copy of the Independent's "Tornado Issue" that had been mailed right after it came off the press in October. At the same time she received a letter Jean had mailed in June, another one mailed in August and a third one mailed in September.

Jean's correspondent was Mrs. Albert Sundstrom, whose acquaintance the Bamfords made during a holiday on the Isle of Pines back in '53. None of the weekly letters Jean has written since the tornado had been received by her friend.

Mrs. Sundstrom said residents of the island had had to be evacuated when Cuba was struck by a hurricane in June. Much damage was done by that storm, and a great deal of looting followed. The Sundstorms had been allotted one roll of tar paper to repair their liberally de-shingled home. The Red Cross was not allowed to give disaster relief, and clean-up and repair work was strictly on a do-it-yourself basis.

Three BHS alumni made press releases from Wartburg college last week. Royce Van Gerpen, a junior at the Waverly school, was one of only 16 students on the campus who made the first semester Dean's List with a 4.0 grade average (which is as good as you can get!). The other two were mentioned as members of Coach Dave Olson's track, outfit, expected to be one of the Knights' better ones. They were brother John Van Gerpen, a senior hurdler and member of last spring's record-breaking 880 relay team; and Daryl "Shorty" Suntken, sophomore 440 candidate (and holder of the BHS record in that event).

The great glee of Forest City fans when the Indians recently took our Bronco cagers into camp 67-61 is understandable in light of the fact that the Indians had beaten Belmond in neither football nor basketball since 1962. During that interim, Forest City had been trimmed on the gridiron four times in a row and on the basketball court nine times, including one tournament encounter.

Both the basketball and football competition with Forest City have been characterized by quite lengthy periods when one school or the other predominated; then the shoe would be on the other foot.

A quick glance through our records indicates that Belmond has been the victor over Forest City 37 times on the basketball court and lost 33 times (there are three gaps in the 1930's, when The Independent wasn't sufficiently sports-minded to report game results). On the gridiron, the Broncs have come out on top 21 times and been defeated 19. Four games ended in ties.

Lee Robbins, Jr., in his capacity of Goodell's mayor, stopped in the office Tuesday to ask a slight favor of us. He said that some Goodell youngsters have been using pellet guns to shoot birds in our neighboring community to the north — and that they're headed for trouble. Using the weapons inside the city limits is against the law, in the first place; and in the second, he sees no sense in picking on the birds. He warns that the young culprits "will be dealt with" if they don't knock it off.

Considering that the Belmond Co-op Creamery was out of operation for three weeks following last fall's tornado — and that active patrons have continued to dwindle — both its members and Manager Curt Rise consider that it had a good year. Any business in these parts exceeding a half million dollars in a year is certainly NOT "small potatoes".

With land prices zooming around here and rather intensive farming becoming increasingly necessary, a good many farmers of the area have been abandoning dairying in recent years.

Curt Rise says that 20 years ago, the co-op creamery probably had 300 active patrons. At last Saturday's annual meeting, the revolving fund for 1962 was split up and checks went to just 152 patrons. At present, the creamery's member-producers are probably down to 120. But it's still an important industry, and likely to be for a good while to come.

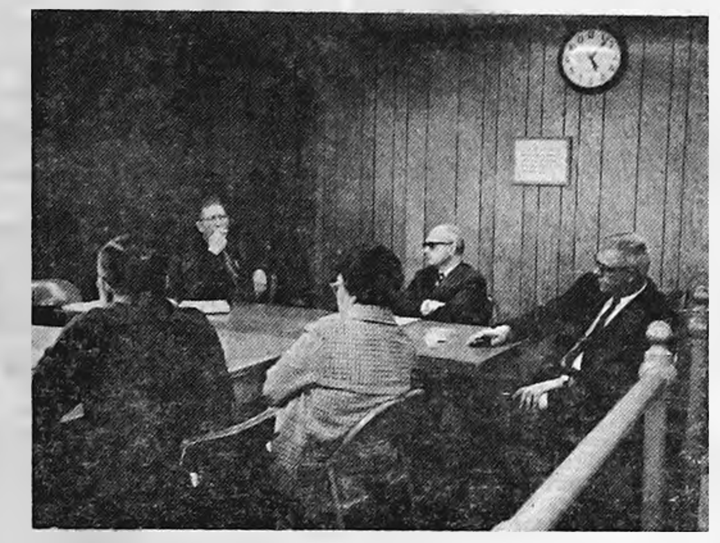
Rep. Ray Bailey reports that Monday's passage of the bill to place the slogan "Beautiful Land" on the 1969 Iowa auto license plates brought to a conclusion one of the most elaborate parliamentary battles that the current session of the legislature has witnessed. He also expressed doubt that some measures of considerably more importance will get near as much of the lawmakers' time as did this relatively unimportant piece of legislation.

The "Beautiful Land" got enmeshed in a web of amendments, counter-amendments and legislative in-fighting of about every description; and for a time it appear dubious if it could be disentangled.

But the proponents of the slogan (you'll recall that "Bountiful Land" was suggested as a possibly more appropriate alternative) were a determined bunch; and their determination finally paid of. Now, to assure the governor's signature, all they have to do is line up the $10,000 to $15,000 that will be added to cost of the plates. As a lawyer, Mr. Bailey finds the political maneuverings at the statehouse intriguing and entertaining to observe.

REACH 55TH ANIVERSARY

Mrs. Roger Boelman spent Sunday in Pocahontas attending a gathering honoring the 55th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Meeske held at their home. Mrs. Boelman is a niece.



A "NO" GIVEN the final offer from Carroll Hensel on a property exchange proposal made by the Belmond Industrial Development corporation last Friday apparently concluded any possibility that the post office lessee will rebuild that public edifice south of the city park. Back from Bloomsburg, Pa., to consult with the BIDC on the matter, Mr. Hensel said his bottom figure would be $12,000 to exchange his property on Highway 69 for the west half of the 200 block on First avenue NE as a new site for the post office. The BIDC directors regarded the cash consideration still "too high" and ended negotiations for the property exchange that have been in progress for a number of weeks. Shown at the meeting (counter-clockwise) are Duane Anderson and Phyllis Pals with backs to camera, Mr. Hensel, Attorney G. A. Cady of Hampton and Ellis Elliott.

Faris named "Boss of the Year"—

Carlson, Beavers awarded top Jaycee honors

Honors in a variety of categories were handed out Tuesday night at the Belmond Jaycees' annual Bosses' Night Banquet held at Lynn's Lounge. The award for "Boss of the Year" for 1966 was presented to Supt. Don Faris by Jaycee President Terrell Baker. He also made the presentation of the "Outstanding Jaycee" plaque to Dwight Beavers.

Mr. Faris was given recognition for consistent helpfulness to the Jaycees and for the encouragement he has given the Jaycee program through urging faculty members to take an active part in the Jaycees. Nine men on the faculty belong to the Belmond chapter.

Tireless effort on virtually all projects undertaken by the Jaycees during 1966 won the "Outstanding Jaycee" award for Mr. Beavers. He was among the chefs for the Jaycees' public barbecue and chicken dinners, played a key part in the 4th of July celebration, assisted with the Christmas decorations and was, according to President Terrell, invariably johnny-on-the-spot whenever a hand was needed on a Jaycee undertaking.

Keith Carlson, BHS vocational agriculture instructor, was recipient of the Distinguished Service Award. He was worked extensively with the youth of the community and played a major role in setting up the Master Corn and Soybean Growers contests. His community services, Richard Bloemke noted in presenting the award, have extended well beyond the activities of the Jaycees.

Allen Suby, industrial arts instructor for the local schools, was named "Outstanding Young Educator." He has greatly expanded the shop curriculum and has inspired keen interest among the boys in his classes in a wide range of vocational skills. Bruce Schroeder presented this award.

Named "Outstanding Young Farmer" was James Wenzel, who farms about five miles east of Belmond. He has been farming on his own for six years and he and his wife are presently buying the place of 240-plus acres they've been farming during this period from Jim's father, Fred Wenzel, Sr.

Also as a part of the presentation program, prizes were given the winners of the Iowa Master Corn and Soybean Growers contests that the Jaycees conducted last fall. Yield checks to determine the winners were made for the Jaycees by Ira Studebaker.

Lloyd Gordon won the Iowa Master Corn Grower award from among 14 contestants with an acre yield of 143.8 bushels; and Jim McLaughlin topped four contenders for the Soybean Grower award with a yield of 44.47 bushels.

Lynn Sorum, high school speech and dramatics director, served as master-of-ceremonies for the Jaycee banquet.

Hugh Clarke, who is serving his first term as state senator from the 34th District, was the evening speaker. He was introduced by Duane Anderson. Mr. Clarke touched on some of his experiences as a freshman lawmaker and told of some of the legislation coming before the 62nd General Assembly.

Annual scholarship to honor Mrs. Boller

Some worthy Belmond Community High school senior of high scholastic standing will be getting $500 cash toward the expense of attending the college of his or her choice next fall, thanks to a scholarship for this purpose that has been established by the children of the late Mrs. Anton Boller of Goodell.

It will be known as "The Catherine Marie Boller Scholarship" and is to be given annually for an indefinite period of time.

Mrs. Boller's 9 living children (a son Erwin preceded her in death) will supply the funds for the scholarship, first to be awarded to a member of the BHS Class of '67.

They are Bill of Goodell, Tony of Waterloo, Harve of San Louis Obispo, Calif., Ed of Casper, Wyo., Lucille Prouty of Southgate, Calif., Walt, Kenny and Roy of Goodell and Wes of Belmond.

The only stipuations limiting eligibility for the award are that the recipient must rank high scholastically in his or her class and that the money must be used to further his or her education. It is left up to the school authorities to establish the specific method of selecting the scholarship winner.

Mrs. Boller, who was born in Belmond on Nov. 8, 1880, and died in Belmond Community hospital on Jan. 31, 1964, at the age of 83, was the daughter of John and Minnie Kienenberger Langlitz.

She lived all but one year of her lifetime in Goodell, continuing to reside there after her marriage to Anton Boller on Nov. 3, 1895. He preceded her in death on Nov. 7, 1955.

Mrs. Boller's own education was received in the Old Amsterdam school east of Goodell. She maintained a keen, lifetime interest in young people, holding a special love for little children and never-flagging interest and affection for youngsters of all ages.

"For this reason," her family stated, in announcing the scholarship in Mrs. Boller's honor, "we feel this would be a most suitable and worthy tribute to her memory."

SGT. QUANDT NOW READY FOR DUTY AS RECRUITER

Sgt. 1/c Delmar Quandt on Friday of last week completed four weeks of training at Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana to prepare him for his new assignment as Army recruiting officer at Decorah. He starts on his new duties next Monday.

During the present week he is moving to Decorah his wife and family, who have been living at Swaledale during the year he spent in Viet Nam and the period since he returned to the States on Nov. 10.

Sergeant Quandt and his family were dinner guests here Sunday in the home of his mother, Mrs. H. R. Bayliss.

ATTENDED FUNERAL

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Zook, Julie and Nancy attended funeral services for Irene Page held a week ago Monday at Northwood.

Roger Ginapp hurt in crash

Mrs. Kenet Ginapp and sons accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Glen Neal of Garner to Davenport last Sunday to visit her son, Roger Ginapp, who is a patient at the Mercy hospital there following an accident.

Roger, who is assistant wrestling coach at Wyoming High school, was injured when the school bus in which the wrestlers were returning from a tournament was involved in an accident Friday evening.

He received cuts about the head and a deep cut on the back of his right hand, severing the tendons.

2 bands to give concert on next Tuesday evening

Tuesday of next week, Director Maurice Fahrney will present the BHS concert band and the junior band in their annual winter concert at Luick Memorial Auditorium.

The performance will start at 8:00 p.m. with a group of four numbers by the younger musicians. They will play "Village Dance" by Rameau-Gordon; the folk tune, "Black is the Color," arranged by Edward McLin; "Irish Melody," arranged by Paul Stouffer; and the familiar French aire, "Alouette," arranged by McLin.

"Kirchenlied" by Graun-Davis will open the concert band's portion of the program; followed by an excerpt, "Burlesque," from the 9th Symphony of Schostakovich; and "Foray at Fairfax," Fritz Velke

"Three from the Hills" will group three novelty numbers by Charles Gross — "The Old Maid's Song", "John Riley" and "A Nonsense Song".

A traditional Goldman toe-tapper, "Iowa March," will follow the medley. Next will be a feature that Director Fahrney confidently expects to be a real hit with the listeners, "Highlights from Mary Poppins," arranged by Alfred Reed.

The program will conclude with rhythmic strains of a Sousa number, "George Washington Bicentennial March".

Chamber members will see plaque given to hospital

Belmond Community hospital is to receive an unusual honor during the program of the Chamber of Commerce dinner that it to be held this Friday evening at Lynn's Lounge. The dinner, itself, is to start at 6:30 o'clock and will be one of the Chamber's infrequent husband-and-wife events.

This is expected to assure a large and interested audience when a plaque is given to the hospital in recognition of its remarkably efficient response to the critical emergency created by the tornado disaster last fall.

Coming to make the presentation are Lloyd Coe of Des Moines, executive director of the Iowa Hospital association, and Cletus Turnback, the association's president and administrator of Myrtue Memorial hospital at Harlan.

It is understood that this is the first time that an award of this particular nature has ever been made by the state association, the tornado here being the first natural disaster of such scope that an Iowa hospital has been required to cope with.

Another feature of the after-dinner program will be the showing of Iowa Development Commission film that is being brought for the occasion by Bill McLaughlin of the commission's staff.

Mr. McLaughlin, a former Belmondite, has worked closely with the Chamber throughout the period since the tornado in helping draft redevelopment plans for downtown.

Below '65, but good year—

Creamery grosses ½ million-plus

Although the number of members of the Belmond Co-op Creamery still actively engaged in dairying has dwindled appreciably in the past few years, patrons and friends of the creamery learned last Saturday that gross income of the business nevertheless again came to more than a half million dollars in 1966.

Manager Curt Rise, giving his annual report at the yearly meeting of the co-op's members last Saturday at the BHS student center, told his audience that the gross income from dairy products reached $517,475. This was almost $75,000 less than the 1965 figure — but the $592,267 in '65 was the highest in the creamery's 60-year history.

Total butterfat purchased, at 415,947 pounds, reflected the drop in dairying that the creamery's area showed in a year's time. In 1965, butterfat purchases came to 570,221 pounds. There was a corresponding decrease in whole milk sales, this being the form in which patrons' produce is most extensively marketed today. Whole milk sales in '65 had come to $518,750, whereas last year, whole milk sales reached only $452,200.

The policy of selling whole milk rather than manufacturing butter in quantity resulted in another drop in the amount of butter turned out. This total was only 20,006 pounds last year, compared to 33,402 the year before, 40,012 in 1964 and 52,829 in 1963.

Cash paid out to patrons for the yields from their herds in terms of butterfat, dairy milk and cream was $480,060, down $69,278 from the corresponding outlay to patrons in 1965.

Due to the type of operation the creamery currently engages in, expenses were appreciably reduced in '66 from those of the previous year, the corresponding figures being $28,338 and $38,935.

In the election of directors held in conjunction with the annual meeting, all three members of the board whose terms were expiring were re-elected. They were Ray Wicks of Kanawha, Verl Rollene of Dows and Gilman Soma.

Two brothers and two sisters preceded him in death.

We 3 conducting "grand opening"

We 3 Market is holding its formal grand opening this weekend, and Manager Ed Gabrielson extends a "red carpet" invitation to all friends and customers to visit the all-new establishment.

Although the new store has been back in operation since Jan. 12, additional touches awaited completion in preparation for the "grand opening".

Special refreshment treats and a variety of shopping specials will highlight the event.

Council action awaits answer—

How many blocks to get arcades?

A question of how much of downtown Main street should be included in redevelopment plans caused a delay Monday night in signing a contract with Gjelten and Schellberg, Forest City architectural firm, for going ahead with detailed plans and specifications for the proposed arcading and intersection canopies.

Willis Schellberg presented a number of cost estimates, which he called "as accurate as possible at this stage of the planning." Because his firm has already made a heavy investment of time in the redevelopment plans, he is anxious to have a contract signed so the architects can know where they stand.

A willingness to oblige Mr. Schellberg was expressed by the council; but the members simply could not agree on the feasible scope of the project. It was finally decided that the council would ask the New Belmond Action committee to investigate this matter and advise the council as to the number of canopies to plan on and the number of blocks on which the arcades would be constructed.

When this information is provided, the council will be in a position to enter into contract on the planning and the spread of cost assessments can be determined.

One complication that entered the picture Monday night was the fact that the city is in a poor position to help with financing the project; and if the propertyowners should have to be assessed not only for arcade cost but for intersection canopy cost on a pro rated front-footage basis, the private expense in some cases would run much higher than anticipated.

Mr. Schellberg submitted a cost estimate for arcading two business blocks and erecting three canopies. The figure was $122,784, including an architectural fee of $5,634.

He estimated the expense of the arcades at $787 for a business lot with a 24-foot front. Each canopy would cost an estimated $18,500 and incidental work at the intersections for walks, curbs, storm sewer relocation and a seat for shoppers would approximate $8,000.

Total cost for a block of arcading would come to an estimated $45,300 at the figure of $787 for a 24-foot front.

Mr. Schellberg pointed out that it would be absolutely essential to predetermine the number of blocks of arcade and the number of canopies before his firm could spread assessments. Until this is done, the city would not be able to pass a resolution of necessity to lay the necessary legal groundwork for the project.

School board boosts salaries—

Faculty, administrative pay up by $46,000

Teachers' salaries will rise by $41.271 in Belmond Community School district for the 1966-67 school year and administrative salaries by $4,739 as a result of pay increases approved last week by the board of education. This will mean a total boost of $46,010 in instructional and administrative expense. The teachers' salary increase represents a 8.9 per cent shift upward and the administrators' a jump of 13 per cent.

Ed Gabrielson, president of the school board, says the raises in base pay for holders of Bachelor of Arts degrees, B. A. plus 15 hours of graduate study, and holders of M. A. degrees met the recommendations submitted by a teachers' salary committee chosen by the faculty members. The increase given teachers with 90 hours of college work but no degree was somewhat less than recommended, as were the yearly increments to be given for years of teaching.

The raises given here correspond with pay increases that not only schools throughout Iowa have been granting for the coming year, but follow a trend that is nationwide in scope, Mr. Gabrielson notes.

"There is a decided shortage of teachers, and any school system wishing to retain a competent faculty and keep resignations to a minimum must compete on salaries to do so," the board president said. He added, "Teachers have for a long time been trying to get their salaries on a par with those paid in other fields for similar educational training and are only now beginning to achieve that goal."

He offered the following comparisons with other north Iowa school systems, where the Belmond base of $5,700 for a B. A. degree and $6,270 for an M. A. are concerned:

St. Ansgar $6,000 and $6,600; Sac City $5,750 and $6,350; Osage and Klemme, same as Belmond's; Charles City $5,700 and $6,200; Mason City $5,700 and $6,400; Charles City $5,700 and $6,200; Garner and Forest City, each $5,600 and $6,160; Webster City $5,600 and $6,272.

For teachers with at least 90 hours of college work but no degree, pay here next year will start at $4,560 (up $400 from this year) and in eight annual steps go to a maximum of $5,643 (up $495). For holders of B. A. degrees, the initial base of $5,700 (up $500) will increase in 12 years to a maximum of $7,638 (up $670).

Teachers with at least 15 hours of graduate study in addition to their B. A. degrees will start at $5,985 (up $681) and in 14 annual steps can rise to a maximum of $8,265 (up $881). Holders of Master's degrees will start at $6,270 (up $758) and in 15 annual steps can achieve a maximum of $9,348 (up $1,028).

Of course, only new teachers just out of college — or just starting teaching careers — will draw the minimum salaries. Experienced teachers will draw the base for their classification plus the number of increments called for by their years of active teaching.

Ernest Doeringsfeld's salary as high school principal was raised by $1,290, to $11,434; those of Albert Olson, junior high principal, and Jerald Torgerson, guidance counselor, by $1,153 — to $9,997; and that of Owen Bateson, elementary principal, by $1,143 — to $9,758.

One change occurring in the local school salary structure was the dropping of a $150 annual "bonus" that was being paid to men teachers who were heads of families and whose wives were not employed. Fifteen men were in this category. This allowance conflicted with the Fair Labor Standards Act, which prohibits differing pay to men and women in similar employment.

In connection with the announcement regarding the changed pay schedule, Mr. Gabrielson commented that 16 members of the Belmond District faculty are presently in the 90-hours classification, 32 possess Bachelor degrees, five have credit for 15 or more hours of graduate study, and five have Master's degrees.

MEETING POSTPONED

Due to the blizzard, annual Hospital Auxiliary meeting was postponed till next Wednesday.

"Missing" shoes set back opening

Lowell Followwill, whose new shoe store is the first entirely new Belmond business to be born of the tornado, is anxiously awaiting arrival of some long-ordered stock so he can hold his grand opening.

He had hoped to hold the event by this time, but quite a quanity of shoes he ordered have gotten lost in transit and until they show up he is having to delay the formal opening of his business. He hopes the opening can be held early next month.

Since he left Belmond in 1953, after being associated with his father, the late Matt Followwill, in operation of Followwill Implement company, Lowell and his family have lived in the Quad Cities.

His wife and two children are still living in East Moline, Ill., for the time being. After leaving Belmond, Lowell was employed for 12 years by the Hiland Potato Chip company and the past couple of years had worked at the Rock Island arsenal.

Those getting top ratings were: Susan Havens and Becky Stoffer, flute; Sonja Nelson, oboe; Kathy Ainger, Lou Ann Boelman, Elizabeth Cox, Faye Gabrielson, Michele Roberts and Patty Bunnell, clarinet.

Diane Carolus, bass clarinet; Douglas Rokke, alto saxophone; David Swaroff, Deborah Cook and Julie Packard, cornet; Mark Nelson, trombone; David Hickman, tuba; Susan Pals and Beverly Suntken, snare drum.

Receiving "excellent" ratings were: Faye Bierman and Jane Hinman, flute; Jeanne Christie, Debra Bloemke, Marilyn Hill, Marilyn Triggs and Linda Kennedy, clarinet; Phillip Johnson, cornet; Naomi Trager, trombone.

"Good" ratings went to: Nancy Sharp, flute; Michael Jones, trombone; David Snyder, baritone; and Kevin Olson, tuba.

The Belmond musicians were among 2,400 from north central Iowa who participated in this contest.

50 have given, so far—

Tornado fund goes up over $700

Although the total in the local fund for victims of the St. Louis county tornado of last month had by this week risen to the relatively respectable total of $707, the number of donors to date was rather disappointing.

Contributions had come in from 51 individuals and organization, as of Wednesday afternoon.

Largest gift to date was in the amount of $250 from the Congregational church (United Church of Christ). It was earmarked for a church of that denomination, if such was struck by the tornado. Otherwise, it will go into the general disaster relief fund.

Belmond Lions club delivered a check for $75 as the next-largest donation. One anonymous contribution of $10 and six in the amount of $5 each had been received, plus the following (in addition to those earlier reported):

$25 — R. B. Thompson; $10 — Louise Johnson, Mrs. Cecile Coburn, Mrs. Reka Goeman, Roger Johnson.

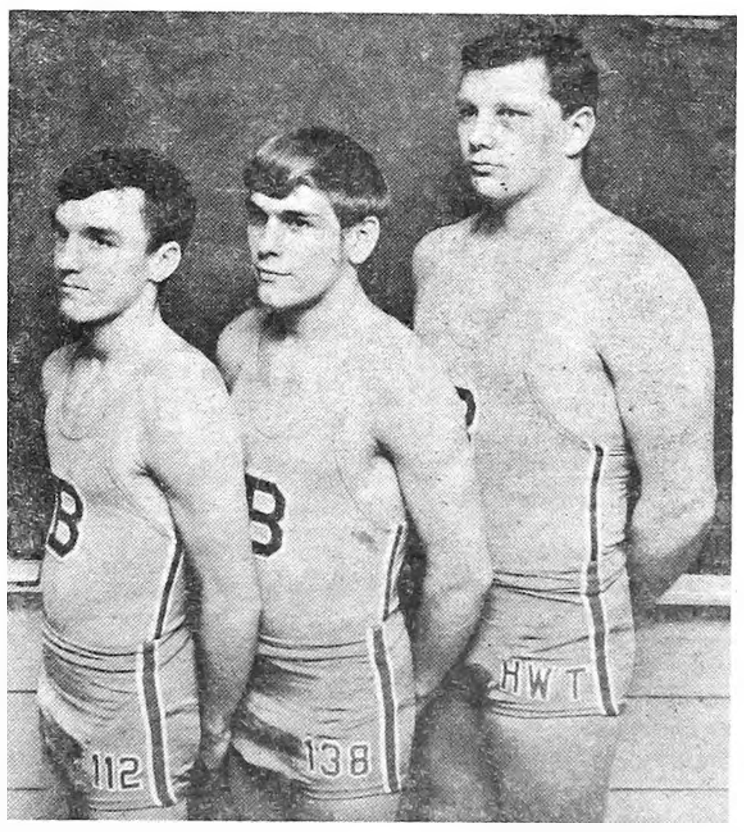
$5 — Cecil Killius, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Duggan, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shobe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Churchouse, Janson's Barbershop, Dr. Leslie Classick, Rev. M. L. Jones, Gunnar Ahlstrom.

Also, S. M. Helgeland, Junior and Gladys Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hill, Dale Bemrich, William Dickinson, A. W. Loats, Mrs. E. J. Elliott, Rev. James E. Rozendaal, Ethen Brunes, H. H. Larsen, George Hinman.

$3 — Thelma and Agnes Rikansrud, Mrs. Bertha Benson, Lucy Klemme.

It would be advisable to get the first check off to the St. Louis County Disaster Relief Fund within the next week's time, so persons planning to give are urged to do so at this time.

Contributions may be left either at The Independent office or the First State bank.



THESE THREE BRONCOS will be representing BHS in district wrestling competition this weekend at the Ice Arena in Urbandale. Sectional championships were won last Friday at Clarion by Robb Dorr, at 112 pounds, and Heavyweight Les Steenblock. After an early defeat by the ultimate 138-lb. champion, Dave Riedel wrestled his way back to second place and an opportunity to advance. Complete details on the sectional tournament will be found on the sports page.

AMES (Special) — Nicki Killius, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Killius of Belmond, on Wednesday of last week was one of 136 undergraduate students at Iowa State university initiated as members of Phi Kappa Phi, scholastic honorary society.

Besides the undergraduates, 74 graduate students and three faculty members were similarly recognized. Phi Kappa Phi compares with Phi Beta Kappa, the scholastic honorary society in liberal arts colleges and universities.

Miss Killius is an ISU senior and will graduate at the end of the current term.

BELMOND INDEPENDENT

PUBLIC FORUM

Letters to the Independent are welcomed. Please try to limit to 100 words or less.

To the striving, cooperative community of Belmond:

I want to give thanks to the people who worked together so diligently in rebuilding our town and spirits, under the odds, after the October 14th disaster. I also wish to thank the outside help that came to us in a time of dire need helped us unrentlessly so that we could keep up our morale and rebuild the town that so many of us had chosen as OUR TOWN, U.S.A.

On the dawn of a successful survival and rehabilitation a dark cloud has covered the sun, even though we were blessed with favorable weather for the months following our tornado disaster. This comes, not in the form of bad weather, but in the form of inadequate and poor judgment on the part of the people we elected to represent us at present and in the future.

The business people of Belmond on Highway 69 were on trial on February 2, 1967. I walked into Court (Luick Memorial Auditorium) to be heard. At least 25 other business people on highway 69 were also on trial. The Jury had made up its mind but the formality proceeded in order to make the hanging legal. After all, everyone is entitled to his day in court. I hereby respect the fact that we were considered important enough to have our honorable Senator and Representative present at this formality, although they presented no constructive reasoning as to why the proposed project of widening 69 should be in effect. Consequently I feel they were here for one or both of the following reasons:

1. Personal gain in their climb up the political ladder.
2. To lend support to an inadequate local government who has shown not only poor judgment, but has gone against the vast majority of the people who elected them, and I fail to see why their presence should relieve any guilt they may have resting on their conscience.

It is commonly understood that a by-products company (collector of dead animals) is going to build a plant in north Belmond. The stench is inevitable. But just remember fellow business people of Highway 69, some good comes from everything. Maybe the aroma from this plant will tend when there is a north wind to counteract or sweeten the existing foul odors that drift down our way from the general direction of City Hall.

I thought we — the people of Belmond — would never see such tyranny, but we were sold down the river. Just hope the river doesn't back up and let the filth flow into the front doors of the rest of the people of Belmond.

So to all the business people of Belmond on Highway 69, I say "I'll see you at the Hanging."

Dorr, Steenblock champs, Riedel 2nd—

Three Bronco wrestlers advance to district

SPORTS

Coach Don Jones was supremely pleased to see Robb Dorr at 112 pounds and Dave Riedel at 138 join Heavyweight Les Steenblock in earning the right last Friday at Clarion to advance to this weekend's district wrestling tournament at Urbandale. Steenblock's success had been confidently expected, but neither Dorr nor Riedel had been regarded as cinches to advance.

Big disappointment of the Clarion sectional from Belmond's viewpoint was the failure of Jim Dickson to make the grade at 127 pounds. Jim, who was top-seeded in his class, opened with a 10-4 decision over Tim Eklund of Eldora and then trimmed Dennis Murphy of Clarion, 3-1.

In the finals, Dickson carried Steve Stoltz of Hampton to overtime with a 4-4 draw, but then lost 2-1 in the extra periods. That forced him to meet Steve Claude of Algona in a wrestle-off for second place and the Algonan eliminated Jim with a 4-2 decision.

Algona advanced nine men to the district meet. Clarion failed to earn a single championship, but got six men through on runner-up placings. Alden advanced four men, Belmond three and Hampton two. Tim Dillon, grandson of the "Barney" Dillons, matched Stoltz's achievement by taking the 120-lb. championship.

On a team point basis, Algona won the Clarion meet with a 101 total, followed by Clarion with 88, Alden 62, Hampton 50, Belmond 45, Eldora 18, Ackley-Geneva 8 and Iowa Training School of Eldora 2. South Hamilton of Jewell failed to score.

Robb Dorr, in the estimate of Coaches Jones and Jerry Kintzi, turned in the best showing of his career, as did Riedel. Seeded second among the 112-pounders, Dorr edged Tom Laing of Algona 3-2 on riding time, beat out Dave Davis of Eldora 6-5, and then upset Mark Schilling of Clarion 5-3 in the finals. Schilling beat Davis 5-4 for the No. 2 spot.

Spectators were in general agreement that Riedel got a "bum rap" in his 4-1 loss Thursday night to Randy Riedinger of Algona after he has first disposed of Dean Barnard of Eldora 3-2 on riding time. Dave had his dander up when he returned to action in Friday's wrestle-offs when Riedinger after on to the championship.

He pinned a former nemisis who'd beaten him four times previously, Leland Pommrehn of Alden, in 2:30 and then bested Daryl Howell of Clarion — loser to Riedinger in the finals — 4-2.

Steenblock, who the local coaches are hopeful may go all the way to the state championship, had little trouble winning the heavyweight title. He pinned Joe Smuck of Alden in 1:52, got past Kent Brooks of Clarion on a 3-1 decision and then blanked Brad Farnham of Algona in the finals, 5-0.

Lance Campbell (145) made a fine showing before suffering a torn cartilege in his right knee in the semi-finals. He had beaten Monte Staples of South Hamilton 10-0 and then was leading Steve Showalter of Hampton 2-0 when the injury occured and he was forced to default.

Greg McClenahan (95) lost his opening match to John Nelson of Clarion, 7-0; John Knoll pinned his first foe, Douglas Thompson of South Hamilton, in 49 seconds but in turn was pinned by Gary Woodley of Clarion in 3.47; and John Greenwood (120) was eliminated in the first round by Larry Munger of Algona, 4-0.

Vance Jenison (133) was flattened by the ultimate champion in his class, Tim Ryan of Alden, in 1:25; Gene Pals (154) lost his first match to Larry Nelson of Alden 8-6; Wayne Smith (165) got by Randy Stock of Hampton 5-0 but then lost 4-1 to Dennis Miller of Algona; and Fred Whipple (180) was beaten 13-2 by Dave Heimstra of Clarion in the first round.

Champions, other than already mentioned, were: 95 — Dennis Peterson, Algona; 103 — Gene Vanderloop, Alden; 145 — Clint Young, Algona; 165 — Gary Nelson, Alden; 180 — Marlin Kalous, Alden.

At Urbandale tomorrow, Dorr will have as his first opponent Rick Andlehelm of Osceola; Riedel drew Tom Thomas of Johnston; and Steenblock will go against Don Woodson of Greenfield.

Belmond has only gotten one man to the state Class A wrestling tournament, Mickey Ketchum making it two years ago. If the three Broncos in the district continue their fine performances, Coach Jones has some hope that all might make it to the big meet this time.

FC coach lodges protest against Bison overtime win over Indians

Buffalo Center's 60-57 overtime victory over Forest City on Tuesday night of last week has been protested by Coach Herb Konigsmark on grounds that the Indians' foe won on a field goal illegally allowed.

The Bison victory on their home court wrapped up a second consecutive North Iowa conference cage title for Buffalo Center, whereas a loss would have made the Bison record 10-3 and Forest City's 9-3 and left the Indians in the running for a share of the championship.

Forest City had a game with Northwood at home last Friday and a make-up game still to play with Osage, while Buffalo Center closed out its season Friday in a meeting with Osage.

Basis of Konigsmark's protest, which was lodged with the Iowa State High School Athletic association, was — who got Buffalo Center's first basket of the ball game?

Dennis Heiman drove for the hoop and was fouled by Tom Anderson. That much was agreed. But the game officials credited Heiman with a basket and allowed him one freethrow, which at the time put Buffalo Center ahead 3 to 2.

Konigsmark declares that, in fact, Heiman's shot instead of going through bounded off to the side and was tipped in by a teammate. Under the "correctable error" rule in the IHAA manual he asked the timer — a Buffalo Center faculty member — to blow the horn so the matter could be straightened out.

This request was refused. Had the game been stopped, and Konigsmark's contention verified, Heiman would have been allowed two freethrows but there would have been no basket. Consequently, the play could have yielded the Bison a maximum of two points instead of the three that went on the scorer's book.

Since the regulation playing time ended with the score tied 53-53, the one point involved would have been crucial. The Buffalo Center Tribune's account of the game passes over the incident by reporting simply that "At 5:58 (in the first quarter) Heiman was fouled in the act of shooting by Tim Anderson (the Forest City Summit says it was Tom Anderson) and Denny counted for the three-point play and the lead, 3-2. This call brought loud and vociferous rebuttal from visiting fans."

The ISHAA board of control has a reputation for rarely, if ever, ruling favorably on a protest of any variety but presumably will take the matter up at its next meeting.

Froshmore game holds interest Friday at Osage

Belmond High's basketeers will wind up their regular season Friday night at Osage. Barring the biggest kind of upset, they should have not too much trouble in handing the Green Devils their 11th North Iowa conference loss of the season, settling the Imps firmly into 7th place in the final loop standings.

Insofar as Osage partisans are concerned, more interest will center in the freshman-sophomore contest that the varsity affair. The Junior Imps a week ago Tuesday trimmed Northwood 43-40 to take an exclusive hold on first place in the NIC froshmore standings. This is the most successful team Osage has put on the basketball court since that school joined the conference in 1958.

In 1959-60, the Imp varsity seemed headed for a title tie with Belmond until being upset by an underdog Britt team in their next-to-last game of the campaign and wound up 11-3 compared to Belmond's 12-2 finish.

Last weekend, the Junior Imps held top spot in the froshmore standings with a 10-2 mark and had Forest City as well Belmond yet to meet on their home floor. Belmond's underclassmen handed the Osage crew its second defeat of the season, 36-28, when the teams met here Jan. 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Burk on Wednesday evening of last week returned from a western trip taken with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kuhlers of Meservey. They spent three weeks at Phoenix, Ariz., and a week at La Habra, Calif., where they visited former Belmond friends, the George Petersons and Earl Rukas. They had the opportunity to greet several other old friends during the trip and do much enjoyable sightseeing.

Broncs' next-to-worst licking—

Bulldogs amass record 81 points

It was "the fatal flaw" of weak defense that once again spelled defeat for the Belmond High cagers last Friday night as they bowed to the Lake Mills Indians, 81-71. The loss dumped the Broncos into 4th place in the North Iowa conference standings as they gained the dubious distinction of permitting the next-to-highest score ever posted against a BHS cage team.

In 1954-55, it was Lake Mills that chalked up the largest point total ever amassed against a Belmond team, 89-71 (the Broncs beat that same Bulldog team twice that season, once in tournament play). The next year, Lake Mills posted an 81-62 win, matching last Friday's total.

At Lake Mills, it was very much a repeat of the story at Forest City a week earlier, when the Indians expanded a two-point lead in the third quarter into 15-point pad at about the same stage in the final stanza.

The Broncos had kept well in contention against the Bulldogs throughout the first half, though a last field goal before the buzzer by Roger Bang gave the host team a five-point advantage at the intermission, 44-39. But on returning to action, Lake Mills ran off 15 consecutive points to balloon the Broncos' deficit to 20 points, 59-39.

Belmond had little luck in turning the tide during the remainder of the third period and as the fourth period got underway the Bulldogs jumped into their biggest lead of the night — 24 points — at 73-49. One thing must be said for the Broncos. Even when their defensive lapses put them squarely behind the 8-ball, the don't give up easy.

In the next five minutes they came rampaging back and sliced 14 points off of the Bulldogs' lead. With the tally 75-67, they muffed a couple of chances to pare the deficit to six; then Coach Jim Borcherding ordered his boys into a stall.

It was a good one, eating up better than a minute and three-quarters of time before Gary Meyers fouled Stan Olson on an attempted steal. Olson made his first try but missed his second, and after the rebound Olson returned the courtesy by fouling Meyers. Gary made both attempts to make it 76-69.

Lake Mills returned to ball control, and the Broncs just didn't have enough time left to rectify the multiple defensive errors that had allowed the Bulldogs to get their runaway lead. There wasn't a basket made in the last four-plus minutes of the game as Belmond got its last four points and Lake Mills its final six on freethrows.

For the second game in a row, Coach Ted Besch started three juniors who figure to be the backbone of next season's Bronco quintet — Terry Nelson at center, Greg Fuller at forward and Paul Bamford at one guard spot. This shoved Meyers into the other forward position, and he seemed to have trouble operating with his customary efficiency in the forecourt.

Nelson led Belmond scoring with 20 points. Meyers had only four the first half but added a dozen in the second to wind up with 16. Tim Roberts and Bamford each added 12, Doug Thompsen six and Bob Rise five.

Roger Bang paced the Bulldogs with 23 points, 14 in the last half; and Tom Westendorf converted numerous close-in chances on rebounds and off of fast breaks to tally 18. Steve Pederson, who fouled out with half the last quarter to go, stuffed in 17. Stan Olson and Gary Holstad plucked 10 apiece, Bob Harang netted two and Maury Hope one.

The loss gave Belmond its worst NIC finish since 1962, when the Broncos had a 7-7 mark. It was also the first Lake Mills win over Belmond since that season.

Coach Chuck Stalker's froshmores had little trouble in winning the curtain-raiser. They padded a 27-16 halftime lead to finish with a 44-28 victory. Greg Steenblock, with the help of an 8-for-8 performance at the freethrow line, was high scorer with 16 points. Rick Hawley was close behind with 15.

Hoghouse burns; 120 pigs lost

Equipment of both the Alexander and Meservey Fire departments was summoned about 10:30 a. m. Sunday to the Bill Vierkant farm when a hoghouse caught fire.

Such headway had been gained by the time the fire trucks could arrive, however, that the building could not be saved. The loss was a serious one, as 120 pigs were destroyed in addition to the hoghouse. It proved possible to save the sows.

The driver of a passing milk truck stopped to inform the Vierkants that the hoghouse was ablaze.

Donyce Myers spent the weekend with Diane Myers at Ames.

A birthday slumber party was held Friday evening for Darlynn Myers. Present were Kathy Gunderson, Kathy Sue Myers, Melody Korth of Dows and Cynthia Christensen and Doreen Smith of Coulter.

A most appropriate tribute paid to a fine lady

One of the most heartwarming gestures to come to our attention in a long, long time is that which members of the family of Mrs. Anton Boller have made as a tribute to her memory.

Catherine Marie Boller, her family would be the first to agree, belonged in the broad ranks of "just ordinary women" — but who really are not ordinary at all. For each is uniquely herself, and makes a place for herself in the circle of family and friends that could be filled by no other.

In establishing an annual scholarship to be given some worthy graduate of Belmond Community High school to help that student continue his or her education into college, the Bollers single out what was this kindly woman's "outstanding characteristic".

It was "her love of little children, and her never-flagging interest in and affection for young people." By the generous scholarship they are setting up as a memorial, her children are projecting this love and concern for young people so it will for years to come extend an affectionate hand to boys and girls who never even had the privilege of knowing their benefactor.

We can well imagine that Mrs. Boller would have been quite overcome at the thought of her memory being kept alive in such a fashion — though certainly, pleased.

"Land sakes!" she might have said, "You don't need to do anything like THAT!"

It bespeaks the influence that such "ordinary women" can actually have, that her family was inspired to something exactly "like THAT".

Belmond has often responded to disaster appeals

That humankind is contending with disaster somewhere in the world almost continually has been impressed upon this writer in preparing the weekly grist for the 'way-back-when feature that appears regularly on the editorial page.

Seventy-five years ago, local dollars were being solicited for Russian Relief. Famine was rampant there (presumably because the proletariat had not taken command).

Forty-five years ago, Belmond people were giving for Near East Relief. This time it was the Turkish who were starving, due to a run of poor crops.

Thirty years ago, floods had ravaged the Ohio river and upper Mississippi valleys, leaving many thousands homeless and in desperate need of mass care; and Belmond pocketbooks were being opened to help meet the emergency.

Last October we were given a private demonstration of the generosity that man shows toward fellow man in time of need. Red Cross officials still stand in awe of the outpouring of assistance that came this way after much of our community had been turned into a shambles by the tornado. They say that the response to our disaster was unique in terms of dollars and direct personal aid (and, for once, the oft abused adjective "unique" is accurately applied).

This has posed Belmond with a self-assumed challenge. By truly "popular demand," a local fund for the relief of tornado victims in St. Louis county, Missouri, was set up two weeks ago. By last weekend, contributions had reached the level of $500 — a good start, but hardly an adequate reflection of the gratitude WE felt for the help rendered US in our time of need.

The St. Louis county disaster outstripped our own in scope, in homes demolished or severely damaged, in number of families directly affected. This is our opportunity to "pass it on" — to do for others as was done for us. If you haven't gotten a check in to The Independent or the First State bank yet, now is the time. Let our response be prompt, as well as generous.

"One good Farm Clinic deserves another," we say

What, hopefully, was the "1st Annual Farm Clinic" of the Belmond Chamber of Commerce is now history. Thanks to the efforts of the town and country committee headed by Don Bunnell and the ever helpful services of Secretary Ellis Elliott, it was a decided success from every standpoint.

If there was any slight disappointment involved, it lay in the fact that another 150 or more farmers very readily could have been accommodated. But we suspect that a larger attendance can be confidently expected at subsequent clinics, because "success breeds success."

For one thing, the Chamber definitely plans to incorporate special features attractive to the womenfolk when the second clinic is held next year. And if the ladies feel "included," instead of "left out," you can just about count on it that the men will be present in larger force.

The variety of this first clinic's program stamped the event as NOT "just another farm information program". There were ideas disseminated that can mean added dollars to the farmer guests and greater convenience and efficiency in conducting their operations. And there was some good entertainment, too.

With all the talk about farmers' diminishing numbers and the push in all communities of any size to obtain new industry, there's sometimes a temptation for forget that agriculture still IS — and unquestionably always WILL BE — this area's MOST IMPORTANT industry.

Belmond's Chamber of Commerce is to be commended for keeping this in mind and acting accordingly. We sincerely hope that this year's Farm Clinic will, indeed, prove only the first of a long and equally successful series of such events. Our farmers deserve both the recognition and the courtesy.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

Every once in awhile there comes along a bill or resolution which has very popular appeal and it is difficult to cast a vote against the majority without being branded as an "aginner".

Last week the Senate passed a teachers bill that would increase the annual minimum sick leave for Iowa teachers and sharply boost the cumulative total. I was one of 16 who opposed this and I would like to explain why I did.

The same section of the Code which was amended says, "Nothing in this section shall be construed as limiting the right of a school board to grant more time than the days herein specified." This very clearly gives the local school board all the power to raise minimum sick leave.

I SAW ABSOLUTELY NO REAson to make a Code change when it is probable that the future will find local boards going for insurance plans of the type followed in industry and these plans usually eliminate sick leave.

Still another reason for opposing it was the fact that negotiation between one school administration and its teachers may substitute salaries for fringe benefits and have a perfectly happy teacher organization.

Should this be the case, then it is wrong for the state to come along and force upon them additional sick leave which they could have given if they had wanted and had their teacher negotiations deemed helpful or needed. It can have only one effect and this is to increase taxes.

TO ME THIS WAS INCONSISTent on the part of the Senate, when compared to the bill which gave home rule to the local cities and towns and which passed 56 to 0, to then vote this bill which takes home rule from school boards.

Also this week, the Senate rejected the resolution which would have the appropriate committees of the two houses coordinate their evaluations and studies of the problems and progress made under the Area Vocational Schools and make a comprehensive report to the General Assembly within 45 days.

The resolution also provided that the report contain any recommended changes in the law and that it be distributed to all members of the 62nd General Assembly.

THIS RESOLUTION LOST AND in the debate the Democratic majority tried to make it look as though those of us who gave support to the study were opposed to the Area Vocational Schools concept.

I must add that I am not against this concept but I do believe that the best help the Area Schools could have is a thorough understanding of what they are doing and what they have to do, as well as what they have to do it with. To me this was a needed and worthy objective.

I became a party to sponsorship of an act to provide a credit on the tax on livestock, the tax on inventories of property intended for sale, the tax on household goods and articles of personal apparel or adornment and to levy an additional sales tax to provide funds therefor.

I HOPE THAT THE PUBLIC will flood the legislature with mail supporting this issue in the same magnitude that they have on the emotional issue of Standard Time versus Daylight Time. This bill comes as close to supporting the tax reform promises of both political parties on this issue of personal property tax relief as anything so far introduced.

Perhaps the biggest news in the legislature this week was development of a stalemate on the matters of reapportionment and subdistricting. The daily press has given this a lot of coverage so I will limit my remarks.

The major objectives of reapportionment and subdistricting have now been tied in with reduction of the size of both the house and senate. I think that this is unfortunate at this itme because no political subdivision is willing to throw to the winds, in less than six months, their right to be represented.

From the very beginning it was clear to me that the Democatic majority in the Senate has felt that their best hope to preserve the most seats in the legislature was to make sure that this issue got to the Iowa Supreme Court for settlement.

REPUBLICAN LEGISLATORS made a strong move last week to break the log jam which has built up around the thorny reapportionment issue. Two moves were made in the fifth week of the session to resolve the three-pronged problem, and, as a result, the issue was put squarely in the hands of the Democrats, who control the Senate.

The first step in untangling the problem occurred after House and Senate leaders announced that Republican legislators had agreed to a three-point program which would result in carrying out the Iowa Supreme Court's order to sub-district those counties electing more than one senator or representative, establish a "permanent" plan through a constitutional amendment, and reduce the size of the chambers in time for the 1970 elections.

The House, which has already sent to the Senate a permanent plan, quickly carried out the proposal by approving a bill which calls for a bipartisan commission in each of the 18 counties now electing more than one senator or representative to subdivide the county into single-member legislative districts.

THE COMMISSION WOULD BE made up of the chairman and vice chairman of the Republican and Democrat parties and a fifth person selected by the other four. They will then draw the districts and submit the plan to the legislature by April 1.

The plan also sets up a 10-member state commission, again bipartisan, to draw up the reapportionment plan which would cut the Senate from 61 to 50 members and reduce the House from 124 to 100 members. This plan is to be in the hands of the legislature by April 24.

House passage of these proposals placed the responsiblity for their action on the shoulders of Senate Democrats.

The Senate also took action on a major bill, the proposed amendment which would have the governor and lieutenant-governor elected as a "term" for four-year teams. Republicans split on the voting, with 20 favoring the resolution and nine opposing.

THE DIVISION WAS CAUSED, in part, by an attorney general's decision which said it would be better if the two subjects contained in the resolution were divided. This would result in the four-year term proposal for both officers being one amendment, and the part tying them to run as a team, like the president and vice president, as a second and separate resolution.

This amendment, which was passed by both houses in the 1965 session, is now awaiting action by the House.

Another important bill was also passed in the House. This allows Iowans now receiving welfare payments to receive increased medical services under the federal "Medicare" bill. The proposal will result in about 100,000 Iowans receiving medical services, an increase of 20,000 over those now getting such aid. No additional state funds will be needed.

"DEDICATED ASSAULT"?—

It was almost like Harry Truman calling Congress a 'do-nothing" Congress.

Governor Harold Hughes, known for being out-spoken on occasion, told reporters there's a "dedicated assault" in the legislature to destroy all eight of the proposed constitutional amendments passed in 1965 along with plans for governmental reorganization.

When asked by one of the reporters at his daily news conference whether his remarks were aimed at Republicans (who control the House 89 to 35) or Democrats (who control the Senate 32 to 29) the governor replied that they are directed at "whoever is responsible" for holding up action on reorganization measures, constitutional or statutory.

His comments came after he was asked to amplify a statement attributed to him that this is the most unproductive legislature. "I used the word 'may'," Hughes emphasized. "I said that may be the most unproductive legislature."

RESPONSE BY GOP—

Republican leaders wasted little time in responding to the attack. Republican State Chairman Robert Ray said the governor has "expressed a unique way of cooperating by demanding the legislature do only what he wants done when he snaps his fingers.

"No one wants legislature progress more than I do, but I do believe the legislature deserves the opportunity to debate the issues so there can be a productive session and good legislation," Ray added.

As for prediction about an unproductive session, Ray continued, "it is hardly the time to be painting a gloomy picture."

FAST-TIME FURORE—

Amidst its welter of tax-revision problems, the legislature still gets the most mail and petitions on the matter of daylight saving time.

Most of the mail and petitions originate in western Iowa but there is a heavy sprinkling of letters urging a return to "God's time" from throughout the state.

However, the legislature is now getting mail from those who like daylight time and want it to be retained.

A proposal to put the matter up to the vote of the people received a set-back in the Senate Governmental Affairs committee this week, when a 12-4 vote sent the matter back to its sub committee "for further study." That's a polite way of suggesting that the matter be dropped for this session.

A leading proponent of the move to repeal daylight time is Sen. Jim Briles of Adams. He's bucking heavy odds in view of the fact that Governor Hughes has said he would veto any proposal to return to standard time.

PERSONAL PROPERTY—

A number of measures have been introduced which would reduce or eliminate personal property taxes in Iowa. Most popular with both parties is one to eliminate the tax on household goods.

But Senators Reichardt of Polk and Heying of Fayette are eyeing the matter with a view to relieving the small business man, whose tax on inventory has always plagued him.

Meanwhile the question of how to replace the revenue is keeping various groups on the "anxious seat". This has always been a knotty problem in the assembly.

MINIMUM WAGE BILL—

A minimum wage bill has made its appearance. It would cover employees not now covered by the federal act, with certain exceptions including employees engaged in agriculture and public employees. The rate would start at $1.25 per hour, with a provision for a lower rate for learners. Since Feb. 1st, the federal rate has been $1.40 but the federal statute, in general, is applicable only to business firms engaged in inter-state commerce.

HANSEN CONFIRMED—

Former Congressman John R. Hansen is the newest member on the state highway commission. A long-time friend of Governor Hughes, Hansen has been confirmed by the Iowa Senate to the highway post. The vote was 45 to 6, with 41 votes being needed.

VOC' SCHOOLS IN RED—

Gerry Rankin, legislative fiscal director, says Iowa's area vocational schools are in the red. Rankin estimates the overall deficit will be more than $2.5 million by June. He said the bills are being paid with "stamped warrants." Such warrants may be issued by a public body and not paid for lack of funds. Such debts draw interest until money is available to redeem the warrants.

ENFORCEMENT—

"Law enforcement is on the threshold of a new era, if only we can grasp the opportunity," according to state safety commissioner Gene Needles. The commissioner, in a speech at Iowa City, told an audience of policemen from around the state that policemen should band together for the good of the public and themselves.

Needles said that law enforcers now have the chance to attain the status of true professionals, since recent court decisions have diminished the importance of confessions and increased the need for experts who can prove guilt in other ways.

Comparing the present status of the law enforcer to that of the school teacher a few years ago, he pointed that the teachers formed an association to assert their professionalism." Now, stories of teachers' pay raises fill the newspapers," he said.

Needles said he hopes that the creation of an Iowa law enforcement academy, a proposal before the legislature, will knit local, county and state peace officers more closely together.

Blecker's yearly report shows—

Sheriff's office handled 880 cases in '66

"Business" of the Wright county sheriff's office continued to get better and better in 1966, the annual report of Sheriff Bob Blecker to the grand jury this week indicated. Complaints numbered 880 during the year, which was a jump of 87 over 1965 and 180 more than were turned in the year before that.

Of the 880 cases that found their way onto the books, 793 were closed by the time the year ended. Helping keep the sheriff's staff busy was the serving of 239 civil papers. This was 30 less papers than had to be handled in 1965, which — finding his blessings where he can — the sheriff was happy about. Fees collected by the sheriff's office and turned over to the county treasurer came to $453.35.

Traffic toll, 10 lives

Traffic accidents took both a heavier toll in lives and caused much more property damage in 1966 than in 1965. Only three persons lost their lives in road mishaps in '65, whereas last year's toll was 10; and the number of injured went up from 70 to 98. Damage caused in the '66 accidents was estimated at $139,050, which was almost as much as in 1965 ($76,513) and 1964 ($63,725) together.

The report states that the sheriff and his deputies covered 138 traffic accidents in Wright county during the past year, the Highway Patrol 53 and nine accidents were jointly investigated.

Part of the reason for the larger number of accident investigations by the sheriff's office is that a large majority of the mishaps occurred on secondary roads, in which cases the sheriff's office is more likely to be notified. Of 200 reported accidents (40 more than the year before), 122 took place on secondary roads and 78 on main highways.

105 larceny cases

It might be observed, relative to the sheriff's report, that Mr. Bleckerhas for some time been urging increased patrolling of secondary roads as a safety precaution. He has added that as most sheriffs' offices are presently staffed and financed, there is neither manpower nor funds for such patrolling.

Accidents in 1966 accounted for more cases reported to the sheriff's office than any other type of complaint. Next in number were larceny reports, 105 being received during the year. This was 34 more than the year before.

Domestic tiffs were somewhat fewer in number, prompting 87 calls compared to 104 in '65. Traffic problems of one type or another drew 65 complaints, a drop of 20. It was a "bad year" where breaking and entering was concerned, 43 criminal entries being reported in comparison to 34 in '65 and only 23 in '64.

Mental cases "up"

Through the efforts of the Wright county sheriff's office, it could be appropriately noted, one break-in gang was uncovered that had been responsible for a considerable number of the robberies.

Rather oddly, juvenile cases numbered 43 — exactly the same as in 1964, while in 1965 there were only four. Vandalism complaints totaled 32, or 14 more than the year previous; but there were only 31 false check compaints, a drop of 48.

Mental cases on which the sheriff's office was called reached the unusual high of 35, up from four the year before and 11 in 1964. Of the cases handled, 30 involved men.

OMVI (operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated) accounted for 18 cases — the same as in '64 but four more than in '65. The sheriff's office was called on 25 missing-person cases, whereas there were none of this category in either of the two years preceding.

Dogs prompt 20 calls

Marauding dogs prompted 20 calls from irate farmers who'd had livestock attacked, nine more than in '65 and 14 more than in '64. There were only three forgery cases, a drop of seven; eight cases of intoxication, a drop of one; but 11 assault and battery reports, an increase of nine.

Prowlers prompted 11 calls, four less than in '65; and the three reports of anonymous letters or phone calls represented a drop of two. Eight cases of fraud were reported, an increase of six. And 13 autos were reported stolen, as to none in the preceding two years. While the siege of bomb reports was rampant the nation over, there were two bomb scares in Wright county — which was something new.

A wide variety of other activities accounted for the balance of the complaints received.

Liquor puts 51 in jail

Where jail crimes were concerned, it was evident that quite a few cases of OMVI and intoxication were docketed through the initiative of the sheriff and deputies, themselves; for 25 went to the hoosegow on OMVI convictions (six the year before) and 26 on intoxication (20 in '65). Fifteen served time on serious traffic violations, an increase of five.

Eight went behind the bars on false check charges, a drop of 10; seven were jailed for larceny, a drop of two; and nine juvenile delinquents were held in custody, an increase of two. Five heard the jail door swing shut for illegal possession of beer; and four each for assault and battery, Breaking and entering, and disturbing the peace.

During the year, 169 men and 10 women were inmates of the county jail, altogether. One might have thought that the onset of winter had some looking for warmer lodgings, for 31 were incarcerated during that month.

Blecker 20th sheriff

Eighteen were jailed in June, 17 in July, 16 in December, 14 in February, 12 in January, 11 each in March, April and May, 10 in August, and nine each in September and October.

Blecker's report to the grand jury included the names of all Wright county sheriff's since one Scott Crapper first served in the office for two years after his election in August of 1855. Blecker is the county's 20th sheriff (D. H. Leonard served twice during separated periods) and has held the post 16 years — longer than any of his predecessors except Roy Wilson, who'd held the job 18 years before Blecker replaced him.

Chiropractic for the HEART

Despite its great importance in the maintenance of life, the HEART is the great muscular pump whose sole job is to propel blood throughout the body.

The HEART when normal, beats from 65 to 80 beats per minute, pumping a total of 500 gallons of blood a day. During a lifetime the heart beats 2,500,000,000 times and pumps a total of nearly 15,000,000 gallons.

The HEART must function continually and consistantly 24 hours a day in order for the body to enjoy the maximum of health. Of all the organs in the body, the heart does the most actual physical work. It is the great pump of the circulatory system that forces the blood to the smallest parts of the body where oxygen and life giving food are delivered to every cell and tissue of every organ so that they may function properly.

The brain power sends this vital nerve energy through the Spinal Column to the organ creating movement. The same process is also true of the heart. Though we are not aware if its existence, the brain power and nerve energy must precede the contraction of the heart muscles. Deprived of this vital nerve energy from the brain to the heart by pressure of impingements to the nerve fiber in the Spinal Cord, the muscular action is reduced and the heart suffers.

Not only the action of the heart, but its condition is dependent upon the ability of the nervous system to carry it the proper supply of nerve energy from the brain. Whether the abnormality be enlargement of the heart, leakage, irregularity in the heart action, it is all produced by the same common cause. Only by restoring brain power and nerve energy to the heart can it function properly and thereby render 100 percent efficient circulation to all parts of the body.

Thousands of individuals embracing various types of "Heart Conditions" have regained vigorous health by receiving gentle chiropractic adjustments from competent Chiropractors. Give yourself a chance to unlock the door to health and happiness, see your Chiropractor today.

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Sterling Laaveg continues to be something of a phenomenon among State University of Iowa athletes, due to his scholarship. While Sterl (a sophomore) is attending U-of-I on a football scholarship, his academic work would appear worthy of the arrangement.

He kinda botched up, last year. Got a B both semesters and wound up with "only" about a 3.8 grade average. But the first semester of the present school year he got fully into gear and "aced" every subject for a 4.0 average — than which there is no whicher.

Pop and Mom, Rev. and Mrs. Oscar Laaveg, were just about as pleased with son Paul's work in his first freshman semester at the university. He pulled down a B in all but one subject for a 2.7; which indicated "Peach" is bearing down on the books.

The Independent "hatched," you might say, this week — coming out of the "egg" that concealed its rebirth from the general public. While A. R. Dorr Sons had that weather front on us during the reconstruction period, the staff members rather felt like they were work in a barn.

Ye Ed's first impulse on coming through the door was to look for a cow or two to milk, or some eggs to gather. We didn't look very elegant from the outside, for sure.

But our fancy new front's about on now, and we're feeling civilized again. We're a lot fancier than we'd EVER have been, without that nudge from the tornado. Next, the office is getting all dolled up. Then we'll be already to join the arcade brigade and call it "Done!"

The late F. Ross Henry's swan-song as a versifier appears in this issue of The Independent. Ross loved to come up with bits of doggeral to nudge taxpayers into getting their annual tax forms in. The "poem" in the ad of the Wright County Assessor's Office today was found by Ross's assistant, Florence Breckenridge, having been written by her boss on the day of his death, Jan. 21. If you haven't done it yet— pay heed to the advice of the late courthouse poet and GET THOSE FORMS IN!

Fifteen years ago, polio was still a dread disease annually claiming many lives in this country. Salk vaccine's discovery lay some years ahead, and combatting infantile paralysis was the objective of the March of Dimes. Now, only the rankest careless can cause one to become a polio victim; and the National Foundation (March of Dimes sponsor) has adopted birth defects as the major target of its research.

In 1952, Wright countians gave $3,137 to the March of Dimes. The sum from Belmond was $525. Times have changed, Jerry McLaughlin will tell you.

He took responsibility for distributing collection canisters for March of Dimes here last month. The "take" wasn't so hot. Two of 33 coin boxes set out in business places netted nary a nickel. The other 31 brought in just $32.81. The one at Town House cafe caught the most — $3.64. Only 13 produced more than a dollar when picked up last week. Left Jerry wondering if it had really been worth his time and trouble.

As many games of cribbage as get played in the "side room" in the basement of the IOOF hall, it was bound to happen. Tuesday afternoon, it. did. Playing a game with Henry Larsen, Jim McMurray came up with a "perfect" 29-point cribbage hand. Seems we recall Henry having one about a year ago — so that's fair!

For the benefit of Belmond wrestling enthusiasts who will be keeping a watchful eye on Les Steenblock as the Bronco entry in this week's Class A state mat tournament, a few particulars. First round matches will start Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock and Les's match will be the third in the heavyweight division, near the end of the afternoon program. He will be meeting Duane Hammen of Rockwell City, runner-up in the district held at Audubon.

If the big Bronco survives this test, he will draw the winner of Rex Smith (Orange Twp., Waterloo) and Bruce Stotlar (Morning Sun), who were winner and runner-up respectively at Jesup and Prairie of Cedar Rapids.

The semi-final matches at Waterloo start at 1:30 p. m. Saturday — the finals at 6:30 o'clock — and his many backers are hopefully confident Les will still be in contention at the latter hour. The state tournament is strictly elimination. When you're beaten, you're out. No wrestle-back as in the case of the sectional and district meets. Les is only the second Bronco to get to the state tourney. Mick Ketchum did it two years ago.

'Sam' new lessee of D-X Service

Ardell (Sam) Kaduce is back in business in what were once familiar surroundings before the tornado did some rearranging of his business premises. He has leased the D-X Service station on Highway 69, where he initially operated his radiator repair shop.

Just a year ago last week he occupied a building of his own opposite Hill Motel, and conducted his radiator and glass replacement service there until the blow of last October demolished his new shop.

He will now run the service station business, lately operated by Fred Steenhard, as well as his radiator and glass replacement service.

Six Central Soya cars involved in derailment

Central Soya shippings figured heavily in damage done when 11 freight cars jumped the track as a Rock Island train came a-cropper six miles south of town about 9:30 p. m. Wednesday of last week. Six of the cars carried Central Soya wares, three 150,000-pound tank cars of oil and three 50-ton carloads of meal.

What caused the derailment had not been learned this week by R. E. "Buck" Reasoner, local RI depot agent. The likely probability appeared to be a spread or broken rail. Six cars immediately behind the engine stayed on the tracks; the rest went sprawling.

By late Friday night, repairs had been completed but the first train didn't come through Belmond until 9:00 p. m. Saturday.

Two of the Central Soya tank cars were ruptured, and Manager Ray Wright said it appeared probable that their entire 100,000-pound contents were lost. The company planned to cooperate with the railroad in salvaging the other carload of oil by transfer to another tank car.

Since the carloads of meal could not carry Central Soya's guarantee of ingredients, after the wreck, the railroad settled for their value and sold the meal to a Canadian firm.

Fight discloses "illegal" beer; four picked up

Four Fort Dodge youths were arrested last Saturday night at Clarion on suspicion of having been involved in a fight at the Win-Mill-Inn, local teen recreation spot. The license plate on their auto, belonging to one of the young men, led to their apprehension.

Charges filed against them were not for fighting, however, but for illegal possession of beer by minors. They were taken in tow at Clarion by officers Cliff Downing and Ron Gearhart, who found a quantity of canned beer in the car.

Although none of the youth would confess the slightest knowledge as to how in the world the beer could have gotten there, all were instructed to report to the city hall at Clarion this Saturday morning to answer to the charges against them.

The young men were: David Lieshman and Michael Husske, each 18; John Huebsch and Patrick Ackerson, each 17.

WCARC MEETING MARCH 1

Regular meeting of the Wright County Association for Retarded children will be held at Clarion high school on Wednesday of next week at 8:00 p. m. The program will include a report on a book of special interest to parents and friends. Visitors are welcome.

CHET KNUDSEN, BOONE, DIES

Word was received Monday by Belmond friends of the death on Sunday of Chet Knudsen of Boone, following a heart attack. Mr. Knudsen and his family made their home here some years ago when he was in the livestock feed business.

Johnson funeral held on Saturday

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at the Methodist church for Erma Pauline Johnson, 73, who died very suddenly on Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Virgil Johnson.

Rev. M. L. Jones officiated over the funeral and Johnston Funeral Home was in charge. Burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Pallbearers were Claude Veeder, Clarence Vestweber, Alvin Halfpop, Norris Soma, Roman Johnson and Maurice Trumbell.

Erma Pauline Haupt was born near Belmond on June 29, 1893, daughter of Ernest and Wilhelmina Haupt. She was educated in rural schools near this community. On March 4, 1915, she was married to Ludvig Johnson and they farmed in this area for some time.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Charles (Elaine) LaRue, who lives in Kansas; and Mrs. Virgil (Minnie) Johnson. She also leaves a brother, Earl Haupt of Belmond; and six grandchildren.

Besides her husband, she was preceded in death by a daughter, Mrs. Loraine Meyer.

Mayor honored by Lions club—

Robert Misner named "Man of the Year"

Dr. Robert E. Misner, who next July will complete his sixth year as mayor of Belmond and is in his 10th year as an elected municipal officer, Wednesday night of last week was honored by the Lions club by designation as Belmond's "Man of the Year" for 1966.

In presenting "Mayor Bob" with the Lion statuette-desk set that goes annually to the "Man of the Year," Ernest Doeringsfeld noted that Dr. Misner would have been a top candidate for the honor even if Belmond had not been visited by the disastrous tornado of last October.

After handling the heavy administrative chores created by the disaster in such extremely competent fashion and representing Belmond so capably while the community was in the public eye in the days and weeks that followed, Mayor Misner made himself a virtually exclusive candidate, Mr. Doeringsfeld continued.

Dr. Misner was elected to the city council in 1957 and took office at the start of 1958. He served as a councilman-at-large until the resignation of L. T. Trafford from the mayorship in July of 1961 and was appointed by the council to fill out the last six months of Trafford's term. He was then re-elected as mayor in 1961, 1963 and 1965.

During his administration, municipal water and sewage facilities were extented to west Belmond (the "hill") for the first time since the community's founding. Dr. Misner has guided what has been an outstandingly progressive administration in numerous other regards in maintaining city services at a consistently high level of excellence.

The administration had set the groundwork for a paving project that would have seen an additional 50 blocks of street surfaced this year; but the tornado made necessary it's indefinite postponement.

In accepting the honor bestowed upon him, Dr. Misner declared that the credit given him for helping Belmond get through the tornado disaster belonged to a great many people who gave him unstinting assistance and sound advice. It was in behalf of them all, he said, that he very humbly accepted the honor being given to him. He also declared that much forebearance has been required of his wife Eleanor, as he fulfills his official duties.

Mr. Doeringsfeld, in pointing out Mayor Misner's qualifications for the title of "Man of the Year," observed that they were not limited to his performance of his official duties.

He commented that Dr. Misner has been very active in work of the Methodist church, has given help freely in civic undertakings of all kinds, and has placed his stamp on two unusually fine children — his son Bob, an outstanding athlete at Drake university; and his daughter Deborah, a popular and versatile BHS junior.

A native of Hurley, S. D., Dr. Misner was a fine athlete in his own right in high school and later at Sioux Falls college. His baseball ability once won him a try-out with the St. Louis Cardinals.

He was a navigator on a heavy bomber during World War II, flew 27 combat missions in the Middle East and was an Army Air Force captain when discharged in 1945.

He came to Belmond in 1950 to join in a partnership with Dr. H. J. Classick, after having earned a D. V. M. degree at the Iowa State university (Ames) school of veterinary medicine. Dr. Misner is presently sharing a partnership practice with the late Dr. Classick's son, Dr. Les Classick.

Mayor Misner, in his acceptance speech, added that he owed a great debt of gratitude to his partner for carrying on the practice of the Belmond Veterinary Clinic during the weeks and months that most of his own time had to be devoted to "tornado business" following the storm.

Setting of the "Man of the Year" presentation was the Lions club's annual Ladies Night Banquet at the Olde Belmond Inn. Luin Cox served as program master-of-ceremonies. Speaker of the evening was Don Warren, announcer and disk jockey for radio station WHO, Des Moines.

Courson director of risk company

R. W. Courson on Wednesday of last week at the annual stockholders meeting of the United Fire and Casualty company of Cedar Rapids was elected as a director of the company. He has been a representative of the firm locally since 1942 and has been a stockholder for the past 20 years.

Scott McIntyre, Jr., president and general manager of United Fire and Casualty, reported at the meeting at Cedar Rapids that this concern paid probably a larger gross in claims as a result of the Belmond tornado than any other insurance company involved.

Its losses came to more than a million dollars. He happily added that through reinsurance of the risks, the net loss to the company was just under $100,000.

The president announced that the total of $6,694,169 in premiums written for the year ended Dec. 31 included a net gain of $511,088. He said the results of the casualty company's year of operation were particularly satisfying in view of the firm's degree of involvement in the Belmond disaster.

Recognition to Belmond hospital for service at time of tornado

Highlight of the husband-and-wife dinner held last Friday night by the Belmond Chamber of Commerce was presentation of Belmond Community hospital with a plaque praising that institution's performance of duty following the October tornado.

The handsome brass plate was accepted by Administrator Marc Ihm and was delivered in behalf of the Iowa Hospital association by Cletus Turnbach of Harlan, president of the association.

Inscription on the plaque read:

IN RECOGNITION of the exemplary service to the community during and after the catastrophic storm of Oct. 14, 1966, and in commemoration of continuous consecration to the cause of better hospital care under severe adversity; and in appreciation of outstanding leadership by the administrator, teamwork by the staff, nursing staff, Auxiliary and all personnel of the Belmond Community Hospital; and to the community of Belmond itself, who worked as a team.

Presented to Chairman of the Board R. W. Courson, Chief of the Medical Staff G. J. Hruska, M. D., Administrator Marc Ihm, at Belmond Iowa, from the Iowa Hospital Association, Inc., this 17th Day of February, 1967.

Signed:
Cletus J. Turnbach
President
Iowa Hospital Assn.

Present to witness the presentation was Lloyd Coe of Des Moines, executive director of the Iowa Hospital association.

Mr. Ihm says that the 10x15-inch plaque, when fittingly mounted, will be placed in a position of prominence at the hospital as a permanent memento of the tornado

Nobody stooped to commit this theft — no, sir!

Culprits unknown on Thursday night of last week made off with 865 feet of highly expensive copper cable from the site of the new water tower being erected on the Central Soya grounds south of town.

James Leonard, foreman on the job for Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company, reports that the thieves apparently wanted the copper badly. Some 350 feet of it was strung from the ground up to the tank 115 feet above to operate a welding torch — and had to be severed at that height with a hack saw.

An acetylene cutting torch and some other supplies were also removed from a storage shed adjacent to the tower. A key was removed from inside the shed by reaching through a six-inch-square aperture and the padlock unlocked to gain entry to the shed.

The theft was reported to the Wright county sheriff's office, which is investigating the crime.

TWO PLEDGED BY SORORITY

Two Belmond High school alumnae were pledged Sunday before last by Epsilon Mu chapter of Alpha Delta Phi, national sorority. They were Diana Andrews of Rowan and Mary Bamford, senior and junior respectively at State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls. Alpha Delta Phi boasts of being the first secret society in the world for college women and the mother of the entire sorority system.

St. Louis tornado check to go soon; fund now $850

Up to Tuesday noon of this week, contributions to the local fund for victims of the St. Louis tornado disaster had slowly climbed to the level of $850 Considering that it's been a month since the Missouri twister dealt disaster to 1,975 families, a check should be going in the mail by the first of next week to accurately demonstrate Belmond sympathy for the storm victims.

An initial check of no less than $1,000 would be very much to the point; so persons intending to make donations, who have delayed in doing so, are urged to get them in to the Independent office or the First State bank by the end of this week.

As incidential information pertinent to the St. Louis county disaster fund being raised here, the First State bank reports that contributions to the Belmond Disaster Fund were still trickling in as lately as Feb. 7. Up to that time, the total had reached $110,677.42. More than an equal amount was contributed privately to various churches and organizations.

Since last week, anonymous contributions in the amount of $25, $10 and four of $5 each have been turned in, plus the following: $10 — Senior High Pilgrim Fellowship of the Congregational church, Mrs. A. C. Hanson, Rev. R. A. Ormsby.

$5 — O'Larry Dorr, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Schmale, Mr. and Mrs Glen Losen, Mrs. C. O. Fitts, S. N. Hinman, Mrs. Lydia Hanson, Mrs. A. P. Thompsen, Mrs Hannah Forristal, Gary Garvin, Belmond Greenhouse, Rev. and Mrs. Leo Andersen, Mr. and Mrs. Jens Johnson; and $3 — Guy Wiggins.

BLACKS MOVING NEXT WEEK; TO MAKE HOME IN MARION

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Black, former proprietors of the A & W Drive-in, are moving next Wednesday to Marion, where they have acquired a home. Frank is going to work for Collins Radio in Cedar Rapids.

Their drive-in location they have re-sold to the previous owner, Curtis Jante of Garner. The establishment, itself, was totally destroyed by the tornado.

The Blacks had tentatively decided to rebuild, but with the prospect of the 1967 season being "lost" due to widening of Highway 69 through Belmond they decided to dispose of the property.

City asked for park as "gift"—

Council signs contract for arcade planning

Several matters of major importance were given consideration at a special meeting of the city council held Monday evening.

One involved the signing of a contract with Gjelten and Schellberg, Forest City architectural firm, to proceed with final plans and specification — and preparation of plat and schedule for assessments — on the improvement of Main street.

On recommendation of the New Belmond Action committee, the project will include arcades on both sides of Main street along two and three-quarters blocks and construction of a decorative canopy at the First State bank intersection.

Arcade construction would begin with the Helland and Long Implement and the We 3 Market locations just east of Highway 69 and extend to Third avenue. Willis Schellberg had earlier told the council that his best preliminary estimate of the cost of arcading would be in the neighborhood of $45,300 per full block — or about $787 for a property having a 24-foot front.

This expense will be assessed against the propertyowners involved. Cost of the canopy, with an estimated cost of $26,500 including related expense for curb and sewer relocations, will be borne by the city.

The council also took preliminary action on a request made of it at an earlier meeting relative to construction of a retirement home on the land presently devoted to city park use.

Dr. S. P. Leinbach and Marc Ihm had appeared in behalf of the group promoting the retirement home project and asked the city fathers to consider giving the park land — at no reimbursement — for this purpose. On Monday of last week, this proposal had been tabled.

This week, the council instructed City Attorney Roy Henderson to look into the procedure necessary to conduct a referendum on the matter. This would give the people of Belmond an opportunity to express their opinions on the advisability of giving away the park land as a site for a retirement home.

It is understood by the council that the outcome of such a referendum would not be binding on the council members, but it would give them a clear understanding of the public's sentiments on the matter.

Approval of completion of the sewage plant improvement project that was started prior to the tornado was reported by the Mason City engineering firm of Wallace, Holland, Kastler and Schmidt. The council thereupon formally accepted the project as completed. Spencer Construction company of Spencer was the contractor.

This project entailed installation of a digester cover, heater and comminutor (grinder) at the sewage plant at a cost of $38,993, to improve efficiency of the plant. Fortunately, the plant was untouched by the tornado; so no damage was done to work in progress, although the project was delayed.

As another matter of business Monday, the council entered a contract with Soil Solidifiers, Inc., of Minneapolis to make a television inspection of the sanitary sewer lines under Highway 69 and the 100 block on Main street, just east of the highway. This will cost 26½ cents per foot for about 2,400 feet of inspection.

The same firm made a TV inspection under downtown Main street several years ago.

February 11, 1967

Dear Mr. Editor,

I deeply regretted seeing your editorial in your February 9, 1967 issue presenting your negative attitude toward a rise in teachers' salaries. In my estimation teachers today are tremendously underpaid.

It is a well known fact that the cost of living is continuing to rise yearly. Therefore, teachers' salaries should be raised at least enough yearly to compensate for the cost of living rise. But even this minimal increase is not enough.

Teachers hold one of the most — if not the most — crucial place in our American society. They have the huge responsibility of preparing the next generation of United States citizens. If the United States and democracy are going to be perpetuated into the future, our educational system is going to have to have extremely competent teachers.

Our future generations are directly dependent on our teachers' capabilities. If we are going to continue to attract good teachers to our schools, salaries are going to have to rise markedly.

Anyone thinking differently should definitely re-evaluate his thinking. Not only your own life but the life of the entire United States is dependent on the teaching of our children today. We need to pay our teachers more!

The problem is not whether or not we should pay our teachers more, but how we are going to be able to pay them more.

Sincerely,
Sterling J. Laaveg

February 11, 1967

To the editor:

When the decision was made to not allow the presentation of the Iowa Master Corn and Soybean Grower awards at the Farm Clinic, it became apparent that the local Chamber of Commerce is not interested in the improvement of local agriculture.

With the disinterest on the part of Chamber members. I question whether it is worth the Jaycee committee's time to sponsor such a project again. This is ironical since the Jaycees have little to gain and the Chamber members have everything to gain.

The purpose of this contest is to improve crop yields through better crop production practices. It is not hard to see what this can do for a community.

By drawing a 10-mile radius circle around Belmond, you would find that it contains approximately 200,000 acres of land. In most agricultural areas nearly half of this, or 100,000 acres, is good, tillable land suited for crop production. In our area more than half is tillable.

If a good crop production program does no more than increase gross income per acre by $10, that would amount to one million dollars extra income for the area. And university experts say this is a conservative estimate of what a good crop production program can do.

If the business atmosphere of this community is good, this one milion dollars will be spent locally. Economists say that money will change hands about six times before leaving a community that has complete banking, shopping and service facilities.

This means that one million dollars in increased gross agricultural income could produce a six million dollar increase in the total business done in this community.

If the purpose of the Farm Clinic was to promote local industry, as I understood from one of the committee members, then you left out Belmond's biggest industry. It was unfortunate for this community that one of the local industries didn't have the foresight to include this fine project in the Farm Clinic, thus promoting local agriculture.

Various contests form important FFA activities

Contest work is one of the important avenues for developing leadership ability in chapter members that the Future Farmers follow. Each year members of the Belmond FFA chapter compete against members from other chapters in this area for an opportunity to go to the state contest.

The boys may enter extemporaneous speaking, public speaking, creed speaking, program of activities, and parliamentary procedure team contests.

The eight fellows pictured above have been competing for positions on the six-man parlimentary procedure team from Belmond which will compete in sub-district contest at Webster City on March 2.

Parliamentary procedure is concerned with the practices used in business meetings. Through its use, the chapter members become more proficient speakers and chapter meetings become more effective and productive.

Members will use these abilities in other group meetings after they graduate and enter their occupations

Eighth-graders undefeated—

Jr. high cagers finish season 11-1

After a long and successful career as BHS varsity basketball coach, Jack Steinberg by his own choice was in charge of the junior high basketball program during the present school year. The Colts' season drew to a close a week ago Friday with a pair of victories here against Garner that gave the 7th-graders a 5-1 record and the 8th-graders an impressive 6-0 mark for the campaign.

A 28-25 overtime squeaker was won by the 7th grade team in their finale. After regular time had wound up with a 25-all score, Marc Gabrielson stole the ball in overtime and meshed the winning basket. David Barkema clinched it with a freethrow.

It was another romp for the all-victorious 8th-graders. They led 40-16 with five minutes to play. Against the Colt reserves, Garner shortened the final count to 45-31. Fred Erdman, as usual, was the scoring leader with 15 points.

Coach Steinberg describes the 8th grade crew as "one of our better junior high teams." Only against Hampton did they experience any difficulty at all in winning as they made the following record (local score first): 39, Britt 19; 47, Garner 25; 54, Clarion 23; 46, Brit 29; 36, Hampton 27; 45, Garner 31.

Comments Steinberg, "While this team had good size and speed, I felt one of its main assets was defense — and I have always been a believer in defense. While the final scores didn't show it, the team built up such spreads as 35-3, 40-12 and 44-12 before the reserves took over.

"Freethrow shooting by the regulars was outstanding, also. We stressed this department as this shot will never charge throughout the boys' careers."

Considering that junior high quarters are only six minutes long and that he was regularly benched after commanding leads had been established, Fred Erdman amassed the remarkable total of 104 points although not one of the taller boys.

Ron Fuller was next with 42 points, followed by: Dave Snyder 37, Sam McLaughlin 34, Norman Olson 18, David Boeman and Tim Greenwood each nine, David Hickman five, Paul Schaefer four, Doug Markham and Jim Mason each two and Tom Burk one. As a squad, the boys converted on 31 out of 55 freethrows for better than 56 per cent.

Of the 7th-graders, Steinberg says, "This team showed continual progress, which was our main concern. Top scorers exhibited excellent freethrowing for boys of 12 and 13. Emphasis was on participation and fundamentals rather than winning and running up a score."

Their game results were: 16, Britt 24; 17, Garner 15; 32 Clarion 22; 24, Britt 22; 26, Hampton 19; 28, Garner 25.

Nick Classick lead in scoring with 46 points, followed by: Ken Robbins 36, David Barkema 22, Ben Fuller 21, Marc Gabrielson 15 and Steve Walrod three.

Broncos oppose Hampton in district play Monday

Belmond High gym will be site of a four-team district tournament that will open next Monday night when the Broncos take on Hampton. On Tuesday evening, Iowa Fall and Clarion will tangle. Game time is 7:30 o'clock.

This pretty much makes it a proposition of Belmond vs. the North Central conference, as all of the other three meet contenders are from that loop.

In their first game, the Broncos will be tackling the toughest of the bunch, for Hampton finished third in the NCC with an 8-6 mark. Belmond could need to take full use of its home court advantage to handle the Bulldogs.

Clarion will be favored over Iowa Falls, which won only two of its loop encounters while the Cowboys finished fifth in the league. Clarion was without its high scorer, Mike Kalkbrenner, for a couple of weeks due to a severe ankle sprain.

With Mike now back in action, even though not in top condition, the Cowboys will rate as favorites over the Cadets. The Broncos will have to be sharp on rebounding and do a better than average job on defense to handle the Bulldogs, but at times during the season played the calibre of ball that could get the deed done.

The district finals will be played next Thursday at 7:30 o'clock. The winner here will oppose the Mason City district champion. Contending in the Mason City tournament will be the host Mohawks, Mason City Newman, Clear Lake and Osage. A rousing battle between Clear Lake and Mason City is in prospect in the Thursday finals there.

Other districts that will be sending winners to the same sub-state tourney as Belmond and Mason City are Waverly and Decorah. The Belmond-MC champs will play at Mason City on Saturday, March 4; and the Waverly-Decorah winners the same night at the Wartburg college gym in Waverly.

In the Waverly district field are Waverly-Shell Rock, Cedar Falls, New Hampton and Charles City, with Waverly-Shell Rock favored to survive. At Decorah the field will include Crestwood of Cresco, Waukon, West Union and Decorah. None of these teams has been having an especially good year.

At Mason City on March 8, the sub tate finals will be played to determine who goes on to the Class AA state tournament at Des Moines on March 15-18. On the basis of performances during the season, either Clear Lake or Mason City most likely will run up against Waverly-Shell Rock if "form" is followed, with Waverly the most probable state contender from the four-district area.

Cagers win finale, 78-63—

Big third quarter defeats Osage

It took the Belmond Broncos a full half to work up a head of steam at Osage last Friday night, but a big third quarter was sufficient to send the cagers home with the long end of a 78-63 score.

They burst lose from a 32-34 deficit at the half to rack up 30 points in the third stanza, with Dave Dirks rather surprisingly providing the spark. In the other three quarters, Coach Ron Jones' Imps held a 53-48 edge; but they managed only 10 points during the Bronco rampage.

It was a listless herd of Broncos that opposed the Green Devils in the first half. Gary Meyers potted 12 points on a half dozen baskets to keep his team from being left in the dust. The opening five minutes of the third quarter saw Belmond pull into a 46-41 lead.

In the final three minutes of the period, they simply took the Imps apart as they rambled to another 16 points while holding Osage to three. Belmond's advantage was expanded to 25 points, 75-50, with the final quarter only half gone and the Broncos coasted the rest of the way.

High scorer of the night was eagle-eyed Murray Kloberdanz, who laced in 28 points for the losers, 14 in each half. His total would have been higher but for making good on only four of 11 freethrow chances. Dave Cockram, junior center, helped Murray with 15 points.

Meyer chalked up 21 points for the victors, Terry Nelson 15, Dirks 14, Doug Thompsen 12, Tim Roberts eight, Bob Rise, Paul Bamford and Bob Vander Schaaf two each, Greg Fuller and Joel Gabrielson one apiece.

In the opening game, Osage achieved its first NIC cage champion of any description when the Junior Imps cinched exclusive claim to froshmore laurels for the season with a 37-30 win. They had a 12-2 loop mark, one of their losses being to the Junior Broncs here.

After a dismal first quarter that saw Belmond trailing 13-6, Coach Chuck Salker's boys put on a press that rattled the young Imps and it paid off with a 19-17 halftime lead. Osage nudged ahead 29-27 in the third period; then the Junior Broncs went into a deep freeze and went scoreless the last five minutes of the game.

Osage's delight at gaining some limelight on the hardcourt was almost worth the loss; but Coach Stalker was distinctly unhappy over the raft of errors that proved fatal in the final quarter. Rick Hawley made eight of nine freethrow tries in leading Belmond scoring with 14 points.

SUPERVISED FARMING programs play an important role in FFA work. Productive projects in this area follow numerous lines. They may range from caring for 10 acres of corn to raising mink, which is the project of Daryl Steenhard (left). Through supervised farming projects, FFA members gain valuable knowledge in management, farming practices and decision-making, which will help them in future employment.

Les Steenblock going on to state mat meet

All three Belmond High wrestlers who competed last Thursday and Friday in the district tournament at Urbandale's Ice Arena wound up as place winners, but only Heavyweight Les Steenblock earned the right to advance to the state meet this Friday and Saturday at McElroy Stadium, Waterloo. Les went through his division undefented.

Both Robb Dorr, who finished 4th as a 112-pounder, and Dave Riedel, third at 138 pounds, got into the wrestle-backs after losing to the champion in their respective classes.

Steenblock had relatively easy going in his first two matches. He got a first period take-down against Bob Woodson of Greenfield, then an escape and another take-down in the third for a 5-1 win as Woodson got his lone point on a last period escape.

He blanked Steve Long of North Polk 5-0 in his second match, his points coming in exactly the same manner as in the first match. Against Dennis Jordan of Winterset in the finals, the regulation time ended with a 0-0 score. Les then held Jordan in the first overtime minute and got an escape in the second for a 1-0 victory. Jordan lost in the wrestle-off with Long, 5-2.

Riedel lost his first match to the ultimate 138-lb. champion, Tom Thomas of Johnston, 4-1. Coming back, he trounced Jim Hensley of Massena 6-2 but hurt a leg in a lengthy stalemate. He trailed Randy Riedinger of Algona 4-0 in the consolation finals, came back to even the score with an escape, takedown and a penalty point, but lost 5-4 on riding time.

Dorr won his opening match from R. Audlehelm of Osceola 4-2. He went ahead of Rodney Jordan, the class champ, 2-0 in the second round but then was reversed early in the third period for a 2-2 tie and Jordan won 3-2 on riding time. In the match for 3rd and 4th with Brian Cooper of Ankeny, Robb lost points on a reversal and near-fall in the second period and could only gain a reversal in the third to lose 5-2.

Coach Don Jones was pleased with the showings of all three boys but was disappointed that Riedel and Dorr failed to make it to the state.

Grapplers from the Clarion sectional won 11 of the 24 state meet positions from the Urbandale district as Algona advanced six and won the meet with 61 points. Clarion, like Belmond, got only one boy through — John Nelson, 95-lb. winner.

Greenfield placed second with 39, followed by Alden with 32, Clarion 24, Corning 23 West Marshall of State Center 20, Hampton 18 and Belmond 17. Fourteen other teams figured in the scoring.

Alden advanced three men despite the fact that Tim Ryan, a prospective state champ at 145, was unabl to wrestle due to the death of his father on Thursday.

Tim Dillon of Hampton, son of former Belmondite Daryl Dillon, was the 120-lb. title winner.

FFA Week goal: to help public appreciate aims

By David Moe

During the week of Feb. 18-25, the members of the Belmond FFA chapter will be engaged in an effort to inform the general public of the importance of the Future Farmers, through observance of National FFA Week.

The FFA Week theme for this year is, "Agriculture — Strength of America." Membership of the FFA is made up of students of vocational agriculture in the high schools.

The chapter activities are designed to help develop rural leadership, good citizenship, and to stimulate the students to higher achievements in their studies and work toward successful establishment in farming or other occupations.

Seminar planned on bills aimed at "tax relief"

Rep. William Reichert of Des Moines will speak on property tax relief legislation that is being considered by the 62nd General Assembly at a seminar planned for Thursday of next week at Clarion by the Wright County Taxpayers association.

The meeting will be held at the community room of the First National bank, starting at 7:30 p. m. President Roy Carwell says the general public is especially invited to attend the seminar.

Phil Jacobson of Des Moines, secretary of the Iowa Hardware Dealers association, is also to speak. He will tell of efforts to exempt inventories from property tax assessment and other legislation of particular interest to the businessman.

Hugh Clarke of Belmond, state senator from the 34th District, and Ray V. Bailey of Clarion, Wright county representative, have also promised to be present and give their viewpoints on tax matters the legislature has under consideration.

Tornado in October "played hob" with Future Farmer corn project

In the picture above, Eugene Pals and Wayne Hinman are looking over a receipt for sale of the Belmond FFA chapter's corn, which was contracted at $1.32 per bushel prior to harvesting. This was the way the FFA members, this year, answered the question, "How should we market our corn?"

The chapter had rented 15 acres in two plots for their annual corn project, one lying south of town and one to the north. As luck had it, both plots lay in the path of the October tornado, which was "bad news".

Whereas yield-estimate checks had indicated that from 95 to 105 bushels per acre could be expected, the amount pickable came to only an average of 54 bushels.

Chemicals and fertilizer for the plots had been donated by Armour Agricultural Chemical company, and things "looked rosy" before the big blow.

Each year the crops and soil science class manages an FFA demonstration plot. It provides an opportunity to experiment with new practices.

In addition, it gives the FFA members experience in making decisions on such matters as when to plant, what and how much to apply in the way of chemicals and fertilizer, when to market, and others.

Attended H. Ryan funeral at Alden

Mr. and Mrs. William Walrod and family attended funeral services at Popejoy Methodist church last Sunday for Mrs. Walrod's brother, Harold Ryan, 48, who died suddenly at his farm home on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Ryan is survived by his wife; three sons — Jim, who farms near Popejoy; Mike, a senior at State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls; and Tim, senior at Alden High school; also one grandson.

Mr. Ryan's youngest son was a qualifier for the district wrestling tournament at Urbandale and among the favorites for the state championship at his weight of 145 pounds. He had to forego competing in the tournament due to his father's death.

Louis Van Lent and Jo of Dougherty were dinner guests Saturday in the Bernard Murphy home.

Women's pin tournament scores far under 1966

All performances in the annual women's bowling tournament that concluded last weekend at Bowl-Mor Lanes were far below the winning efforts of a year ago as the ladies generally experienced difficulty in getting the pins to topple.

Sharon Modderman of Alexander took the singles with a 517-105—622, compared to Juen Anderson's winning 665 of last season. Alice Busick and Mary Gordon claimed the doubles crown on a 1,133 (a 1,169 won for Irene Stadtlander and Jane Jurgenson of Meservey in '66).

Mary Gordon's scratch all-events total of 1,498 compared to 1,575 that won for Betty Suntken, Meservey, last year. And Mrs. Jurgenson's all-events handicap total of 1,716 was 24 pins shy of the best by Donna Robertson a year ago.

The same was happening in the team event. Jobco won this year with a 2,035-300—2,345, whereas Raecker's Chevrolet last year topped the event with a robust 2,480.

Scratch scores in the winning team effort were: Lillian Nelson 381, Ora Janssen 439, Lora Stoffer 429, Alice Iehl 427 and Lydia Baker 369. Other teams in the money were: Greenhouse 2,335, We Three 2,332, Lyons Cleaners 2,323, Miller Insurance 2,310, Bowl-Mor 2,289, Courson Agency 2,267, Howell's Music 2,260 and Twilighters 2,247.

Following Sharon Modderman in the singles were: Lil Campbell 602, Jane Jurgenson 592, Vivian Miller 573, Delores McDermott 571, Thelma Cairns 571, Eleanor Robertson 568, Naomi Downs 563, Janyce Kinseth 563, Doris Greenwood 559, Irene Stadtlander 558, Rose Clemons 556.

In the doubles money after the winning pair were: Dixie Olk-Barbara Hopkey 1,109, Alice Bohman-Sharon Modderman 1,101, Ethel Avery-Lois Hafermann 1,099, Elaine Sharp-Ethel Brunes 1,081, Lucille Diddy-Blanche Greer 1,068, Mavis Floy-Sharon Schmale 1,056, Maxine Morris-Audre Nissen 1,056, Donna Ainger-Doris Greenwood 1,053, Donna Cockrum-Lucy Wessels 1,053.

After the leader in the handicap all-events were: Mary Gordon 1,696, Sharon Modderman 1,664, Shirley Lobdell 1,039, Lil Campbell 1,637, Alice Bohman 1,631, Vivian Miller 1,623, Betty Suntken 1,613, Dixie Olk 1,611.

Bailey sponsor of bill that would modify one-man, one-vote principle

Ray Bailey, Wright county state representative, last week endeared himself in no great degree with certain of his fellow Democrats in the House of Representatives with one piece of lgislative activity.

He presented and handled on the floor as a special order of business a resolution asking Congress to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of amending the "one-man, one-vote" restriction on apportioning both legislative houses of state legislatures.

This move has not found particular favor with the Democrats, but the resolution was passed by the Republican-dominated House, 70 to 28. Mr. Bailey was its chief sponsor. It still requires Senate passage.

Mr. Bailey explains that 34 states must pass corresponding legislation to require Congressional action — which, preferably, would take the form of a constitutional amendment to be considered by the states, rather than an actual constitutional convention.

If such an amendment were passed and confirmed by the states, Mr. Bailey adds, a state's voters would have to approve any suggested departure from the "one-man, one-vote" principle of apportioning before it could be put into affect.

Twenty-eight states have already passed a resolution of the type Mr. Bailey is sponsoring, prompted by the U. S. Supreme Court decisions that limited all apportionment to the basis of one-man, one-vote.

Mr. Bailey also was chief sponsor last week of a bill filed that would place certain restrictions on establishment of diagonal highways in Iowa — and which, specifically, would outlaw the diagonal routing proposed for Interstate 35 in Wright and Franklin counties.

With Rep. Floyd Edgington of Franklin as chief co-sponsor, 74 representatives' names in all were included in sponsorship of the bill.

Mr. Bailey during last week's General Assembly activities voted against repeal of the requirement that county courthouses remain open on Saturday mornings. He regards it a matter that properly should be left to the administration of the respective boards of supervisors, guided by the degree of inconvenience that might be inflicted upon persons living elsewhere than the county seat.

The bill to repeal was passed in the House by a large margin, he adds, although in advance of the vote a good many representatives had expressed opinions similar to his own.

Rockow praised for part played in plane search

Mrs. Richard Rockow, the former Twyla Stadtlander, has learned that her husband recently received special commendation for the part he played in a search for survivors after a military aircraft crash last month in Germany.

A2/c Richard L. Rockow was assigned to drive a mobile kitchen to the scene of action so that members of the rescue party would have warm food to keep them going during the searching operation.

Maj. Stanley M. Johnson, USAF, who supervised the search wrote to the Airman's commanding officer that the field kitchen had to be pulled "over many hills and on some extremely bad roads."

He stated that Airman Rockow "performed his duties in an outstanding manner. The way in which he drove and his eagerness to help were a credit to himself and to your squadron. . . . I want to take this opportunity to commend him to you."

This praise was passed on to the young airman by the commander of the 36th Transportation Squadron, Capt. Kenneth G. Phillips, Jr., with the comment, "It gives me great pleasure to receive letters of this nature pertaining to members of my squadron. Congratulations for a job well done."

Kathy Finn gets Penn State grant

Kathy Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Finn, has been awarded agraduate assistantship in microbology by Pennsylvania State college, University Park, Pa.

Her assistantship at Penn State will pay her $2,640 annually and she will not be required to pay the customary $1,240 tuition for enrolling as a graduate student. It is renewable until she obtains a Master's degree, or even a Ph.D., so long as her graduate work is satisfactory.

Her asssignment at the Pennsylvania school will involve research work, but no teaching.

FFA emulates G. Washington, as a trail-blazer

It is more than a coincidence that National FFA Week and Washington's Birthday seem to occur at the time time every year. Our first president is something of a "patron saint" to the Future Farmers of America.

While he has gone down in history primarily as a military and political leader, the FFA esteems him equally as a master farmer who was many, many years ahead of his time.

At Mount Vernon, he introduced — or put into noteworthy application — many agricultural innovations that marked him as a wise steward of the land that was his lifetime responsibility.

Many practices that he followed, perhaps somewhat adapted to our times but basically the same as employed on Mount Vernon's acres, are still in use today.

We call attention to the stories and pictures in this issue that accompany the observance of National FFA Week locally. The Future Farmers are proud of the "example" they have chosen to follow and the principles he provided to help guide their organizations. We suspect that George, himself, would be pleased and proud at this unanticipated inheritance that he has left behind.

And who COULD have been "THE Man," but Doc?

Without the intervention of the tornado disaster of last October, Dr. Robert E. Misner figured to be a leading candidate for the Lions club's annual "Man of the Year" award for 1966. He had demonstrated progressive leadership, sound sense, a noteworthy tolerance for differences of opinion, and the civic awareness that makes an outstanding mayor.

After his unwavering response to the mountainous responsibilities that were heaped on him during the days and weeks following the tornado, certainly the Lions committee assigned to make the "Man of the Year" selection could hardly have made any other choice that the one it did.

Mayor Misner was Belmond's "image" before television cameras, on radio interviews and in the public print repeatedly during the period that the community was struggling to resurrect itself from the calamity. There never was a time that he was less than a satisfactory spokesman for us; and "satisfactory" is a weak and inadequate word. In fact, Bob time and time again came up with just the right phrase to epitomize Belmond's gratitude for help rendered, its unflagging determination to recover and make of itself an even better place to live than it was before.

There was a multitude of decision to be reached during those trying days. In his speech of acceptance upon receiving the award last week, Dr. Misner made no pretense that he found it within his personal capabilities to reach all of those decisions, himself.

"Very often," he said, "it was simply a matter of saying, 'That sounds like a good idea. Let's do it!' . . . " But the best administrators are those who can recognize a good plan of action when it is offered — and put it in operation. That sound judgment predominated as Belmond "dug out" and pointed itself toward recovery was very largely due to the presence of Mayor Misner on the scene.

He was "Mr. Belmond" in our time of trial; and how fortunate we were to have him filling the role!

Teachers, you have a lot of people on your side!

If we ever exercise the poor judgment to comment lightly on motherhood or the American flag — or write in a semi-facetious vein, again, regarding teachers' salaries — we hope we promptly develop a twinge behind our right eye that will serve as a warning to us to "watch it!".

The going over that we received upon writing a couple of weeks ago on the subject of teachers' salaries, with some degree of intended levity, sent us scurrying for cover. It also sent us over to the current file to review just what in the dickens we'd said.

We DID declare this: "We don't begrudge the competent teacher his or her pleasant position" . . . said position being that of enjoying a "seller's market" that has brought an annual raise for a 15-year period or more.

Also, we admitted that, "As a result, we've pledged to quit feeling sorry for teachers." This we said in the light of comment in this very column in times past that our teachers were woefully UNDERPAID — and our present feeling that they now are getting the situation pretty well in hand. Any sympathy WE might feel for the downtrodden pedagogues would be of small significance compared to the bargaining position they happily find themselves in for the time being and for quite some time into the foreseeable future.

The teaching profession is well on its way to a position of equity with other professions — and even industrial labor markets — and we are gratified that this is so.

In a letter much longer than our Public Forum column can accommodate, Don Bunnell competently called to our attention that starting salaries in a good many modern fields of employment still surpass by a considerable margin those received by teachers. He also noted that these salaries, more often than not, are accompanied by fringe benefits that may represent 15 to 20 per cent of the base pay.

He further observed that a teacher's employment is ordinarily for nine months, and that it isn't the easiest thing to obtain satisfactorily gainful employment for the other months of the year, if that is needful or desired.

It is also undebatable, as Don pointed out, that some such occupations as factory labor, truck driving and others frequently pay at a level the average teacher might find enviable — particularly in view of the drastically different educational backgrounds demanded.

While Don's letter and certain comments made to us in private made it apparent that we'd been guilty of muddled writing in the criticized editorial, the real convincer was a letter we received from Sterling Laaveg. We have a lot of admiration for this young man, scholar-athlete that he is; and we respect him as a spokesman for his generation.

His letter will be found in the Public Forum column in this issue. We would, incidentally, like to note that he "spoke his piece" in just over 200 words. This, we appreciated.

We LIKE to get "letters to the editor," whatever their topic — and whether critical or otherwise. It will be noted that in the heading this week we amend the recommended word limit to 250 or less. Preferably less. As an irregular feature, finding space for Public Forum can occasionally be a problem. Last week's influx of letters would have taken two columns or more, if all had been printed in that issue.

So, keep 'em brief as you can . . . but keep 'em coming.

JOHNSTON'S FAULT?—

A battle appears to be shaping up in the legislature over the finacing and operation of area vocational-technical schools and community colleges. One of the first to speak out on the subject was Sen. Eugene Hill, Newton Democrat. Hill opposed the confirmation of Paul Johnston as state superintendent of public instruction because the schools, now being organized, are in serious financial trouble.

Hill charged the schools have gone into deficit financing because they followed advice of Johnston's department. "I am fearful that we are pushing Johnston's reappointment through before the scandal in regard to area vocational schools breaks," Hill told his fellow senators.

THE NEWTON SENATOR FURther charged that the department of public instruction is acting without proper authority to move toward 16 intermediate area school districts. Nevertheless, the Senate voted to confirm Johnston by a vote of 46 to 11.

Meanwhile, in a speech at Ames Lt. Gov. Robert Fulton said he believes the vocational-technical bill passed by the 1965 legislature "played too much homage to local determination in one area." The bill allowed for the creation of not more than 20 districts; so far 16 have been created.

Fulton said he believes the legislature could have done a better job in setting up area vocational school districts than was done by various localities.

"I BELIEVE THE LEGISLATURE would have had a better perspective for establishing the districts needed and following naturally developing areas of economic activity," he said.

The lieutenant-governor also expressed the opinion that if the legisture had created the districts, there would have been "fewer and more effective districts."

A bill has been introduced in the House to eliminate the power of local districts to levy property tax for support of these schools. Some legislators feel that the state should take command of financing these schools.

A question also is being raised about the schools, especially community colleges, being under the jurisdiction of the state board of public instruction. A move is afoot to set up a separate commission to oversee the operation of these area vocational-technical schools and community colleges.

SLOGAN DISPUTE—

After a lively debate in the House, representatives have passed and sent to the governor a bill calling for the words "Beautiful Land" to be imprinted on Iowa motor vehicle license plates. It's estimated it will cost $10,000 to $15,000 to add these two words to the license plates beginning in 1969.

Initially Gov. Hughes indicated he would sign the measure. Now a question has been raised because the letters may too small, unless the design of license plates is changed.

The bill sailed through the Senate but ran into some strong opposition in the lower chamber.

Proponents of the bill concede that the words will too small to be readable in moving traffic, especially if coming from the opposite direction. They point out no one should be reading license plates anyway while on the move. However, they say that cars are standing still most of the time.

REMAP MUDDLE—

You almost need a computer to figure out what's happening in the legislature on reapportionment. Briefly, the House has passed a resolution to create 18 county commissions to subdistrict multi-legislator counties in time for the 1968 elections and a state commission to reduce the size of the legislature by 1970.

The measure now goes back to the Senate for action. Democratic leaders have offereded three alternatives to break the deadlock over apportioning the general assembly.

WANT BIGGER TRUCKS—

The legislature is being asked to approve longer trucks on Iowa highways. The Iowa Motor Truck association is asking approval of 65-foot "double-bottoms." A double-bottom is a tractor and two semi-trailers. Currently double-bottoms may operate in Iowa at a length of 60 feet.

However, 24 states, including the adjacent states of Illinois, South Dakota, Missouri and Nebraska, now allow 65-foot double-bottoms. The truck association says this has placed Iowa at a disadvantage in competing for business with states allowing the 65-foot length.

BILLS HALF APPROVED—

A number of bills have been approved by one house of the legislature. Here's a run-down on two of the more important bills: Medicaid, a program consolidating medical assistance programs for the needy, passed the House by a vote of 116 to 5 . . . The Senate, overriding an opinion from the attorney general, has approved a proposed constitutional amendment allowing the governor and lieutenant governor to run as a team for four year terms . . .

CIVIL SERVICE BLOCK—

Gov. Hughes says he is calling a meeting of legislative and political leaders and state department heads in an attempt to resolve the knotty problems of a civil service system for state employees. Hughes said he wants to find out exactly who is objecting to a state civil service and why they object to it.

Pete Wessels of Buffalo Center's North Iowa conference champions and Steve Pederson, versatile Lake Mills athlete, were the only unanimous choices for the NIC first team as sports writers of the loop met last Friday at Forest City to make their annual all-star basketball selections. Wessels was a repeater at guard, while Pederson moved up after capturing a second team forward berth last year.

Bill Engstler, Garner's flashy guard, and Robert "Dusty" Thompson of Forest City at forward each missed being unanimous choices by only one vote as each — like Pederson — moved up from the '65-66 second team.

Pat Orthel, Buffalo Center's willowy by agressive center, was a solid choice for the pivot spot. He, too, was an NIC second-teamer last season.

McDermott at utility spot

High scoring Tom McDermott of Britt, who looked good at forward even in playing with a losing team, drew the first team utility assignment.

Belmond had a pair of representatives on the second team, Terry Nelson at center and Gary Meyers at guard. Roger Bang of Lake Mills, who didn't have as good season as the year prior, slipped from the first team to the second and was paired at forward with Darrell Steen of Buffalo Center.

Danny Schmidt, adept Forest City guard, was the only junior besides Belmond's Nelson to gain an all-star assignment. He was a backcourt choice. Northwood's steady Tom Nelson, also a guard, had little competition for the second team utility berth.

As top scorer of the season, Bill Engstler joined the select group of NIC cagers who have averaged over 20 points in more than one season. More than that, he pulled into third place among all loop cagers of the past in career scoring.

He averaged 17.3 on 242 points as a sophomore, 20.9 on 293 as a junior and this year amassed 340 points for a 24.3 average to attain a three-year total of 875. Belmond's Neal Waddington heads the career scorers with 1,124 in four years, Britt's Bob Nielsen is next with 905 in three; and Engstler beat out Mickey Costigan of Buffalo Center, whose four-year total was 843 although the NIC was only a seven-team league his first two years.

Wessels, in averaging 22.1 points on a 309 total, had a 54 per cent average on field goal tries for the best mark in the league in this category. His freethrow accuracy was a less impressive 66 per cent, well behind league leader Engstler's 76 per cent on charity conversions.

Bison defense tough

Despite playing guard, Wessels captured 120 rebounds and was a vital cog in the tough Bison defense that held loop foes to a stingy 49.9 points per game.

Defense was the forte of teammate Orthel, too. Guarding some of the top scorers in the conference, he held his personal adversaries to eight points per game while tallying an average of 10.4 himself. And though only a moderate 6-3 in height he was second-high among the NIC rebounders with a total of 224 captures for a 16-per-game average, trailing only Terry Nelson of Belmond.

Steve Pederson paced the powerful Lake Mills offense that had the league's top average of 72.2 points.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

LAST WEEK THE SENATE considered an act which related to the entry upon private property for surveys. I was surprised, and I am sure I would be joined by many members of the board of supervisors, that this power was not already inherent in their duties.

Apparently an earlier legislature inadvertently took away the long established basis for board of supervisors authority, and also the authority of the Iowa Highway Commission, to make surveys for new roads.

I supported this measure because not to do so would have guaranteed that neither the county board of supervisors nor the highway commission could ever build a new road.

—o—

THE SENATE CONSIDERED A resolution urging the President of the State University of Iowa to institute whatever administrative or legal proceedings that would be necessary to terminate the contract of employment between the university and any faculty member who arbitrarily, intentionally and without good cause withholds the issuance of grades to any student as required by established rules and regulations of the university.

I was opposed to this resolution but because of parliamentary procedure was deprived an opportunity to vote against it. I want it understood that I was not opposed to the university taking this action; but it was very clear to me that the administrators of our universities wanted to handle this on their own and were, in fact, capable of doing so.

IT WOULD BE ILL-ADVISED for the legislature to assume administrative duties when their work is clearly legislative and their valuable time should be spared for such matters. I voted for a motion to table it and this motion prevailed until a motion to reconsider also prevailed and the matter was finally disposed of by referring it to the Education Committee, where it is presumed it will die.

I wanted to see it die on the floor of the Senate so that all the members would be discouraged in the future from introducing and debating administrative matters.

BY THE SUSPENSION OF rules, the Senate considered a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Iowa to lower the voting age in Iowa to 18. I have favored this amendment and I voted for it because I feel that today's 18-year-olds are more sophisticated and better educated than the 18-year-olds of my or any previous generation.

Opponents pointed out the immaturity which is a cause of youthful participation in demonstrations on college campuses. I feel that there is such a small part of our young people represented in irresponsible actions that this matter has been over-stated.

—o—

LENGTHY FLOOR DEBATE marked the passage of some controversial issues in the House and Senate in the past week. For example, the House dispensed with its normal lunch period to complete debate on passage of the so-called Dirksen amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

By a vote of 92-28, the House sent to the Senate a resolution urging Congress to enact a constitutional amendment which would permit factors other than population to be used in determining the apportionment of seats in state legislatures.

Most Republicans supported the proposal, which would require any change from the present population-only basis to be done only after a vote of the people. Backers pointed out that in addition to an area factor, people might someday want to apportion one house on the basis of the amount of taxes paid by the people in a county or some other geographical unit.

—o—

IN THE SENATE, THERE WAS intense debate before a bill removing the county option provision of the Iowa liquor law was approved. The vote in favor of ending the local option feature was 48-11, and th measure then went to the House.

Under the present liquor law, nine Iowa counties have voted against liquor-by-the-drink sales. If the bill is approved by the House and signed by the governor, these counties could serve liquor next July.

SUPPORTERS OF THE BILL said removal of the local option feature would make for better and simpler law enforcement. Opponents replied that removing the provision was taking away from the people the right to decide whether they wished to be "wet" or "dry".

Local licensing authorities, however, would still have the power to refuse to issue any licenses, and they would have the right to hold "straw" votes to see how a particular community felt about the issue.

—o—

BOTH HOUSES HAVE PASSED and sent to the governor a bill which increases the minimum paid sick leave allowed school teachers.

The bill, which passed the House 117-0, increases the minimum from the present 35 to 90 days. It was pointed out that many school boards now permit as much, and more, than 90 days sick leave.

—o—

THE SENATE ALSO SENT TWO bills to the House regarding name changes. One would change both the name and status of the State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls. The bill would make the school a university and call it Northern Iowa University. The other would change the State Department of Public Instruction to the State Board of Education.

● All-conference

His 17.2 points per game on a season's total of 241 was fifth-high and his field goal shooting average of 48 per cent was second only to Wessels'. In addition, he was the NIC's third best rebounder with 215 for a 15.6 average.

Lake Mills lost the conference crown by the margin of two two-point defeats at the hands of Buffalo Center — which was decidedly no fault of Pederson's.

Thompson steady performer

Dusty Thompson stood out on the well-balanced Forest City team that also suffered a near-miss for the title (or a share of it) with the Indians' 60-57 overtime loss to the Bison. He meshed 166 points for a 11.9 average, made good on 40 per cent of his field goal efforts, and snagged 170 rebounds.

Both second team guards, Forest City's Danny Schmidt and Belmond's Gary Meyers, were first-team nominees — but, understandably, couldn't beat out Wessels and Engstler.

Clever, ball-hawking Danny averaged 15.8 on 190 points in 12 games, an injury keeping him benched for two contests. He hit a fine 42 per cent of his field goal shots and 73 per cent of his freethrow chances. Though not counted on much in the rebound department, he nevertheless picked off 64.

Meyers averages 17.9

Gary Meyers was another adept ball-handler and ranked fourth in scoring with a highly respectable 17.9 average on 250 points. He hit 42 per cent of his tries from the floor and 68 per cent of his gift opportunities.

Bison Darrel Steen tied with Riley Lewis of Forest City for third-best field goal shooting average of 45 per cent. He notched 195 points for a 13.9 average and gave Orthel important support in the management of rebounds.

Roger Bang netted 209 points for a 14.9 average, a drop of two points from his junior year. He was right behind Engstler on freethrow accuracy with 75 per cent and averaged a useful eight rebounds per game.

Nelson tops rebounders

Terry Nelson, Belmond's rugged junior pivot, attracted the attention of opponents with his strenuous rebounding and consistent scoring. He had a high game of 46 points, just three under Wessels' new loop mark of 49, in the process of averaging 15.5 on 219 points. He broke the BHS single-game rebounding record with 33 against Britt and totalled 241 for a 17 average, best in the conference.

Northwood's Tom Nelson was the Vikings' playmaker and was a solid performer in every department. He had a good 11.4 scoring average on 160 points, hitting 42 per cent of his floor attempts. He regularly drew the opponents' top scorer on defense in recognition of his guarding ability.

Other players who drew attention as second team candidates were Lewis of Forest City, Lynn Gunderson and Brian Bestul of Northwood, Tom Westendorf of Lake Mills, Dewayne Torkelson of Buffalo Center and Greg Schoneman of Garner, the last two being juniors and Bestul a sophomore.

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Last week Delores "Dee-Dee" Wiemann bought herself a new dress at the Style Shop — which gave her a lift, as purchase of a new garment or hat is known to do for a woman. Then she scurried home and picked up some rubbish to deposit at the dump. Took the kids along, and her little boy helped with the unloading.

Yes, indeed, he did! When Dee-Dee got home, not only was the rubbish gone but the new dress was, too. . . . Another rush trip to the dump. . . . There was the rubbish, but the dress was gone!

In case the finder simply thought the quality of rubbish at the dump is improving, Dee-Dee would like to correct the impression. The dress was a size 12 Princess style in black with long sleeves and white lace down the front and on the sleevs. Understandably, she'd like very much to get it back.

Mrs. Harold Ainger has been searching — fruitlessly, so far — for the owner of a gold wedding band which her 12-year-old son Mike found several weeks ago near the junior high building. It quite probably had been sent flying by the tornado. It's embellished with a single, small diamond, and should be of value to the owner. A description of the ring will suffice to put it back into the owner's possession.

Even after Les Steenblock had been removed from the Class A state wrestling tournament at Waterloo last weekend, Coach Don Jones had a personal interest in the proceedings. The mother of Gary Nelson of Alden, contender for the 165-lb. title, is a first cousin of the Belmond mat coach — and since Don comes from near-by Iowa Falls, there has been close contact between the two families.

Although hampered to some degree during the season by a couple of leg injuries. Gary was regarded as one of the top prospects for the championship at his weight.

He defeated Duane Fischer of Williamsburg in a lively first-round scramble. 9 to 6; then had just about all he could handle in the second round before nipping Gary Davis of Jesup on riding time, 6-5. Nelson would likely have preferred to win otherwise, but the title came to him by default when his final foe — Jack Gross of Harlan — injured him with an illegal body slam and Gary couldn't continue.

A member of the Iowa Falls basketball squad that will be opposing the Belmond Broncos here tonight is the son of former Belmondites Mr. and Mrs. James Boehmler. His dad was on the Rowat-Murray Engineering staff here in the early 'fifties.

While Jim (Jr.) plays a reserve role as a cager, he was a leading member of the IFHS golf team last spring, which was one of the better ones in north Iowa.

Jim doesn't give all his time to sports, as was indicated by his selection recently to receive an Honor Scholarship upon enrollment at Iowa State university, Ames, next fall. Bohmler, Sr., directs Weldon Brothers' pre-stressed concrete beam plant.

Members of the Independent's front office force disclaim any responsibility for any eccentricities that many appear in this issue of the newspaper. We have but HAD it! . . . Ever try doing your work with new walls going up around you, a new ceiling going into place above your head, and a new floor being hammered under your feet?

That's been the situation in the office the past week as a complete renovation job has been in progress. If we hadn't had our tornado-time experience to look back on (proving you can live through ANYTHING if you have to), we'd never have been able to weather it.

Pretty soon now, praises be, we're going to be all put together again. We'll have a sign on the front, so people will no longer be walking past the office and wondering where it went (as they've been doing for weeks, now). On top of that, spring is in fairly early prospect; and we'll be thinking, once again, that life's worth living.

You might say there was a certain degree of poetic justice as to who won the painting that Karl Mattern, noted Iowa artist, contributed for the benefit of the Belmond Tornado Fund. You may recall that the Charles H. McNider Museum at Mason City "bought" the painting by giving a generous donation to the fund.

When the museum acquired the painting through Mr. Mattern's generosity, it announced it would be given to a 1967 member of the museum as determined by draw.

The name that came out of the hat was the Iowa Kemper Mutual Insurance company of Mason City. President Edward Jones of Iowa Kemper observed that the painting had, in a sense, been "paid for" by the company — since it paid more than $400,000 in tornado claims here. The painting will be hung in Kemper's office lobby.

FAILURE TO HAND OVER LICENSE COSTS $50 FINE

David Elwin Wolters, rural Belmond, recently appeared in district court at Clarion charged with failure to turn his driver's license in to the state on instruction to do so.

He had disregarded a letter from the High Patrol to deliver his license, car plates and registration to District 7 headquarters at Fort Dodge following suspension of his license.

Judge Ed J. Kelley fined Wolters $50 and costs and informed him it would cost him an additional $7.50 a day until the fine was paid. The fine was paid, forthwith.

The Belmond Independent

"Heart of This Four County Trade Area"

VOL. 48 NO. 23 OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1967 OFFICIAL CITY PAPER 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

An Editorial: Please . . . let Main street planners show their cards!

A petition was being circulated along Main street this week intended to nullify the many hours of work that have been devoted by many individuals to the end that Belmond shall emerge from its tornado disaster a better and more attractive town than ever.

It incorporated some very serious misstatements of fact — and because The Independent was inadvertantly responsible for one of the false conclusions, we wish to set the record straight.

At stake is the proposal to decorate with ornamental arcades two and three-quarters blocks of the Main street business district, along with construction of a distinctive intersection canopy at Main and Second avenue.

Major point of misunderstanding is a statement in the petition of "Disapproval and Protest" implying that the cost of arcading an "average" business lot of about 24 front-feet would run $1,875 for the propertyowner. This sum was arrived at by using a fallacious figure that appeared in The Independent to the affect that arcading cost for a block would total something like $45,300. Accompanying this figure, in each instance that it was published, was a statement that the best estimate of cost so far available was $787 per 24-foot front.

Of the two, the latter was the valid figure. When Architect Willis Schellberg was asked by The Independent for the cost-per-block FOR ARCADING, he provided a figure that included the cost not only of the arcades but for one intersection canopy, ALSO. This gave rise to the $45,300 figure.

We should have caught the discrepancy between $787 per average front and the too-large figure of $45,300 for a block of arcading — but we didn't. The individuals circulating the petition protesting the arcade proposal jumped to a wrong conclusion as to which was the approximately correct sum.

As it would have paid circulators of the petition to do, we phoned Architect Schellberg (of the Forest City firm of Gjelten and Schellberg) to find out the accurate facts. We were informed as follows:

With architect's fees added to the specified base cost of $787.44 for arcading a 24-foot front, the official estimated cost of an arcade on an "average" lot would be increased by $39.95 to $826.79. It is on the basis of such a cost that engineers have been instructed to draft plat and schedule for assessments necessary to finance the arcading project.

In the petition, it is stated that "$1,875 per lot, not $787 per lot, would seem" to be the cost. This is not the case by a margin of about $1,050 Actually, the estimated cost of the arcade for a block (both sides of the street) is, according to Mr. Schellberg, $18,898.96, plus $944.40 architect's fee, or $19,842.96. This is a decidedly far cry from the $45,300 that was inaccurately — and unfortunately — used in our press accounts of the Main street project.

Incidentally, and for the record, Mr. Schellberg said that the estimated cost of the ornamental canopy at Main and Second avenue — which will be built with municipal funds — will approximate $30,000, with architect's fees included.

States the petition being circulated to block the Main street improvement project: "We cry out against the obvious experimentation on this project; at the conflicting estimates of cost; and at the misleading publicity on the entire proposal."

We apologize for the part we unintentionally played in giving rise to "the conflicting estimates of cost" but wish to observe that "the straight of it all" was most easily obtainable from the proper source.

The petition also reads: "We deplore the narrowing of our Main street, and the elimination of 'prime' parking spaces. We have just completed the widening, resurfacing and drainage of Main street. Why nullify this improvement, narrow our Main street, create new traffic problems and new drainage problems?"

Actually, the once considered possibility of widening the sidewalks over which the arcades would run — which would have necessitated some expensive modifications of drainage arrangements — was discarded during early studies of the whole project. The only possible change in curb and gutter entailed under the present plans would involve just the intersection under the canopy and would not be of a major nature or involve great expense.

As to the loss of "prime" parking, the city has arranged for option of a considerable amount of property near to downtown Main street that will provide additional space for shoppers' cars. Not until such time as these parking lots would be available to the public is there any thought of changing from slant to parallel parking at the loss of some Main street parking space.

Sentiment appeared to be strong among Belmond business people, after the tornado, that the downtown business district should include in its recovery plans a "face-lifting" that would make it distinctive and more attractive than before — a "new look" that would be a permanent asset and an additional attraction to trade.

Prompted by this sentiment, the New Belmond Action committee, the city council, the city planning commission, the Belmond Industrial Development corporation, personnel of the Chamber of Commerce and other individuals have spent almost countless hours trying to convert this "dream" into a reality.

Now, materialization of those plans is relatively near at hand. All prescribed legal requirements will be met in the effort to implement the plans. When ALL THE FACTS CONCERNED are hammered down and NO GUESSWORK WILL BE NECESSARY, there will be a public hearing at which the project can be "cussed and discussed" within the framework of those FACTS.

When the facts and figures have been compiled — when each propertyowner can obtain an accurate idea of what HIS personal costs will be — THEN will be the time to "disapprove" and "protest," if there are those who wish to do so.

Until then, let us pay to the many persons who have devoted so much time and effort to this project for the intended improvement of our community the courtesy of hearing precisely WHAT their plans ARE. It might make a big difference in individual attitude when all the facts are fairly and accurately presented — even to quite a number who have signed the misleading petition.

Art exhibit to display work of adult students

An exhibition of work done by students in Lynn Thorpe's adult education night class in art, which concluded last week is presently on display in the city library. The paintings, sculpture and pottery may be viewed through Saturday, March 11. Mr. Thorpe asks the class members to pick up their displays at the library on March 13.

A wide variety of projects were undertaken by the art class members during the 10-week course, and Mr. Thorpe expresses himself well pleased with the very fine work that was done.

Auditorium here selected as site for pork meeting

Annual banquet meeting of the Wright County Pork Producers association will be held here at BHS student center and Luick Memorial Auditorium on Wednesday, March 15, at 6:30 p.m. Highlight of the program will be the appearance of the 1967 National Pork Queen, Deanna Young of Clarion.

Officers of the Pork Producers association are Vern Christensen of Eagle Grove, chairman; Charles Cramer of Clarion, vice chairman; Bob Cullinan, Belmond, secretary-treasurer; with Ralph Borel of Clarion and James Knight of Goldfield as directors.

Banquet plans for this year not only include a change in location, but wives are invited to attend the annual event.

Main speaker for the banquet is Dale Williams, assistant extension editor with WOI radio-TV at Iowa State university, Ames.

Sign-up deadline now March 17th

The Wright County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee announces that the sign-up period for the 1967 feed grain program has been extended until Friday, March 17.

The committee advises all farmers to enroll as soon as possible in the program, however, as no further extension is anticipated because of adverse weather or other conditions.

The committee reports that about 1,000 Wright county farms were enrolled in the feed grain program during the first four weeks of the sign-up, which began on Jan. 30.

Any producers having any questions about the 1967 program are urged to contact the Wright county ASCS office in Clarion before March 17.

Losers tally 18 straight—

Broncs lead by 17; then nip Hampton 71-69

Monday night the Belmond High Broncos found a way to win a basketball game that was really "somethin' different". From the time Bob Rise made the first basket of the evening until the fourth quarter got underway, the Blue-and-White gang completely dominated their much taller foes from Hampton and in the process built up a 17-point lead, 63-46.

Then the Broncos began to rip not too slowly at the seams and the visitors closed the gap to 63-60 before Coach Ted Besch called a time-out to try to get his forces regrouped. When play resumed, Coach Jack Sogard's Bulldogs watched Belmond miss a couple of freethrow opportunities and then took their first lead of the game — 64-63 — on fielders by J. R. Zimmer and Ron Missildine.

Three minutes of playing time remained at that juncture, and the Bronco outlook was about as dark as Lovers' Lane at midnight. Playing methodically for a good shot, Belmond wasted a minute before Gary Meyers finally wriggled his way free for a close-in attempt. He made it and Greg Fuller was fouled under the basket at the same time. Greg made both his freethrows tries to put the Broncos back in front, 67-64.

Little Missildine retaliated with a bucket and was fouled by Bob Rise. He meshed his gift attempt to even the count at 67-all, the first and only tie of the evening. Meyers got the Broncs ahead again on another fielder and, with 40 seconds left, Rise slipped through the defense for an easy lay-up after a missed Hampton freethrow and appearances brightened with the tally 71-67.

A half-minute showed on the clock when Doug Thompsen committed his fifth foul and Zimmer slipped both his charity shots through the mesh. Belmond hopes of stalling out the game went a-glimmering when Rise was caught in a cluster of Bulldogs and was called for charging, giving Hampton the ball out of bounds with 18 seconds left. In those seconds, the Broncos fought for dear life — and two held-ball situations killed most of the time. The Bulldogs were unable to get a really good shot before the buzzer ended matters with Belmond clinging to its 71-69 lead.

Hampton had four players of about the same altitude as Terry Nelson — or better — and at the game's outset it appeared unlikely the Broncos would be able to cope with the height disadvantage. To complicate matters, Nelson got three fouls in the first quarter, sat out the second, then got his 4th and fatal 5th late in the third stanza.

But when Meyers got the initial basket of the final period and Belmond went into a 63-46 lead it looked like a very adequate advantage with which to weather out the last eight minutes. Then came Hampton's charge, though producing the developments already reported.

Rise with 12 points and Roberts with 10 were instrumental in keeping Belmond in command during the first half. The Broncos were ahead 15-9 at the quarter and 33-23 at the half. Everybody in Blue-and-White had a hot hand during the third quarter and the Broncs hit 12 of 16 attempts from the floor. Hampton cashed 10 fielders, but it took the Bulldogs 26 shots to do so; and the period ended with Belmond resting on a comfortable 61-46 pad.

Meyers had only four points in the first half, but picked up 10 more in the third quarter and six highly valuable ones in the fourth to top Belmond scorers with 20. Roberts wound up with 18 and Rise 14. Completing the winners' scoring were Thompsen with eight, Nelson six and Fuller five.

Panel will talk about tax relief

What efforts are being made in the state legislature to achieve some degree of property tax relief will be discussed Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at a meeting being sponsored by the Wright County Taxpayers association.

This meeting was incorrectly reported last week as scheduled for this Thursday night. It will be held in the community room of the First National bank at Clarion.

Senator William Reichardt of Des Moines will report on a bill that has been proposed to lift the present property tax from inventories and a certain other classes of personal property.

Phil Jacobson of Des Moines, executive director of the Iowa Hardware association, will also be a speaker.

Senator Hugh Clarke of Belmond and Rep. Ray Bailey of Clarion have also promised to be on hand to give their views of proposed tax-relief legislation and their assessment of what is most likely to gain passage.

Roy Carwell, president of the Taxpayers association, believes businessmen, farmers and other payers of property taxes will find the seminar of interest and urges their attendance.

ON SIMPSON DEAN'S LIST

Two Belmond students were among 58 who earned mention on the Dean's List at Simpson college, Indianola, for achieving grade averages above 3.50 for the first semester. Eleven had 4.0 average. Another 47 had averages ranging from 3.50 to 3.95, including Jeff Kessler and Sue Bateson. Both are freshmen.

OFFICIAL MATTERS pertaining to the Belmond Community Hospital Auxiliary were being discussed by officers of that organization when photo above was taken. They are, left to right: Mrs. Donald Markham, secretary; Mrs. Harold Shobe, treasurer; Mrs. Warren Thompson, president; and Mrs. Pat Quigley, vice president. The latter two were elected at the auxiliary's quarterly meeting Wednesday of last week. Mrs. Markham and Mrs. Shobe were carry-over officers.

Dick Krapfl made honorary FFA

Dick Krapfl, manager here for the Spahn and Rose Lumber company, on Wednesday night of last week was made an honorary member of Friendly Service chapter of the Future Farmers of America. Presentation of his membership certificate was made by David Moe, Belmond High FFA president, as a highlight of the Future Farmers' annual Parents and Son Banquet.

Some 175 parents, friends and members of the FFA ate at the BHS student center and then witnessed the after-dinner program held at Luick Memorial Auditorium. The honorary degree is given each year as a feature of the event to a member of the community who has been of valuable assistance to the FFA chapter and its members.

Each year for some period of time, Mr. Krapfl has been donating power tools given as prizes to winners of the chapter's annual agricultural mechanics contest. He has also employed Al Klooster, a chapter member, in connection with the vocational agricultural employment experience program.

FFA Advisor Keith Carlson also notes that Mr. Krapfl has given assistance to many chapter members in selection of lumber for home improvement programs and for ag-mechancis laboratory projects.

Winners of the power tools awarded in this year's ag-mechanics contest were: 1st, Earl Kalfwarf; 2nd. Al Klooster; and 3rd, Kevin Hadley.

Achievement award winners named during the banquet program were: beef — David Moe; swine — Earl Kalkwarf; sheep — Doug Mennenga; corn — Vernon Christie; and soybeans — David Moe.

A record book contest is also conducted by the FFA, prizes having been awarded for the current year as follows:

Home farm records — 1st, Doug Mennenga; 2nd, Earl Kalkwarf; Chapter Farmer division — 1st, Kermit Bohning; 2nd, Kevin Hadley; 3rd, Bob Cullinan; Greenhand division — 1st, Stanley Boelman; 2nd, Dan Lonnevik; 3rd, Allan Halfpop.

Donations hit even-thousand mark; St. Louis tornado fund check sent

One thousand dollars — exactly — was ready for mailing Tuesday afternoon for the aid of St. Louis County tornado victims from understanding and sympathetic residents of Belmond.

It appeared the initial goal of $1,000 was not going to be met as writing of a check was delayed 24 hours while the not-quite-enough amount of $990 rested in the fund. Then, a bit before bank-closing time, into the Independent office walked Dr. A. M. Larson with a $10 donation — and the green light was on.

It is hoped that mailing of the thousand dollars will not wind up contributions to the St. Louis County Tornado Fund. Donations will still be received by The Independent or the First State bank.

Contributors during the last week who helped put the fund "up to" it not "over" the top were:

$25 — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, Kinseth Plumbing and Heating; $10 — Mr. and Mrs. Larry Flanagan, Ed Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Sorenson, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Hauge, Dr. A. M. Larson.

$5 — Titcia Boelman, Mr. and Mrs. Bill James, Catholic Daughters of America, Mr. and Mrs. Harm Braner, Mr. and Mrs. James Houser, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kessler, Wilmer Hauge (Goodell), Albert Olson and Anonymous.

$3 — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Negrete, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Foss; $2 — Connie Kessler.

DISPLACED VERTEBRAE • IMPINGED NERVES CAUSE NERVOUS, JITTERY FEELING

The central nervous system consists of the brain, the spinal cord and 31 pair of spinal nerves extending to all parts of the body.

The brain generates life-giving energy and sends it down the spinal cord, out the spinal nerves to all cells of the body. Nerves either convey sensory function such as cold, pain, smell and taste, or impulses that give motion to the body.

Any interruption to the transmission of brain energy will slacken the flow and some organ or tissue will be checked in its normal function.

The spine is strong enough to support many hundreds of pounds. At the same time, it is elastic and flexible to enable movement in any direction. There are 24 movable segments or vertebrae in the spine. Between each segment is a soft cushion called a disc, which serves as a ball bearing and shock absorber.

Inside the spine is a tube which contains the spinal cord, the lifeline of the nervous system. Between each vertebra are a pair of nerve trunks which carry millions of individual nerve fibers to various parts of the body. If one or more of these spinal fibers become impinged, vital organs can become affected resulting in disease and nervous tension.

Among NIC all-time scorers—

Engstler, McDermott into top 10

SPORTS

Twenty-one North Iowa conference cagers managed to score in double figures during the campaign lately concluded; but in the center of the limelight were three who brought up to 23 the number of NIC players who have cracked the 20-point barrier.

They were Bill Engstler of Garner, who slipped into 4th place in the all-time list of high scorers with a 24.3 average; Tom McDermott, Britt, who took over the No. 8 spot with 22.6; and Pete Wessels, Buffalo Center, who misses by one the all-time top 10 with 22.1.

Engstler made the elite group of stars who have averaged 20 or more points in two varsity seasons, having hit 20.9 as a junior. He also drew into third place among NIC cagers on a career basis, his 875 ranking behind the 1,124 of Belmond's Neal Waddington in four years (Bill played varsity only three) and Britt's Bob Nielsen, who amassed 905 in three campaigns.

Fourth on the career list is Mickey Costigan, Buffalo Center, with 843 in four years (two having only 12-game conference seasons) and fifth is Northwood's Phil Johnson with 774 in three years.

Stars of yesteryear who averaged 20 or more points in two seasons are Phil Johnson and Lake Mills' Al Holstad, two each; plus Waddington, who pulled the trick three times.

On a team basis, the only record set during the '66-67 season was Forest City's 105 points scored against Britt's 52 last December. Lake Mills' 72.2 scoring average was well behind the 77.8 record set by Garner in '63-64; and even Britt's 81.6 defensive average failed to take top "honors" in that department, last year's Eagle outfit having yielded an average of 83.9.

Pete Wessels' 54 per cent shooting record on field goals ranks among the best, but fell short of the 58 per cent of Larry Ackerman, Belmond, in '63-64 — the best of available record. And Bill Engstler's 76 per cent freethrow accuracy trailed the 78 of Lake Mills' Roger Bang and the same figure by Doug Black of Buffalo Center in '65-66.

Wessels set a new single-game scoring mark of 49 points against Garner. The previous record of 46 held by Nielsen was later matched by Terry Nelson of Belmond against Britt.

NIC players scoring 10 points or more this past season were: Engstler (G) 24.3, McDermott (Br.) 22.6, Wessels (BC) 22.1, Gary Meyers (Bel.) 17.9, Steve Pederson (LM) 17.2, Dan Schmidt (FC) 15.8, Terry Nelson (Bel.) 15.6, Roger Bang (LM) 14.9, Darrel Steen (BC) 14, Murray Kloberdanz (O) 13.5.

Dan Cockrum (O) 12.3, Greg Schoneman (G) 12.1, Dusty Thompson (FC) 12.0, Tim Roberts (Bel.) 11.7, Lynn Gunderson (N) 11.7, Tom Nelson (N) 11.4, Brian Bestul (N) 10.9, Tom Westenodrf (LM) 10.6, Pat Orthel (BC) 10.4, Riley Lewis (FC) 10.4, Tom Hartwig (O) 10.0.

Following are the NIC all-time high scorers who have averaged 20 or more points in a season:

Bob Nielsen (Br)	27.2	('60-61)
Bill Roe (G)	25.6	('59-60)

Tim Dillon state champ in 120-pound division

Les Steenblock quickly reached the end of the road at the Class A state wrestling tournament last Friday at Waterloo, losing his first round match to Duane Hammen of Rockwell 2-0.

It was not one of Les's better matches, in the opinion of Coach Don Jones. The big Bronco heavyweight seemed to be afflicted with "buck fever," appearing before the big crowd at McElroy Auditorium, and did not show suffaicient aggressiveness to handle his initial foe.

There was no scoring in the first two periods of the match; but with the third period well over half completed Hammen got a reversal on Les and that was enough for a 2-0 victory. Hammen lost his next match and was defeated in consolation to wind up in 4th place.

Despite this disappointment, there were numerous points of interest for Belmond mat fans as the tournament wore along. Top attraction was the progress of Tim Dillon of Hampton to the Class A 120-lb. championship. Son of former Belmondite Daryl Dillon and grandson of the "Barney" Dillons, Tim simply blasted all of his opposition en route to the title.

In the first round he pinned Bob Seymour of Comanche in 5:25. He followed with a 12-1 trouncing of Rex Johnson, Logan-Magnolia, and in the finals easily defeated Johnnie Wilson of Greenfield, 7-2.

It is noteworthy that in last December's Bronco Tournament here, Dillon bowed to Jim Dickson of Belmond while competing at 127 pounds, 3-2 on riding time in the finals.

Two other contenders in the Bronco meet wound up with state titles last weekend. Keith Abens, Humboldt sophomore, was Class AA winner at 145 pounds and Gary Nelson of Alden was the Class A 165-lb. champion.

Abens won by a fall in his opening match, got a 4-0 decision in the semi-finals and then edged Don Horton of New Hampton 4-2 in the finals.

Oddly enough, Abens had been able to finish no better than consolation winner at 145 in the tournament here — indicating that, like Dillon, he made great progress in the course of the season.

Third champion whom local fans had an opportunity to see in action at the local tournament was Gary Nelson of Alden. He won the Class A 165-lb division when his opponent in the finals, Jack Gross of Harlan, illegally slammed the Alden boy to the mat and he was unable to continue the match due to an injury. Nelson had been 165-lb. champ here.

Other wrestlers who were in the state field after competing in the Bronco tournament were: Bob Short, Humboldt, Class AA 154-lb. qualifier; "Butch" Laird, Humboldt, Class AA 103 lbs.; John Nelson, Clarion, Class A 95; Gene Vanderloop, Alden, Class A 103; Jerry Steenlage, Britt, Class A 127; Larry Olson, Britt, Class A 154.

PLEASANT PEPPY PALS

A "Good Morning Breakfast" was prepared and served by Lynne and Linda Thompson, Jolene Waltzing and Yvonne Peterson prior to a meeting of the Pleasant Peppy Pals 4-H club held last Saturday at the Elmer Waltzing home.

The following demonstrations were presented while the breakfast was being prepared: "How to Make Cocoa," Linda Thompson; "How to Make Scrambled Eggs," Jolene Waltzing; "How to Make Poached Eggs," Yvonne Peterson; "How to Fry Bacon," Lynne Thompson; "How to Make Cinnamon Rolls," Janice Waltzing; and "A Good Morning Breakfast," Jolene Waltzing.

Jolene Waltzing was elected Fun Nite Queen candidate. Janell Fuller and Janice Waltzing were chosen as voting delegates, with Yvonne Peterson as alternate. Jolene Waltzing, Sandra Bock, Janice Waltzing and Frances McLaughlin were selected to take parts in the skit.

Mrs. Waltzing and Mrs. Loren Kalkwarf helped the girls with their record books. Lynn Thompson led recreation.

Froshmores give Osage fans hope of better times

Osage Community High school is pointing with pride at the first basketball honors won by Green Devil cagers since Osage joined the North Iowa conference in 1958. The Imp froshmores did the trick by topping the underclassman division of the loop with a 12-2 mark, losing only to Northwood and Belmond during the campaign.

Coach Bob Matthias harbors hopes — as does Varsity Coach Ron Jones — that the Junior Imps may provide the material needed to jerk the varsity out of the doldrums they've been becalmed in for the past half dozen years.

Six of Matthias' Junior Imps were high scorer for the team at one time or another during the season, showing unusual scoring balance. Good prospective height is promised by Steve Stott, Kurt Cockrum, Phil Hoven and Tom McSweeney, while some of the smaller boys provide speed and marksmanship.

With Dan Cockrum, a junior and 12½-point per game scorer returning from this year's Imp varsity aggregation, Osage has hopes that the Imps may be capable of a top division finish in the varsity ranks next season.

PUBLIC FORUM

Letters to the Independent are welcomed. Please try to limit to 250 words or less.

Rowan, Iowa
Feb. 26, 1967

To the Editor:

Dear Sirs:

I think that it has been nearly two years since you wrote your editorial expressing your feelings about the issue of transportation of pupils in public schools. The emphasis, as I recall, dealt with the degree to which transporation was incidental to education.

I am not so sure that incidence is sufficient criterion. It might be if this issue involved only the first amendment (so-called Church-State). I remember reading a comment by the late Supreme Court justice, Felix Frankfurter, wherein he said, "If each case that came before us involved the possible infraction of only one principle or article of the constitution, then it can clearly be seen that we would not need a supreme court". Too many people have rushed to judgment about the school transportation issue.

IF transportation is incidential to education, as you have suggested, I agree that this would be an infraction of the first amendment of the U. S. Constitution, however, I suggest that the first day that tax revenue was used to transport the children of one group of American citizens and denied to the children of another group the same service, that this action constitutes an infraction of the fourteenth amendment. (Equal protection under the law.) Who is to say that the first amendment is more applicable or superior than the fourteenth?

As our society becomes more and more complex and if we are to continue to rely on the collective route for the resolution of our common problems, it seems to me that we will have to learn to forego some of our overly simplified concepts in favor of today's reality. There are those today who suggest that the only way to resolve this transportation problem is to turn or return this service to private carriers. When this method is compared to that which would continue to deny service to some, under the present arrangment, I believe that the return to private service is more honest but it may also be quite impractical.

The Supreme court has (Everson Case) left the final decision up to you and I, a kind of judicial toss-up. Will we render our decision out of Fear or out of Faith?

Sincerely yours,
John R. (Jack) Burt

Dr. John Strauss to new position

Dr. John Strauss, who was director of research for Ris-Van, Inc., before that local liquid fertilizer manufacturing company was purchased by Armour Agricultural Chemical company, has recently accepted a position with the Tuloma Gas Products company of Tulsa, Okla.

Although he lived at Clear Lake during his period of employment here, Dr. Strauss made many friends in Belmond during his Ris-Van career. Upon Armour's acquisition of the firm, he was transferred to Armour Chemical's headquarters at Atlanta, Ga.

With Tuloma, he is serving in the market development department at the Tulsa general office. He will provide guidance in the development of fertilizer and pesticide application methods and give technical assistance to Tuloma's regional agronomists.

A recognized authority in the field of liquid fertilizers, Dr. Strauss in 1964 was named "Man of the Year" by the National Fertilizer Solutions association.

Tuloma is a wholly owned subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of Indiana and manufactures nitrogen, anhydrous ammonia, crop protection chemicals and a variety of petroleum products.

Dog packs doing extreme damage among livestock

Killing of livestock by marauding dogs has become a steadily more serious problem throughout Wright county in the past several weeks, according to Sheriff Bob Blecker.

Reports of costly losses have been coming in from widely separated points, indicating that killer dogs are roaming in a number of vicinities.

Tuesday night of last week a pack of dogs got into a flock of some 200 sheep owned by Eddie Anfinson, who farms northwest of Holmes. Thirty sheep were left dead and another 16 were either fatally hurt or so badly crippled that they had to be destroyed.

Rex Fetrow reported to the sheriff's office that dogs have twice attacked spring pigs being fed on the Tomco farm north of town. There were 43 in the bunch before the dogs struck on Feb. 10 and again on the 16th. There are only 22 left.

One farmer in the southwest part of the county reported that when dogs recently got into his sheep flock, only one was killed but eight others were run to death.

So far, the sheriff's staff has been able to run down only one dog apparently involved in these raids. It was found covered with blood on the morning following an attack and was shot by Deputy Bob Shaw.

Coudn't answer in court; already in "hoosegow"

Two young men from Fort Dodge arrested for illegal possession of beer following a fight at the Win-Mill-Inn a week ago last Saturday were to have appeared last Saturday before Mayor R. E. Wilson at Clarion for hearing of their cases.

One, Michael Husske, 20, appeared on schedule. He pleaded guilty as charged and was fined $50 and costs. A second 20-year-old, David Lieshman, failed to appear.

There was a good reason. He'd been arrested in Fort Dodge less than 24 hours after his Clarion arrest — for illegal possession of beer. And he was serving a 30-day jail term. The Wright county warrant is awaiting his release from jail.

Two 17-year-olds, who'd been picked up with Husske and Lieshman and similarly charged, were turned over to Webster county juvenile court for disposition of their cases.

Kathy Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Finn, was one of only three students among nearly 400 receiving degrees last Saturday at Iowa State university's winter quarter commencement exercises who graduated in the ISU Honors Program.

This is a special program for outstanding students, which is carried through four arduous years of study by relatively few who start on the program as freshmen.

The commencement ceremony was held at 9:30 a. m. at the ISU Armory, President W. Robert Parks presenting the diplomas. A reception for the graduates, their families and friends was held afterward in the Sun Room of the Memorial Union.

Witnessing Kathy's graduation were her parents, her sisters Barbara Ann and Jeanne, the latter a student at State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls; Jeanne's fiance, Tom Ervin of Perry; and a sister of Mrs. Finn, Mrs. Paul Rust of Harlan.

Dan Boone dies; interment here

Word was received Tuesday by Belmond friends of the sudden death near midnight Monday of Dan Boone, former Belmond furniture dealer. Since departing from this community more than 10 years ago, Mr. Boone has been making his home at Gilman, Wis.

Although Mr. Boone had undergone surgery some time last year, he had reportedly been in apparent good health and his death was unexpected.

Funeral services are to be held Saturday at Gilman, and the body will be brought to Belmond afterward. Tentative plans call for the body to lie in state at Johnston Funeral Home Sunday afternoon and brief rites to accompany interment in the Belmond cometery on Monday.

Details of the arrangements may be obtained by calling Johnston Funeral Home.

It was Missildine's scoring that kept Hampton from fading entirely out of the picture when the Bulldogs were having their troubles. He totalled 21 points. Zimmer and Tom Porter got 12 and nine points respectively during the Hampton rally and finished with 13 each. John Barkmoier and Jim Heilskov each kicked in with eight, Paton got four and Sogard two.

Hampton bowed out with an 11-7 mark for the season and Belmond takes a 13-6 record into its next game tonight (Thursday) against Iowa Falls.

Despite a 4-for-11 showing on field goals in the last quarter, Belmond was 28-for-59 all the way for a 49 per cent shooting average. Hampton was just over 36 per cent on 26 hits in 71 tries. The Bulldogs made 17 of 25 freethrows to Belmond's 15 of 27.

Belmond was charged with 21 fouls as Nelson, Thompsen and Rise all departed with their quotas filled. Only Heilskov fouled out for the Bulldogs, but three other players had four each by the game's end as the visitors chalked up 20 fouls in all.

Iowa Falls ousts Cowboys, 59-47

Iowa Falls' Cadets took an easy 59-47 victory over the Clarion Cowboys here Tuesday night and advanced to the Class AA district basketball finals opposite Belmond. The Broncos and Cadets will tangle tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 for the right to go on to sub-state play at Mason City.

The victor in the Belmond-Iowa Falls fray will go against the Mason City district winner Saturday night at 7:30 p. m. Sub-state finals are at Mason City on Wednesday night of next week at 7:30 o'clock.

Tuesday night's game was close during the first half. Clarion led 11-10 at the quarter but trailed 21-25 at intermission. From there on, it was all Iowa Falls. The Cadets held a 42-29 third-quarter advantage and the Cowboys could never cut their deficit below 10 points the rest of the way.

Lanky Bill McCoy, Cadet pivot, paced the winners with 20 points. Jack Smith, Clarion's shortie guard, put on a good one-man show but his 26 points couldn't help the Cowboys enough.

Farm measuring business of day for county ASC

Wright county township committeemen and office employees of the Agricultural Stablization and Conservation Service are presently measuring farm program acreage for farmers who intend to participate in the 1967 Feed Grain Program, according to H. B. Vanderlip, chairman of the Wright county ASC committee.

As of a week ago Monday, 880 farmers had signed agreements to participate. Of these, nearly all have requested measurement service before planting.

Accurate scale aerial photographs, planimeters, precise scale rules, and the surveyor's chain are tools used in determining acreage. The planimeter and scale rule are instruments for establishing acreage from the photograph, and the surveyor's chain is used in field measurement out on the farm.

It is the same chain related to the decimal system which was used in original survey over a hundred years ago to establish county, township, and section lines.

This combination of old and new methods permits measurement of many precise acreages in a surprisingly short time. Farmers pay the cost of measurement service, so time saved helps them as well as ASCS. In addition, measurement service permits the farmer to utilize fully all his land within program limits. With guaranteed measurement he does not need to grow less corn or divert more acres from corn than is absolutely necessary.

In the 1966 Feed Grain Program, 1,315 farm were measured before planting. "We consider measurement service a smart investment and recommend it for all participating farms," says Chairman Vanderlip.

Word has been received that Lt. I. John Studebaker is now stationed at Camp Eglin, Fla. His wife has joined him there.

Library to hold carnival Friday

A carnival is planned by the Alexander library board for this Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the new but unfinished library building. Its purpose will be to raise some of the $950 still needed — in addition to $700 in uncollected pledges — to complete the project.

It is promised that their will be "food, fun and frolic" for all ages. There will be no admission charge. A variety of door prizes will be awarded.

A cake walk, fish pond, and the fascinating new game "Twister" will be among the carnival features. Part of the basement will be reserved for teenage dancing.

Mrs. Ed Hensel of the library board says people of the Alexander community will be contacted to help in a variety of ways to make the project a success. Money will be needed to meet obligations soon coming due, and the carnival is counted on to make some of this needed cash immediately available.

The library building will soon be completed and ready for carpeting and delivery of shelving and furniture. No date has been set for the library opening due to the uncertainty of when the shelving will be received.

Mrs. Hensel notes that the spaciousness of the building will allow for extended library services such as a children's story hour, adult classes and showing of films.

She adds, "Community cooperation has been terrific, but it will take a big push to complete the project."

Ye did run well; who did hinder you that ye should not obey the truth? — Gal. 5:7

Yes, the life you save COULD be your very own

Local solicitors are still engaged in completing their canvasses in behalf of the American Heart association. If you've already given, we hope you did so readily and generously. If the knock hasn't come on your door yet, we suggest you be guided by a forecast made last week by Dr. Walter M. Kirkendall, president of the Iowa Heart association.

He predicts that 1967 will see more Iowa lives claimed by heart and circulatory diseases than all other diseases combined. In the last year for which such statistics are available, the cardiovascular disease toll in Iowa was 17,127 compared to 12,267 deaths from all other diseases and causes.

Research and education conducted by the state and national Heart associations are making inroads on deaths from heart and circulatory ailments; but the way yet to be travelled is a long one. The best way to shorten it and reduce the toll from these No. 1 killers is to support the heart association programs. Particularly if you are of middle age or younger, the life you save could very well be your own.

Here are two more important February birthdays

February is sometimes known as "the birthday month," due to the number of prominent personalities who had their beginnings in this shortest month of them all. It was a matter of interest to us that it also marks the "birthdays" of two institutions that have had very major impact on the state of Iowa.

Last Thursday, Feb. 23, was the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the federally supported vocational-educational movement and Saturday, Feb. 25, was the 120th anniversary of the legislative act that created the State University of Iowa.

It was on Feb. 23, 1917, that President Woodrow Wilson signed the Vocational Education Act that set up what has been, over the years, perhaps the most successful cooperative program involving the federal government and the states.

Set up initially "to prepare youth and adults for employment, and help employed workers gain advancement" through public vocational education, the concept was to leave operation of those programs with the states — and this has worked out remarkably well.

Better known as the Smith-Hughes Act, it was implemented by both federal and state appropriations for the fiscal period from July 1, 1917 to June 30, 1918. Federal funds allocated to Iowa for that period amounted to only $35,000; and the 37th Iowa General Assembly appropriated $2,500 as its contribution towards launching of the program.

In contrast, Belmond Community School district is receiving this year money for the Smith-Hughes programs it sponsored in 1965-66 — $4,944, or almost twice the original state appropriation. The 61st General Assembly made $2,200,000 available annually for vo-ed programs under the Smith-Hughes Act, which was in addition to a $200,000 statutory annual allocation passed by an earlier legislature, making a $2,400,000 annual total.

Prompting the large increase in state expenditures for vo-ed purposes is the establishment of merged-area districts encompassing nearly the entire state that will place vocational education programs within the reach of every young person and adult needing to prepare for employment or improve his skills. North Iowa Area Community college at Mason City will be the medium through which this elaborated program will be fostered in our area.

Although the state university was created by a legislative act passed on Feb. 25, 1847 — just 51 days after Iowa became a state — classes in the frontier school did not open until 1855. It had a faculty of three and an enrollment of 19 students.

From its original rented building in Iowa City, then the state capital, the U-of-I now spreads over a campus of 1,300 acres, has some 65 major classrooms plus reasearch and hospital buildings for a teaching faculty of more than 1,000. Its current enrollment is more than 17,700 and is expected to exceed that figure by a thousand or more next fall.

It was the first state university to admit women on a status equal to that of men. It had the first law school west of the Mississippi. It was one of the first institutions of higher learning that accepted creative work in lieu of theses required for advanced degrees in the fine arts.

It has also been a leader in scientific areas. Radio station WSUI is believed to have been the first to operate west of the Mississippi, beginning operation 50 years ago. The pioneering spirit has been projected by the work of Dr. James Van Allen and his associates in physics, who created important research instruments for America's first earth satellite.

Our lives are much the richer for these two formidable institutions who have their places in the February birthday parade.

Boat-rockers aren't popular, but sometimes needed

Like most Iowans, we experience a feeling of indignation when a university professor acts contrary to the norm and refuses to hand out grades on his students' work because the grades might be a factor in making some of those students subject to the draft.

We are offended that the students at our second-largest institution of higher learned should elect as their campus leader a self-proclaimed left-winger. And it arouses our dander that student demonstrations should decry actions and practices that are wholly in the American spirit of "how things are done".

Yet, beneath our indignation is a nagging suspicion that the recalcitrant professor, the bearded campus leader and the demonstrators are necessities of our day.

We are in a period of social revolution that is going to see many long accepted principles of human inter-relationships drastically changed — not in a year or so; perhaps not in the next decade; but almost certainly before the turn of another century.

These changes will require catalysts to bridge the society we have know with the society we are going to become. Each period of upheaval has had them; and some of them, believe it or not, are "heroes" in our current history books. But in their day, they were viewed with suspicion; and they aroused widespread indignation — like Professor Barnett, like Donald R. Smith (the Iowa State university student body president), and like the demonstrators.

Breaks with the past are painful and accompanied by a feeling of offense that what's been "good enough" for ourselves and our parents and grandparents is "all of a sudden" deemed inadequate to the demands of our time. And those who strike out first to prove that this is true are not popular.

It is probably essential that resistance be shown toward those who are the bell-wethers of the different kind of society that is in the making. For evolution rather that revolution is the "civilized" way to create a new social era (though, goodness knows, revolution has often enough fomented such transitions in the past).

We've a strong suspicion, though, that the time will come when we'll look back on the Professor Barnetts, the Donald Smiths and the demonstrators with much more tolerance than we view them with today.

Today, they infringe on our complacency — on our dogged insistence in believing that times surely haven't changed so much that we MUST change with them. But let us keep in mind that these boat-rockers may not be entirely wrong. That some of the fault may lie with us.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

Senate and House Republicans have given strong support to a bill which will expand medical services to Iowans now receiving welfare grants. The bill, which would allow Iowa to come under the provisions of the Federal "Medicaid" program, will result in two types of savings to local property taxpayers.

Officials said the act would save counties a total of $1,800,000 which is now collected to pay for the medical assistance of welfare recipients. In addition, an undetermined amount of money will be saved by the 32 counties which now operate county hospitals and provide care for indigents.

Under the program, the state must continue to spend at least the $13 million it now appropriates for medical assistance to persons receiving medical aid for the aged, aid to dependent children, and aid to the blind and disabled.

EXPENDITURE OF THE $13 million, however, qualifies Iowa for about $18 million in federal funds. If Iowa did not join the program, its share of the funds — which come in part from the federal taxes collected in this state — would go to the other states.

About 80,000 persons now receive medical assistance under the Iowa program. Because of federal regulations, a maximum of another 20,000 persons will receive the medical assistance. However, the increased funds will allow a general increase in the quality and quantity of aid given the needy.

The program is geared to those persons who actually require the help. For example, the regulations require that for an average family of four persons, the total income cannot be above $3,600 per year to be eligible for the assistance.

IT'S A WELL KNOWN FACT that Republicans think for themselves, and often disagree with one another on certain issues. An example of this was seen recently on the proposed constitutional amendment calling for the legislature to meet yearly instead of once every two years. The House completed action on the resolution, approving it by a vote of 89-33. The vote saw Republicans on both sides of the fence, but favoring it by a 54-33 margin.

In fact, it was a three-way disagreement. Some Republicans wanted the amendment the way it was finally passed — without any limitations on either the length or subjects which could be taken up in the even-numbered year sessions.

ANOTHER GROUP WANTED the even-numbered year session limited to discussion of money matters and for only 75 days. The third group took the view that the even-numbered year session was not necessary at all.

The key vote came on the proposal to limit the subject matter and length of the session. After more than two hours of thorough debate, the amendment was defeated by a vote of 72-48. Republicans split 48-39 in favor of the amendment.

It is now up to Iowans to settle the argument. Citizens will vote on the proposal in the 1968 general elections.

—o—

LAST FRIDAY THE SENATE considered a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Iowa to give the Governor the authority to appoint a secretary of state, treasurer of state and attorney general and to provide that the General Assembly shall appoint an auditor of state.

This joint resolution did not receive much discussion in the Governmental Affairs committee, a committee on which I serve, since it did pass the 61st General Assembly it was presumed by the leadership to have been thoroughly discussed at that time. Inasmuch as I did not have the benefit of this debate, I welcomed Friday's floor debate and feel that much was gained by it.

I OPPOSED THIS RESOLUTION, even though I feel that additional strength in the manner in which the Governor's office is organized is needed. However, the desire to achieve this was subordinated to the need to keep the attorney general from being a "yes man" to the Governor.

There are many sides to this issue. There are those who feel the people should continue to elect them because they have a right to do so. In my mind there is no question that the people have a right to do so, but there is a real problem facing candidates for these offices in obtaining sufficient statewide exposure to give the electorate information needed to make a wise choice.

THIS IS ESPECIALLY TRUE considering salaries paid and the cost of a statewide campaign. Ask yourself who the state officers are and who they ran against last November if you believe you made a choice based on the qualifications of the individuals.

I believe I would support a Constitutional amendment which would provide that the General Assembly shall appoint both the attorney general and auditor. The governor could then appoint the other three members to the State Executive Council without further Constitutional amendment changes.

It would be necessary to change a statute which now provides that the secretary of agriculture be elected by the people. When making a judgment on a matter of this type, one must consider the matter on the basis of how he would like it if his party were in power.

IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION

HAPPINESS IS . . . —

Happiness, in the Iowa legislature, is a non-controversial bill.

With Republicans in control of one house, and the Democrats the other, few bills have been labeled non-controversial.

ANNUAL SESSIONS—

To amend Iowa's constitution is a lengthy process. A proposed constitutional amendment must be passed, in identical form, by two consecutive general assemblies and then approved by a vote of the people.

Both houses of the legislature have now approved a measure calling for annual legislative sessions. Since this also was approved by the 1965 legislature, it goes to a vote of the people in 1968.

The Senate approved the measure early in the session. After extended debate, it cleared the House by a vote of 88 to 33.

THE REPUBLICAN "MODERATES" held the trump cards on this one, and in fact cast more votes than the Democrats for the measure, with 48 Republicans and 40 Democrats voting "aye."

Many legislators opposed to annual sessions say it will lead to "professional legislators." They want to retain the "citizen-type" legislator. State Representative John Mowry, Marshalltown Republican, was unsuccessful in his bid to amend the proposal to limit the length and duties of even-year sessions.

Now it will be up to the voters.

18 "OLD ENOUGH"?—

How many times have you heard the argument that if 18-year-olds are old enough to fight for their country, they are old enough to vote? That was one of the arguments thoroughly debated on the House floor as the Representatives killed a proposed constitutional amendment that would have lowered the minimum voting age in Iowa from 21 to 18.

Earlier the Senate, by a vote of 49 to 9, had approved lowering the voting age to 18.

Rep. Maurice Van Nostrand, who lead the attack on whether the voting age should be lowered, said 18-year-olds may be physically matured enough to vote, but not emotionally matured enough.

HE POINTED OUT THAT 18-year-olds are minors and can't sign legal contracts, that the Red Cross will not accept blood donations from individuals under 21 without parental consent, and that the Hertz rental car people won't rent cars to individuals under 25 without parental consent.

"Avis is in second place and tries harder," he continued, "so they'll rent to anyone 21 and older." The western Iowa Republican said if the legislature should lower the voting age without changing some other state laws, "we might find an 18-year old who can vote having to take his mama to the courthouse to ask for a marriage license."

REP. RICHARD RADL, LISBON Democrat, replied that at 18 the interest of young people in government runs high because of their studies, mock conventions and is even stimulated by visits to the legislature.

Radl said there is reason to think that by making 18-year-olds wait for three to five years before they can vote in a presidential election "may explain the vast indifference on the part of adults in our elections."

BARNETT CONTROVERSY—

The legislature has flirted with getting directly involved in the row over a University of Iowa professor who refuses to turn in grades for his students because the grades are used to determine class rankings for draft deferments.

After several hours' debate, the Senate voted to send a resolution forcing the firing of Donald Barnett back to its education committee for further study. The vote was 35 to 24. The resolution directed university officials to take "whatever administrative or legal proceedings necessary to terminate the contract" of Barnett, an assistant professor of anthropology and sociology.

SENATE LEADERS, BOTH REPUBLICANS and Democrats, opposed the resolution saying this was the university's problem and the legislature should not interfere. Barnett, who calls himself a Marxist socialist, said some senators were trying to establish "police state control" with the resolution.

University officials are withholding Barnett's salary because he refused to turn in the grades. Other action is contemplated by the university, which may lead to Barnett's dismissal.

Sen Roger Jepsen, Davenport Republican, lamented that the "quiet majority" of Americans have been nearly forgotten in present day society.

HE SAID, "YOU ARE A MEMBER of the quiet majority if you try to do an honest day's work for an honest day's pay.

"The clamor of the political hacks, the noise of the propangandizers and the wild ideas of the political birdhatchers have too long been allowed to crowd out the common sense, the calm dignity and the sincere efforts of the quiet majority.

"It seems to me that the time has come for study, not shouting; for thoughts, not threats; for musing, not marching. In short, we have a desperate need for leadership . . .

"I, for one, believe that God is alive. It is not old fashioned for you and I to believe that America is the greatest nation on earth and it is not corny to believe that Iowa can be the greatest state in the nation," Jepsen said.

District reports on '66 work—

Tornado here unplanned on Patrol activity

Lt. Max Schmeling, chief of Iowa Highway Patrol District No. 7, thought that his 16 officers assigned to road duty during 1966 did a notably efficient job in a variety of respects — most certainly including the operation and maintenance of their patrol cars.

Persons drawing car mileage of eight or 10 cents per mile on their cars and wondering if they are REALLY "making out," even at those figures, should be impressed with the patrolmen's travel cost of JUST UNDER four cents per mile during the past year.

Of course, that did not include any cost of depreciation; but it does take in all gasoline, oil and maintenance in traveling a total of 870,250 miles in performance of duty.

Tornado added to work

Duties included in addition to traffic patrol — safety checks, motorist assists, accident coverage, drivers license examinations and searches for missing persons. If the latter comes as somewhat of a surprise, it apparently shouldn't, for in the course of 1966 located 26 individuals who were either "missing" or wanted by other officers.

Most major of the "extra-curricular" activities that engaged patrol efforts during the past year was the aid given Belmond at the time of the Oct. 14th tornado and a considerable period of time afterward. Surveillance of entry roads around the town to bar unwanted sight-seers during the emergency required a large task force that included personnel from other districts than No. 7.

3,134 pleaded "guilty"

Most of the miles in the 870,250 piled up by patrolmen in the district were accounted for by the men on road duty, of course. They also were responsible for the very large part of nearly 3,700 summons and 13,000 faulty-equipment warning tickets issued in '66.

The 3,686 summons resulted in guilty pleas being made in court by 3,134 of the motorists who received them. Another 139 at the year's end were still pending grand jury actions. Only 50 of the cases were dismissed. Mainly responsible for the apparent discrepancy between number of summons and the number of court cases was 471 instances when tickets for driving without a license were cancelled when the driver produced a valid license he didn't have on him when the summons was issued.

In addition to the 50 cases dismissed by courts, two defendants were found not guilty. Lieutenant Schmeling regarded that these statistics speak well for the efficient job his men were doing in law enforcement. The "apprehension" figures also included 21 youths turned over to juvenile authorities.

5,071 days behind bars

Sixty-five drivers were arrested for operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Forty-five of those have since been convicted, 16 are still pending, three were reduced by prosecuting attorneys to lesser charges and in one case a jury returned a "not guilty" verdict.

Guilty defendants taken in custody in the patrol district spent a total of 5,071 days behind bars; and school funds on the state and local level were enriched by $60,918 in the form of fines paid.

In the course of their work, the patrolmen recovered property valued at $31,000 and also recovered six abandoned vehicles.

While it sometimes seems as if a patrolman is never around when some stupid fool passes you on a yellow line or otherwise flagrantly disregard the traffic laws, the District 7 patrolmen can prove that they WERE "at the right place, at the right time" on a good many occasions.

3,483 motorists assisted

This enabled them to render assistance to 3,483 motorists who were in need of aid. Other miscellaneous chores involved providing escort for 189 funeral corteges and filing 792 warrant and license suspension notices.

Throughout the district, 542 accidents were investigated during the year. These produced a death toll of 65, which was 35 more than in 1965 — a point of considerable dismay to the patrol, which tries so hard to keep people from killing themselves off.

Accidents seemed to be "worse" in '66 than the year before, for the death toll was up 215 per cent despite the fact that th number of accidents covered was only 31 more than the year before. The patrolmen's coverage of accidents entailed rendering first aid to 135 persons.

Wright has two patrolmen

Assistance of the officers was also given at events that prompted large gatherings of people such as centennials, county fairs and the like. The patrolmen also rendered aid to local police, sheriffs, state and federal officials in the investigation of crimes and accidents, according to Lieutenant Schmeling's report.

District 7 is composed of seven counties — Calhoun, Webster, Hamilton, Pocahontas, Humboldt, Kossuth and Wright. Two of the patrolmen are stationed in Wright county, Bill James here at Belmond and Ben Urban at Clarion.

County '66 bond sales lag badly, despite Belmond

Wright county made one of its worst showings ever where purchase of U. S. savings bonds were concerned in 1967, final Iowa figures for the year reveal. Whereas Iowa as a whole surpassed its annual quota by three per cent on total sales of $113,851,480, Wright attained only 88 per cent of its quota on sales of $776,975.

This failure was in no degree attributable to customers of the First State bank of Belmond. This bank had a '66 bond sales quota of $150,515, which it had surpassed by September. Its sales for the year came to $187,456, which was 124.5 per cent of its own quota and almost 30 per cent of the entire county quota.

Of the 42 counties lying north of Highway 30, only four — Allamakee, Emmit, Clay and O'Brien — had poorer records that Wright's; while Ida county led the entire state with 142 per cent and 19 others in the northern four tiers exceeded their quotas.

In Wright's immediate vicinity, Cerro Gordo reached 112 per cent of quota with sales of $1,459,216; Franklin 111 per cent with $556,413; and Hancock 102 per cent with $667,602.

Of counties adjoining Wright, only Webster county's 87 per cent on sale of $1,77,977 was a poorer mark that Wright's. Humboldt achieved 99 per cent of quota on $603,998 sales; Hamilton 96 per cent on $824,699; Kossuth 95 per cent on 819,271; and Hardin 94 per cent on $933,819.

E. F. Bisbey, former Clarion mayor, served as Wright county bonds chairman during the year.

Parley conducted on foster homes

The goal of several fostor homes in Wright county came a step closer last Thursday night when a group representing several service clubs in the county met in Clarion to discuss the issue.

Meeting with the group were Mrs. Elizabeth Palmer of Des Moines, director of the children's division of the Iowa Board of Control; Ed Hunt of Mason City, case work supervisor for a 14-county area that includes Wright county; and Keith Meyers, county welfare director.

The meeting was conducted by Ty Robinson of Eagle Grove, chairman of the project sponsored by the Eagle Grove Rotary club.

As explained to the group, two types of homes are being sought — semi-permanent homes for juveniles for terms which can run from a few weeks up to several years, and temporary homes where the juveniles can be kept overnight or for several days until the courts or welfare authorities can make permanent arrangements.

Those attending the meeting will take the information to their individual clubs and, if requested, the Eagle Grove Rotary club will furnish speakers to give additional information.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Greiman and Barbara of Garner visited Sunday afternoon in the Claude Veeder home.

DuPuits Alfalfa
yield 9 tons/acre

"My 95 acres of DuPuits averaged 9 tons of alfalfa hay per acre and at the same time produced the highest quality alfalfa hay I've ever seen," says Alvin E. Stephens.

DuPuits alfalfa's early start and late growth, plus exceptional vigor producing quicker regrowth after cutting or grazing, results in greater total yield per acre.

Cut at early bloom DuPuits is highly palatable, leafy and high in protein. In short rotations, DuPuits consistently outyeilded other alfalfas.

It's Noculized® seed . . . alive with nitrogen fixing bacteria and it's Wes-Gro processed for quicker germination.

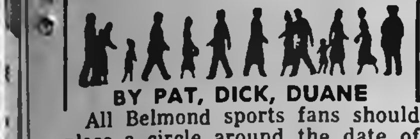
MAIN STREET



BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

All Belmond sports fans should place a circle around the date of Monday, March 27, to remind them to obtain tickets for the Winter Sports Banquet that the Lions will hold on that date. With 100 or more basketball players, wrestlers, coaches, cheerleaders and others to be guests of the occasion, the Lions are planning to make it a really big affair.

Tickets will be placed on sale next week; and since the gymnasium can be used as a dining site — rather than the student center — if the crowd requires, there'll need be no limit on the number attending.

This revival of a Winter Sports Banquet is planned by the Lions in the belief that the cagers and wrestlers deserve the recognition. If the public agrees, and turns out in enthusiastic numbers, it will become an annual event. There'll be good food, an excellent program, and an opportunity to applaud these deserving athletes and their coaches. Plan to be there!

For the information of the many friends of Mrs. Marie Gabel, a long-time resident of this community, her daughter, Mrs. Joe Lepper, advises that Mrs. Gabel on March 20 will arrive at her 85th birthday. Since the tornado, Mrs. Gabel has been living at Hampton. Friends who would like to remember her with cards may address them to her at: 403 Second ave. SW, Hampton 50441.

"Where there's smoke," so the saying goes, "there's sure to be fire." In the case of Harold "Sonny" Erdman of the McLaughlin Chevrolet sales staff, the smoke may come from the big cigar that's ordinarily clenched in his teeth. But the fire — that's something else, again.

A red-hot sales record could be suspected as the cause of the blaze.

Last year, "Sonny" ranked 9th among 218 Chevrolet salesmen in the entire Des Moines District as to truck sales. He made the district Honor Roll with a total of 53 trucks and pickups sold during the year. If you act "interested" around Harold, you're pretty apt to end up with a new vehicle.

One of the charity events that has always struck us as a particularly fine gesture is the "Coffee Day" conducted annually by the Iowa Restaurant association in behalf of the Iowa Association for Retarded Children. Unlike the majority of fund raising projects that are fostered by the organization that will be reaping the benefits, the restaurateurs take the IARC under their wing for this one with nothing more in it for them than a feather in their cap.

James Jerde of Clarion is Wright county chairman for this year's "Coffee Day," which will be held on TWO days, actually — Friday and Saturday of next week, March 17-18.

The public has come a long way in its realization of the potential for self-sufficiency that the retarded youngsters have, if they are given a break. With special training, care and treatment, many become useful members of society. Keep this in mind when you see those "Coffee Day" banners and placards on display. You can help a mighty good cause by kicking a little extra in the kitty for your coffee on those days — and help the cafe boys do their good turn.

A former Belmondite, Mrs. Searle Ridenour (nee Lois Trafford-Murray) of Cedar Falls relates an interesting recent experience stemming from her husband's belief that he recognized an actor in a popular TV dramatic series. He thought that Chris Hughes, who plays the father in "As the World Turns," was a boyhood friend by the name of Don McLaughlin.

Mrs. Ridenour decided to find out by writing a letter to McLaughlin in care of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Last week a reply was received from the actor.

He said he certainly did remember Searle Ridenour from school days in southeast Iowa and reminisced at some length on school day sports, dramatics and the like. Another interesting bit of information gleaned from the letter was the fact that Mr. McLaughlin lives in New York City just four blocks from former Belmondite Mrs. Inga Steele-Benson. Small world!

HELLO, WORLD

On March 2, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Halama of Belmond became the parents of a 6-lb. 12½-oz. son. They gave him the name Rodney Scott.

CARD PARTY SUNDAY

A public card party will be conducted Sunday by St. Monica's division of the Rosary society at Lynn's Lounge. Playing will start at 8:00 p. m., with a choice of bridge or 500.

E. Eccles leads state pin event

Edna Eccles paced a delegation of 40 bowlers who represented leagues of Bowl-Mor Lanes at the women's state bowling tournament last Saturday and Sunday at Council Bluffs.

With a high game of 211 helping the cause, Mrs. Eccles tumbled a total of 1,545 pins in singles, doubles and team event to take over first place in the Class C all-events.

Three other Belmond keglers received certificates denoting a 200 game rolled during their tournament competition. They were Margaret Downs 217, Donna Cockram 204 and Lavonne Wessels 201.

A bus was chartered to take the Belmond group to the tournament, leaving here at 5:00 a. m. Saturday and returning 7:00 p. m. Sunday. Several entries, in addition to Mrs. Eccles, figure to finish in the money. In Class E, the Pepsi-Cola team gained 3rd place with 1,928 and Johnston's Furniture 4th with [illegible]

ALL-OF-A-PIECE when delivered to the building site, this maze of rafters and joists will support the hip-roofed home being built for Mr. and Mrs. Russell Beenken at 912 Fourth avenue NE. The component building, purchased through Spahn and Rose Lumber company, is being erected by Paul Dorr as contractor. This roof was in place last weekend in less than a day's time — only a fraction of the time that would have been required "starting from scratch," Mr. Dorr says. Spahn and Rose has a full-page advertisement in this issue telling of the component homes it is in a position to supply. The Beenkens are building on the same lot where they lost a home to the tornado last fall.

Farm Bureau has hopes for property tax relief

There is a good chance for Iowa to do something about the property tax situation in the state during this session of the state legislature, in the opinion of officials of the Wright County Farm Bureau.

This feeling is a result of discussion at a meeting of county Farm Bureau leaders which was held in Des Moines in late February. Attending from Wright county were Willis Kuecker, county president, and Leo Woodley, county voting delegate.

The optimistic outlook, they reported, is based on the widespread support indicated by both political parties and by many business, industry and farm groups in the state.

But the Farm Bureau leaders emphasized that Wright county residents are going to have to make sure that the county's legislators are aware of the interest in alleviating the serious property tax situation.

They said legislators report receiving practically no communications from their constituents on need for property tax relief.

It should be possible to develop strong bi-partisan support for property tax relief measures in this session, since each political party controls one house of the legislature and would share the responsibility, Mr. Kuecker observes.

The two county Farm Bureau leaders emphasized that property tax relief does not mean an increase in taxes, but rather a shift in the tax structure to a tax which would be more in proportion to ability to pay — and more equitable — than property taxes.

The Farm Bureau, they added, will support obtaining revenue from any source that would be equitable and will accept any property tax alleviation plan that will be effective on this basis.

New Central Soya position to Hein

Robert Hein, chemist for the local Central Soya plant before his transfer about a year ago to Decatur, Ill., has lately received another fine promotion from that company.

Ray Wright, manager of the Central Soya plant here, reports that as of March 1, Mr. Hein became quality control manager for the C-S Chemurgy division at Chicago.

He was assistant chief chemist at the large soybean processing plant Central Soya has at Decatur, upon departing from Belmond. Mr. Wright says the new assignment represents an excellent advancement for the former Belmond employee.

As was the case when Bob was transferred from here late last winter and his wife an three children remained until the school year closed, his family will this time be remaining in Decatur until classes have closed for the summer.

Mr. Hein was a member of the Belmond city council, until his transfer necessitated his resignation from that post, and engaged in a variety civic activities during his years of residence here

MODEL CLEANERS TO OPEN

Jim Havens, proprietor of the Model Cleaners, happily announces in this issue that his establishment will be open for business this Friday — for the first time since it was put out of commission by the tornado. He has completely refurnished and re-equipped the plant and plans to hold an open house later to let the public inspect his all new paraphernalia.

Pals' report on "Dumond house" in Iowa annals

AMES (Special) — The winter issue of the Annals of Iowa contains five historical reports by Iowa State university architectural students from the Leonard Wolf Collection presented to the Iowa Historical Library, Des Moines.

The collection of student reports was presented to the Historical Library in memory of the late Leonard Wolf, who was head of the department of architecture at Iowa State from 1953 to 1962.

Lawton Patten, professor of architecture, said the reports were done when the authors were undergraduate students in history of architecture classes. As part of their course work, the students did research on interesting Iowa buildings.

Called "A Historical Look at Architecture in Iowa," the five reports are: the first log cabin in Hardin County, by Alan C. Balhorn; the Dumond house at Belmond, by Howard Pals; the Blue and Armbruster places in Eagle Grove, both by Duane L. Miller; and Tara stagecoach house near Fort Dodge, by Ann Louise Lind.

(Editor's note: the Dumond house was "the old brick house on the hill," which after standing staunchly for well over 100 years finally bowed to the elements when the tornado struck last fall.)

Post office-IOOF lease formalized

An entry in the records of the county recorder's office at Clarion shows that as of last Jan. 31 the U.S. post office department entered into a lease with the IOOF lodge for rental of 2,025 square feet of the lodge hall basement to serve as temporary location of the Belmond post office.

This agreement calls for an annual rental fee of $4,500, the lease being subject to termination by the government on 30 days' notice. Period of the lease agreement is from Oct. 15, 1966, to Oct. 14, 1967.

The post office has been operating in the lodge hall basement since the Hensel building it had leased on Highway 69 was destroyed by the tornado.

End of council dilemma?—

Opinion: city can't give park away

A letter directed to City Attorney Roy Henderson and read Monday night to the city council appeared to ease the city fathers out of the dilemma they felt themselves placed in by the request that the city park be given as a site for the proposed retirement home.

Mr. Henderson had inquired of E. B. Carpenter, Des Moines attorney who serves as occasional counsel to the city on bonding and other matters, as to the legal aspects of such a gift — or sale of the park property for a token sum.

Replied Mr. Carpenter:

"Regarding the city park which certain people in your city are interested in having sold to an organization for use as a retirement home (site), this could only be sold provided the council makes a determination that it is no longer needed for public purposes, and then you would have to go through the regular procedure set out in the Code for sale of unneeded city land.

"The city would have no authority to either give this property to the promoters of the retirement home nor to sell it to them at a nominal price. Our Supreme Court has held that when a city disposes of land unneeded it is necessary that the city receive a market price for the property.

"In this case, your city park would have a fairly high sale value because of its location and in connection with surrounding property."

(Editor's note: this information was received subsequent to writing of the editorial on the retirement home matter that appears in this issue.)

Discussion was conducted by the council on the establishment of a uniform sign ordinance, primarily to specify the variety of signs acceptable in the business district.

The council also discussed the problem of keeping several condemned buildings on downtown Main street satisfactorily barricaded as a safeguard to the public.

Consideration was given to a request from the 110th Engineer Battalion of the Missouri National Guard, headquartered at Kansas City, for overnight camping and parking accommodations for about 500 men here on the night of June 23.

Capt. Chester Smith advised that food and other supplies would be purchased here in considerable quantity as the unit makes a stop en route to summer camp. The councilmen agreed it would be desirable to oblige the guard unit if the matter can be worked out.

City Clerk Lois Hammond advises that the following out-of-town contracting firms have been licensed to do business here during the current year:

Dale Schmedke, Iowa Falls; Loux and Hanna, Forest City; J & E Construction company, Webster City; J. F. Anderson Lumber company, Spencer; Bob Bauer Construction and Northern Construction companies, Mason City; Riverside Construction, Alden; Quality Roofing, Dubuque; and Lewerke Construction, Rockwell.

Mrs. Hammond warns against contracting with unlicensed firms to do building and also offers a reminder that a building permit must be obtained prior to undertaking new construction. Ted Zook is at the city hall every morning from 9:00 a. m. to noon to assist with applications for permits.

$900 provided to meet obligations—

Lions and Jaycees wipe out Chest's deficit

Thanks to help being supplied by the Belmond Lions club and Jaycees, the Belmond Community Chest this week planned to meet in full all appropriations pledged to affiliated activities and agencies for the current year in spite of a heavy deficit faced when the 1966 fund campaign was doomed by occurrence of the tornado here last Oct. 14.

Bruce Schroeder, president of the Chest Council, announced Tuesday that special contributions from the Lions and Jaycees will bring cash-in-hand to $5,900 and permit fulfillment of all the Chest's obligations for the current year.

From funds received by the two organizations from other clubs and chapters to be used for meeting tornado-related needs of the community, the Lions voted $570 to the Chest and the Jaycees an additional amount of $330. Before these sums were received, it had appeared that only 85 per cent of the budgeted appropriations could be met.

A goal of $5,975 had been set for the 1966 drive, which had been launched just four days before the tornado slashed through Belmond. The interruption to conduct of the campaign — plus financial losses suffered by many Belmond residents — proved fatal obstacles to its successful completion.

Mr. Schroeder says that Mrs. O'Larry Dorr, co-chairman of the drive with Mrs. Larry Main, spent many hours in a determined effort at completing the Chest canvass as completely as possible after some degree of normalcy had returned to the community after the tornado.

This effort served to add almost an additional $1,000 to what had come in before the clean-up was undertaken. By last week, contributions had come close to $4,400. Another $560 was in the Chest's bank account as surplus from other years, being held as a contingency fund. Since campaign expenses, budgeted at $175, had been held well under that figure the Chest Council found that $5,900 would suffice to meet fully all of the Chest's obligations and usual annual expenses.

Since the end of the year, the Lions club had indicated interest in helping the Chest out of its temporary predicament if a genuine effort was made to complete solicitations. Special concern had also been expressed by the Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes that the appropriations to the Boys Scouts and boys' and girls' summer recreation programs be met.

The Jaycees are local sponsors of the Scouting program and also have been generous in their support of the boys summer recreation activities. The Jaycee-ettes have similarly given assistance to the girls program. When it appeared that only 85 per cent of the Chest goal would be attained, the two organizations had intimated they might make up the $330 deficit barring full payment of the three appropriations totalling $2,200.

Mr. Schroeder says, "The Chest Council is deeply grateful to the Lions and Jaycees for making it possible to continue the Belmond Community Chest's unusual record of never having failed to meet its pledged obligations.

"The members of the council fully understand that these generous gestures were prompted by intrusion of the tornado as an insurmountable obstacle to the 1966 campaign and in no degree set a precedent for 'bailing out' the Chest if it should have later, unsuccessful drives without the excuse of a disaster as their cause."

Following are the allotments that will now be paid for 1967: American Red Cross and Boy Scouts of America, each $1,200; Camp Fire Girls, $800; Salvation Army, boys recreation program and girls recreation program, each $500; Iowa Children's Home Society, $400; Belmond Loan Closet, $250; Wright County Association for Retarded Children, $125; Iowa chapter of Arthritis Foundation and USO, each $100; Kenny Rehabilitation program, $50.

Last fall's campaign was the 16th conducted since the Belmond Community Chest was established in 1951 and set an initial campaign goal of $4,000. During the intervening years the Chest has surpassed its goal on more occasions than it has fallen short, with the result that there has always been sufficient in the contingency fund to make up any deficits that occurred.

Belmond's is one of very few Chests in north Iowa — and probably in the state — that has been in existence for so long a time that can point to the achievement of always having met its appropriations 100 per cent, Mr Schroder notes.

"Failure on this occasion having been avoided with the assistance of the Lions and Jaycees," he added, "it is the Chest Council's hope — and expectation — that the community will make a special point of seeing that campaigns in the years to come meet with unbroken success."

SCOUT SHOW PLANNED

Belmond Boy Scouts, Explorers and Cub Scouts have been invited to participate in a Scout Show to be staged at Garner's Memorial building on Saturday, April 8, 2:00 to 8:00 p. m. It is to involve all Scout units in the Tomahawk district, which includes Wright, Hancock and Winnebago counties. Entry of display booths must be made by Wednesday of next week. Cost of the exhibit will be met by sale of admission tickets, which are soon to be distributed.

Belmond vocalist shares in recital presented as SCI

CEDAR FALLS (Special) — Jeanne Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Finn of Belmond, was one of three State College of Iowa senior music students presented in a joint recital Wednesday evening in the SCI music Hall. The performance was in partial fulfillment of Bachelor of Arts music degree requirements.

Miss Finn, a mezzo-soprano, sang the following numbers: "Voi, che sapete" from "Figaro" by Mozart; "Unquiet Thoughts" and "Think'st Thou Then by Thy Feigning," Dowland; "Ah, How Pleasant 'Tis to Love" and "What Can We Poor Females Do?" by Purcell.

Also, "Das Erste Veilchen," Mendelssohn-Bartholdy; and Mendelssohn's "Neue Liebe," "Auf Flugelin des Gesanges" and "Anders Mainlief."

Sharing the recital with Miss Finn were Russell Schubert of Britt and Diane Logan of Newton, both pianists.

Wright countians at REC meeting

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Severson, who live between here and Clarion, were among the Wright county delegates who attended the 25th annual meeting of the National Rural Electric Co-operatives held in San Francisco in late February.

Other delegates from the county were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice White of Dows, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Snell of Woolstock and Wright's REC manager, Ray Willemssen of Clarion, and his wife.

Nearly 10,000 local co-op directors, employees and members attended the convention.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey made a hit as one of the major speakers; and women at the convention praised a talk given by Mrs. Humphrey at a special program for the ladies.

SCOTT A. PHIFER

Scott A. Phifer buried here—

Cancer takes life of tot age 2½

Cancer brought a tragic end to a young life full of promise when that insidious malady struck down Scott A. Phifer, 2½-year-old son of Airman and Mrs. John E. Phifer, on Tuesday of last week at Topeka, Kans. His father has been stationed at Forbes Air Force Base near there.

Funeral services were held Saturday here at the Methodist church, Rev. M. L. Jones officiating and Fulton Funeral Home in charge. Burial was in the Belmond cemetery. Pallbearers were Loren and Terry Hanson of Mason City, Timothy Walrod of Oelwein and Kermit Bohning of Rowan.

Scott Allan was born Aug. 14, 1964, in a military hospital in Weisbaden, Germany. His father was an Airman 3rd class stationed at Lindsey Air Base at that time.

His first home was in Oppenheim, Germany, on the Rhein river. At the age of four months he came by plane to the United States with his mother, and they resided in Belmond until his father returned from Germany a few months later. The same summer his father was sent to Forbes Air Base at Topeka, where the family has lived since.

In early October of 1965 it was discovered that Scotty had a ganglion cyst on his right wrist, which proved to be malignant and necessitated the amputation of his arm just above the elbow. He completely recovered and became once more, a cheerful, active little boy.

He never seemed hampered by the loss of his arm and his parents were amazed to find that he could do virtually all the things that other children of his age could do.

About a month ago it was discovered that cancer was in evidence in his left lung. Everything that medical skill and loving care could do was done for him, but to no avail. He died at a Topeka hospital at the age of two years and seven months.

He was the only child of Airman and Mrs. Phifer, his mother being the former Linda Hanson. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hanson of Mason City and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Phifer of Rowan.

Besides his parents and grandparents, the little tot is also survived by five great grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bonatt of Clarion, Mrs. Ethel Phifer of Des Moines and Mr. and Mrs. Oren Hanson, Belmond.

After their sad return to Iowa, his parents were to go to Amarillo, Tex., where Airman Phifer is to report to a new base.

JUDGMENT HANDED DOWN

On Wednesday of last week in district court at Clarion, Judge Ed J. Kelley issued a judgment against Dave Kennedy in favor of Joseph Drennan in the amount of $404.98, with seven per cent interest payable on the amount from the date of last Dec. 9. The debt represented the unpaid portion of a loan made to Kennedy by Drennan when the latter was doing business in Belmond under the name of D & O Finance company.

Birds Eye plans area operation

Howard Ragan of Waseca, Minn., field department manager for Birds Eye division of the General Foods corporation, announces that Birds Eye will inaugurate a sweetcorn operation in this area during the coming season.

Olaf Anderson of Eagle Grove has been employed to assist an assigned fieldman, Ray Rich, in contracting, planting, growing and harvesting the sweetcorn acreage.

Mr. Ragan says a majority of the sweetcorn allotment for this area has already been contracted for the 1967 season. However, farmers interested in growing sweetcorn or wishing to learn more about the operation may contact Mr. Anderson, Route 2, Eagle Grove.

Death comes at age 92 to Clarence Chamberlain

Funeral services for Clarence W. Chamberlain, 92, father of Mrs. M. L. Jones and for more than 10 years a Belmond resident, were conducted Monday afternoon of this week at the Warner Funeral Home in Spencer. Burial was in Fairview Cemetery near Spencer, which lies within the site of the Chamberlain family farm that had been homesteaded by Mr. Chamberlain's parents in 1870.

From June of 1954 until he moved to Longhouse Residence at Spencer two years ago, Mr. Chamberlain made his home here with his son-in-law and daughter, Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Jones, during which time he became acquainted with many people of this community.

He died at Spencer last Saturday at the age of 92 years, five months and 13 days.

Clarence Warren Chamberlain was born Sept. 19, 1874, in Meadow township, Clay county, on the homestead of his parents, Ebenezer Demming and Sarah Elizabeth Chamberlain. He attended country school near Pleasant Grove Farm, which was also the site of church services and revival meetings in those days.

On Nov. 25, 1897, he was married to Hattie Mae Runion and four children were born to them, Harold, Hazel, Roland and Carol.

He was one of the organizers of the Methodist church in the village of Langdon, near his birthplace, and helped with its building. He maintained a lifetime interest in the church and contributed generously to its support ever after departure from the community.

Mr. Chamberlain gained a reputation as a helpful friend and neighbor. One of his prized possessions was a badge he was presented after serving as a census taker in 1900.

His entire lifetime, except for a year he spent in Vermont with his parents as a young boy, was spent in Meadow township until he joined the household of his son-in-law upon the death of his wife.

In addition to his wife, his son Harold preceded him in death. He leaves his daughter living here; a second daughter Mrs. Mel (Carol) Conlon of Spencer; a son, Roland of Milford; daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ruth Chamberlain of Spencer; sister, Stella Learned of Wells River, Vt.; brother, Ralph of Spencer; also 10 grandchildren and 24 great grandchildren.

Hospital Notes

On March 1, Bert Brouwer of Kanawha and Joe Ziller were admitted at medical patients; Mrs. Kermit Schlei and Mrs. Louis Jurgemeyer of Klemme and Dennis Hopkey entered for surgery.

Cornelius Thompson of Clarion entered as a medical patient and Mrs. Arlynn Boelman of Mason City for surgery on March 2.

Karl Johnson, Kanawha, was admitted as a medical patient on March 5.

On March 6, Mrs. Roger Modderman of Alexander and Mrs. Floyd Broshar entered for surgery and Mrs. William Leonard of Thornton as a medical patient.

Norman Bohning ends leave here; on to Viet Nam

Warrant Officer Norman P. Bohning left Friday en route for the west coast, with Viet Nam his ultimate destination, after spending a leave of just over two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bohning.

On Feb. 14 he was commissioned as a warrant officer after completing training as a helicopter pilot at Fort Rucker in Alabama, which he had started last August.

He is to report tomorrow (Friday) to the 1062nd Army Aviation company for duty as a helicopter pilot.

En route to his overseas assignment he planned to visit with his sister, Mrs. W. K. Madison, and her husband at Eugene, Ore. On Tuesday of this week he went on to Travis Air Force Base, San Francisco, to emplane for Viet Nam.

INTERESTED VIEWER of some of the scenes that will be included in the Jaycees' Tornado Album is Maynard Holmgaard (center), who was visited at his home Monday by co-chairmen of the chapter project, Bruce Schroeder and Dick Bloemke. All printing on the album's 104 pages was to be completed this week. Then will come the job of assembling and stapling the books, which the Jaycees hope to have completed on the first run of 2,500 copies by the end of next week. Mr. Schroeder, editor-in-chief of the project, was showing Mr. Holmgaard photos of storm damage which the book will include, and a fold-out map each album will contain to help readers locate sites of the various scenes. It was all of keen interest to Maynard, who was one of the most critically injured of any of the tornado's survivors and was hospitalized at Mason City for six weeks. He was permitted to return home on his birthday, Nov. 28, but must still restrict himself to limited activity. He suffered severe injuries to his head and right arm when struck by an airborne grain bin.

Pork dinner here will attract 600

A crowd of some 600 is expected to attend the annual banquet of the Wright County Pork Producers association that is to be held Wednesday evening of next week at Belmond Community High school. Serving time is 6:30 o'clock.

This will be an all-time high for the event, which for many years prior has been an annual fixture at the Eagle Grove Memorial building and usually drew about 400. Explanation of the larger attendance is the inclusion of women this year, whereas in the past it has been a "men only" affair.

Serving will be done cafeteria style by Mattie Farmer and her hot lunch staff and the diners will eat in the gymnasium, the student center providing not enough space.

Dale Williams, well known member of the staff of radio station WOI at Ames, will headline the program held after the banquet in Luick Memorial Auditorium. Deanna Young of Clarion, 1967 National Pork Queen, will also be presented.

Parents urged to be on time for conferences

Parent-teacher conferences for all elementary classes in the Belmond Community school system will be held on Friday of next week and there will be no school that day for the elementary pupils, according to Principal Owen Bateson.

Because of the large number of kindergarten children enrolled at Ramsay, conferences with their parents will be scheduled for Thursday as well as Friday.

Mr. Bateson says that 15 minutes will be reserved for the conference with each set of parents when they are held at Belmond, Goodell at Rowan. Because a tight schedule must be followed, he urges that parents be on time.

The school calendar for Easter weekend has now been set, calling for closing of school Friday but resumption of classes on the Monday following Easter due to time lost because of weather interference.

BREWERS WILL OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY MARCH 20

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brewer of 622 W. 5th street, Liberal, Kans., on March 20 will observe their 60th wedding anniversary with an open house at the Methodist church at Liberal.

They were married March 20, 1907, at Abbott, near Ackley, and after residing at Marshalltown and later at Albert Lea, Minn., made their home for a time in Belmond.

They have lived at Liberal for the past 24 years.

Iowa Falls beaten, 63 to 59—

Late rally nips Cadets in overtime

When it's said that from the time Belmond led Iowa Falls 32-31 in the early moments of the third quarter they didn't lead again until edging ahead 60-58 in overtime, you can correctly get the idea that the Broncos by no means dominated proceedings in the district basketball finals play here last Thursday night. But they ended up with the long end of a 63-59 tally when the buzzer concluded the overtime period — and that's when it counted.

The fact of the matter is, after falling behind 12-13 as the first quarter came to a close, the Broncos led on only three occasions and then by a single point during the rest of the regulation time. Moreover, they enjoyed the luxury of a tie only twice before a 54-54 deadlock briefly preceded the 58-58 wind-up that sent action into overtime.

Rise keeps Broncos in it

Against a team that finished its season with only a 5-13 record, the Broncos — truth to tell — didn't look very good. Both teams exhibited rather wishy-washy defenses, and the Belmond offense could have looked much better than it did against the calibre of guarding it was faced with.

Bob Rise did nearly a one-man job of keeping the Broncos in contention during the first half, pouring in 15 points in the process of hitting seven out of eight field goal tries. The one shot he blew, ironically, was an easy lay-up.

In the first quarter, the lead changed hands six times before Iowa Falls managed its 13-12 advantage at the horn. Rise sent the Broncos in front 14-13 as play resumed, but the Cadets led thereafter until a basket by Gary Meyers just before halftime knotted the county at 28-all.

Trailed by six points

When the visitors went ahead 35-33, Belmond was never again in the lead until the game went into its extra period. As the third quarter ended, the Broncos trailed 44-40. They were later behind by six, 46-40, before they gradually overtook the Cadets to tie it at 54-all on a basket by Terry Nelson.

There was 2:45 left at that time. Parsons put the visitors ahead with a pair of freethrows, Nelson retaliating in kind to make it 56-56. Then Parsons hit a fielder, and with slightly over a minute remaining Nelson matched it to create the 58-58 deadlock.

Iowa Falls tried to stall for a last shot at the hoop, but with eight seconds left Meyers stole the ball and raced downcourt. His shot was knocked out-of-bounds with three seconds to go, and an attempt by Rise after the throw-in barely missed as the buzzer sounded.

Nelson gets tip-in

Nelson got a tip-in quite early in the overtime to give Belmond a 60-58 margin after Greg Fuller had failed to tally on a one-and-one freethrow opportunity. McCoy made one of two charity attempts good to slice the difference to a point, only to have Meyers do the same to reinstate the two-point pad. An easy lay-up by Fuller on a sleeper in the final seconds put the game out of the Cadets' reach.

Iowa Falls lost two men on fouls before the regulation game was over and another in overtime, which didn't do the Cadets' chances any good. The visitors were called on 24 fouls to only 13 against the Broncos; but the Belmond boys missed 14 out of 31 freethrow opportunities — six of them when the one-and-one was on — or they would not have had to scramble so for their victory.

Meyers did a fine defensive job on Don McCoy, Iowa Falls' top scorer, holding him to only two baskets and just seven points for the night. Gary himself got just 12 points, but four of them came during the catchin' up process in the late stages.

Rise led the scoring with 24 points, his season's high; Nelson, after a horrible first half, finished with 13. Tim Roberts added seven, Doug Thompsen five and Fuller two.

Deal led the Cadets' even scoring attack with 13, Parsons and Meyer each tallied 12, Peglow eight, McCoy seven, 6-foot-6 Ingebritson six and Boehmler one.

The win advanced the Broncos to the sub-state first round against Clear Lake at Mason City on Saturday night.

Broncs lose, but play it tough—

Lions take sub-state tilt 75-54

Although they took an expected licking at the hands of the much taller Clear Lake Lions last Saturday night in first-round sub-state play at Mason City, the Belmond High cagers gave their followers a good exhibition of spunk in the process. The final score was 75-54 in favor of the Lions, but it took the winners most of the first half to convince the Broncos that they were just too far out-manned to harbor any jusified hopes for a victory.

Coach Ted Besch had good reason to be proud of his crew as they wound up their season with a 14-7 record. They battled for all they were worth, and it wasn't until they begun to wear out physically from contending against impossible odds that Clear Lake took command.

After the Lions' 6-foot-6 Ken Grabinski got the opening basket, Belmond gained the lead on fielders by Tim Roberts and Gary Meyers and clung to it until the second quarter was almost half over except for a momentary tie at 10-10. The biggest gap was six points, when the Broncos briefly held a 22-16 advantage early in the second stanza.

Clear Lake then reeled off three baskets in a row to tie at 22-22. Meyers recaptured a two-point lead, which was promptly wiped out by a fielder and pair of freethrows, and Clear Lake then ran its margin to seven points before Meyers scored again for Belmond. The half ended with the Lions in front 37-30 and the Broncos were never able to threaten thereafter.

It was dead-eye shooting by Meyers that was the biggest factor in keeping Belmond in contention for so long. He connected for eight baskets in the first half to rack up 16 of the Broncos' 30 points. Before the intermission, the Blue-and-White battlers also did a fine job of rebounding under the defensive board — much better than their hight disavantage would logically have made possible.

As the end of the third quarter neared, Clear Lake had a 16-point pad — 51-35 — but the Broncos rang up 12 points to the Lions' four during the balance of the period to go into the final canto trailing by eight, 55-47. Four consecutive baskets by Clear Lake to open the last quarter put the game out of Belmond's reach; and as the Broncos went into a slow-down attack, the victors drew gradually farther and farther ahead.

Meyers was held to three points in the last half but still led Belmond scoring with 19 points. Roberts was the only other Bronco in double figures, with 11. Terry Nelson managed nine points, Doug Thompsen seven, Bob Rise six and Greg Fuller two.

Towering Grabinski and the Lions' slick guard, Bruce Evinrud, each laced the nets for 22 points for Clear Lake. Jim Elting pitched in 13, Craig Chapman (6-5) 12 and little Bob Budolfson, reserve guard, six.

Budolfson drew a starting assignment when Evinrud's regular backcourt mate, Doug Floy, last Thursday was found to have a detached retina — an eye affliction that will prevent him from playing in any more games for the Lions.

Ketchum beaten for loop crown

A Belmond High alumnus and another former Belmond resident were among the high finishers in the Iowa conference wrestling tournament held last weekend at Decorah.

Mick Ketchum, who represented BHS in the state Class A mat tournament two years ago, was runner-up in the 137-lb. class. Now a Wartburg sophomore, he was trimmed by defending champion Dan Daack of Dubuque 4-2 in a close match for the division title.

Dave Henn, a freshman teammate of Ketchum's at the Waverly school, was beaten 10-0 in the 123-lb. finals by Ralph Schroeder of Luther. His is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Henn of Clear Lake, who for many years farmed near Belmond.

You get 8 fenders on every Chevrolet

You get those four polished ones on top and an extra steel fender under each. The four you can't see shield the four you can see from road salt, water, dirt, stones—anything a tire can kick up to corrode or mar your car. It's one of the ways we make sure the new stays in a new Chevrolet. Your Chevrolet dealer will show you a dozen more.

CRAFTSMAN COMPONENTS FROM SPAHN & ROSE LUMBER COMPANY

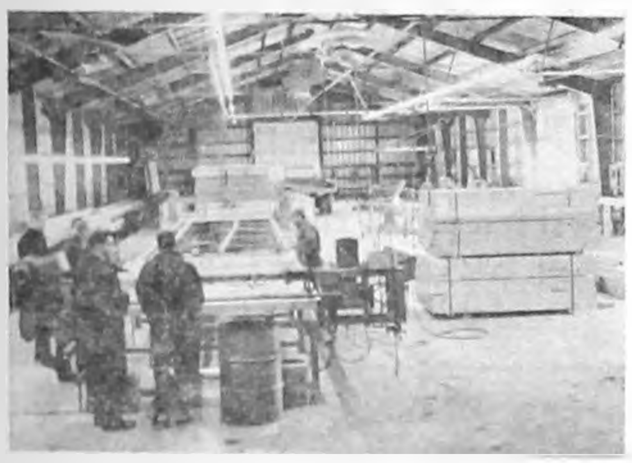
Pictured above are (left to right) Jim Copper, Marion constractor, O'Larry Dorr, Larry Flanagan, Dick Krapfl, Bob Copper, Component Homes Foreman and Jerry Stolze, Marion Spahn & Rose manager. Bob is showing the Belmond delegation the layout table where each home plan is laid out for the production line.

Here the Craftsman foreman explains the layout technique used by the Spahn and Rose subsidiary.



An overall view of the production line.

Jim Copper, whose construction firm has built more than 250 homes using Craftsman components, points out the strength of a sidewall on the production line.

Now We Can Offer You The Speed of Construction of A Pre-Fab Or Pre-Cut Home Without Sacrificing

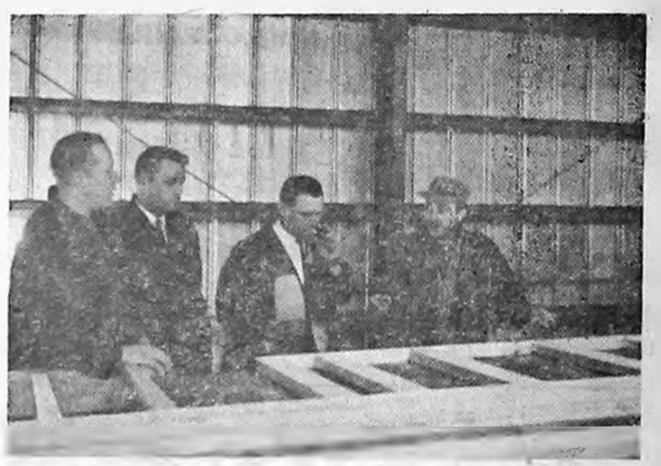
QUALITY

The Component Method of Building Enables Your Builder to Rough Finish YOUR Plan In

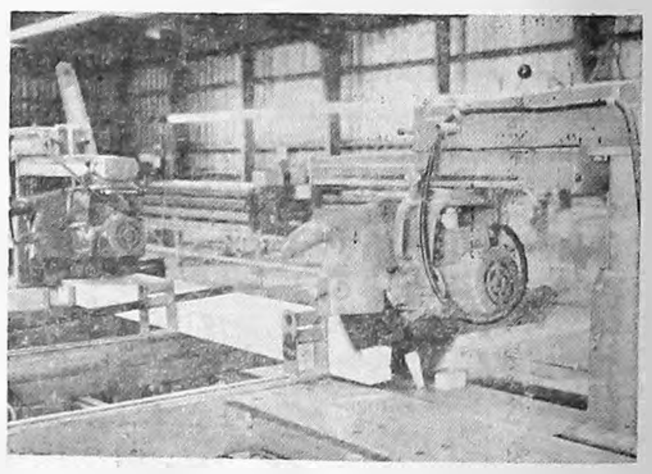
ONE DAY

Our Craftsman Component Plant in Marion Can Produce Two 1,200-1,400 sq. ft. homes Per Day. These are NOT Pre-Fabs or Pre-Cuts. Using the most modern equipment in the Mid-West and production line assembly techniques, any plan (yours or ours) can become a reality in a matter of days. Cost is nearly the same as conventional construction (perhaps a little less). The most modern production methods, strict quality control and Spahn and Rose materials mean you get the best in a minimum of time.

Here Bob Cooper demonstrates to Dorr the machine which automatically locates, holds and nails studdings.



Above, the Belmond groups examines completed sidewalls as Bob Cooper points out that specifications for any plan may be altered to suit the individual buyer.



This $9,000 saw cuts both ends of rafters for 32 ft. house accurately and automatically.

Here Jim Copper explains intricacies of machine which nails outside sheeting, cuts openings and rough finishes sidewalls.

YOUR DOG IS DEAD

WHY? Because of one of the following reasons:

1. IT DID NOT HAVE A 1967 COUNTY DOG LICENSE.
2. IT DID NOT HAVE A 1967 RABIES TAG.
3. IT WAS RUNNING IN A PACK.
4. IT WAS CHASING, MAIMING, OR KILLING LIVESTOCK

The law states that it shall be the duty of all peace officers to kill all dogs running at large that do not have a rabies tag and are not licensed for the current year. These licenses and tags are to be displayed on the dog's chain or collar.

The law states that any person, or peace officer, shall kill any dog that is chasing, maiming, or killing livestock even though it has the proper license and rabies tag.

You are liable for the damages done to other person's property by your dog.

WHERE DID ALL OF THE DOGS GO?

1964	1855 Dogs registered
1965	1803 Dogs registered
1966	1581 Dogs registered
1967	722 Dogs registered to date

Damages to livestock — damages from dogs maiming livestock is on the increase. Our domestic animal fund is depleted because owners are not licensing their dogs.

1964	$3,287.30
1965	$4,743.50
1966	$5,602.10
1967	$3,305.00 to date

The Board of Supervisors has requested that a drive be made to get all dogs either licensed or destroyed.

Those dogs running in a pack will be SHOT.

Do your part for your dog. Get it licensed and keep it at home.

Retirement home for Belmond no "lost cause" yet

Does Belmond NEED a retirement home?

In the discussion of such a proposal over recent weeks, we have at no time heard anyone question the soundness of the basic proposition. The trend of the day is to provide living facilities for our older citizens that will relieve them of the burdensome responsibility of "keeping up" a home. And if Belmond does not respond to the challenge of looking after its own, they will go where such accommodations are available.

It is a problem which we should face — as a community. It is not a simple problem to solve, as has been discovered by a small handful of civic-minded individuals who have been concerning themselves with it. Part of the trouble has, perhaps, been that it is TOO BIG a problem for a few persons to whip — no matter how dedicated to it they may be.

Moreover, it is not a problem that lends itself to QUICK solution. It requires patience; and it requires study.

An excellent start has been made, even to the extent of obtaining preliminary plans that are both attractive and practical. Thanks to the high esteem in which Dr. S. P. Leinbach is held by his associates in the Iowa Medical Society, a useful nest egg of some $8,000 to $9,000 was bestowed upon the community in sympathy for the more than a few "oldsters" who lost homes in the tornado and were precipitously placed in the position of needing a place of comfort and convenience to live out their years.

Generous though the contributions to this purpose were, the sum has proved tantalizingly small to achieve its purpose. And as a consequence, discouragement has followed on the heels of the optimistic hope that it would suffice to get a retirement home project "off the ground".

The only effort that has been made to circumvent the handicap of inadequate financing has been to solicit from the city a gift of land — the present city park — as a site for the home. The idea has definite advantages, insofar as mitigating the shortage of finances is concerned. It would provide a non-profit corporation set up to implement the retirement home plans with value-in-hand that would considerably alleviate the problem of finances.

Had the park not been usefully fulfilling its intended purpose, the idea would have decided merit. But the fact of the matter it, the park WAS being extensively used and can be at relatively reasonable cost returned to usefulness.

Plans of the Belmond Industrial Development corporation to create, in due time, an attractive park on the land adjoining the Iowa river would seem to offer a possible excuse for relinquishing the present park property. But there are obvious reasons for delaying such a step, based solely on the assumption that there may one day be a new park at the riverbank location.

These include the fact that small children have used the present park's playground equipment a good deal while Mom and Dad are shopping (or simply to get out of their own yards), and have no highway traffic hazard to face in getting there; that the tennis court was receiving steadily increasing use and can be rehabilitated much cheaper than a new one could be built; that the centrally located park offers a convenience that led to its much more extensive use than — for example — the swimming pool grounds; and that the time when the proposed riverside park would be an acceptable substitute lies an indefinite period of years in the future.

There is no question but what the park would be an "ideal" location for a retirement home from many standpoints. But other communities have made-do with less ideal locations, and Belmond could, too.

Rather than give up the entire idea of a retirement home due to the apparent unavilability of the city park as a site, a concentrated effort should first be made to ascertain what alternate locations might be obtainable. Although Garner's handsome Prairie View Apartments are farther from the business district than might be desirable, we have no personal knowledge of that fact discouraging any prospective residents who found the accommodations otherwise to their liking.

It is, after all, a RETIREMENT home for able-bodied elderly folk that is needed, not another nursing home. And in evaluating that need, the provision of satisfactory living facilities should be a much more important factor than situating them in the best of all conceivable locations.

Before the project is dropped, consideration of the problems involved should be extended to encompass communitywide thinking on the matter. Other communities have been faced with, and overcome, every problem we have to contend with here. Finances, location — ALL of them.

Careful and open-minded study of just HOW these problems were met elsewhere could very well make our own problems appear much less insurmountable.

Now — about tax exemptions for us pet-keepers

We read about this fellow who was pretty burned up when the internal revenue service disallowed his claiming his dog as a dependent. Complained the canine's master, "I'm the sole support of my dog and she eats only the best in dog food; she cost over $60 last year for veterinarian fees" . . . and then, there were county and municipal dog taxes, too.

Ernest Bacon, the spoil-sport they have as state director of the IRS, replied that dogs could never be considered as exemptions, regardless of the cost of their health bills or food.

What WE think is, we pet owners should unite. Certainly there should be SOME consideration given us kindhearted folk who provide board and keep for domesticated pets. They do COST, you know.

Personally, we have the feeling that one dog, two cats and a parakeet should be the equivalent of one exemption. We don't count the two toads in the basement, because they pretty much look after themselves — and we don't know for sure if they'll come out of hibernation again this spring.

Couple of weeks ago, Pup got in a three-way argument with a police dog and an elk hound, and — unsurprisingly — came out third best. That necessitated a couple of trips to the vet's. It all adds up.

The IRS seemed to think this fellow was kinda funny, asking an exemption on account of his dog. Well, we don't. Just another example of the heartlessness of big government, if you ask us.

What we'll bet is, this guy Bacon doesn't even own a canary. We'd just like to see him provide board for a police dog or an elk hound for a year's time and THEN hear what he'd have to say. It'd sure open up HIS eyes a bit!

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

REPUBLICAN LEGISLATORS have offered a compromise plan to end the reapportionment stalemate which has threatened to block action on a host of other omportant problems facing Iowans.

The plan would achieve three goals — reduce the membership in the House and Senate for the 1969 legislative session, set a permanent reapportionment plan in the constitution and require all legislators to be elected from single-member districts.

The key to the compromise is the reduction of the Senate from its present 61 members to 50 and the House from 124 to 100. In announcing the compromise, House Republican leaders praised their members for the unselfish action.

It has long been acknowledged that smaller legislative houses would provide Iowans with a more workable and more enconomical General Assembly.

HOWEVER, AT NO TIME SINCE the reapportionment debates began several years ago has either house managed to reduce the number of its own members. For example, in the last session, when Democrats had control of both houses, there was not even any effort made to reduce the membership.

Reduction is difficult because it involves legislators cutting up their own districts where they have earned the privilege of representing their constituents through hard-fought election campaigns — campaigns in which the senators and representatives have invested their time, energy and money. It means enlarging the size of districts.

As with most compromises, it was not unanimously supported. However, the other parts of the plan call for passage of the Republican permanent reapportionment plan, which includes a provision requiring the election of all members from single-member districts.

THIS REQUIREMENT OF MANdatory subdistricting was a key Republican aim. Republicans said they expected the Democrats to accept the compromise, since it was one of three alternatives that party presented to GOP members earlier.

"We fully expect them to live up to their agreement," Republican leaders said.

Te actual plans for the new districts will be drawn by a bipartisan 10-member commission, according to the bill containing the compromise.

The commission's plan must be approved by the legislature before it becomes operative for the next elections.

RESOLVING THE EIGHT-WEEK reapportionment deadlock was given top priority by Republican leaders in order to get to efforts to solve such other major state problems as governmental reorganization, increased school aid and tax problems.

There was some feeling that going ahead with the immediate reduction in the legislative seats and still handle the other problems would add to the length of the session.

But if the accomplishments can be done, the time will be well spent.

IN AN ATTEMPT TO GET AT the most important matters on the calendar, the Senate, by unanimous consent, advanced Senate File 294 to the top of the calendar by special order.

This is an act relating to the reorganization of the office of governor, state personnel director, commission on aging, civil rights commission, and higher education facilities commission, and all agencies now in existence or hereafter established pursuant to a section in the Code which provides that the Governor is authorized to accept for the State the funds provided by any act of Congress for the State of Iowa.

AFTER THE MATTER CAME up for debate it became apparent to many members of the Senate that this bill contained many elements of a civil service bill. Because each party has a rather comprehensive civil service bill, it was decided to postpone further action on this combined reorganization and civil service bill until the legislature had compromised the differences on the two major civil service bills.

The major difference in the two parties' civil service bills concerns the question of testing current employees, and it is believed possible to compromise this matter. I am hopeful this action can come soon.

VERY LITTLE LEGISLATION was considered until Friday of last week because of the press of other Senate business, which included the consideration of many appointments and conducting of a public hearing on the matter of personal property tax.

During the public hearing, the Senate leadership tried to set the public at ease by explaining why they have kept all measures relating to tax reform in committee.

It was explained that the ways and means committee is studying all phases of the problem and when their work is completed they promised that they would bring out a committee bill on property tax relief that would provide for replacement revenues and they further promised that the source of the replacement money would not fall back upon real estate property.

This is encouraging news and I hope that the pressure which has brought both parties to the realization that tax reform is a "must" will not relent.

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by
IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION

"OMBUDSMAN"—

Four freshmen Republican Senator have introduced a bill in the Iowa Senate to create a new state office of "public protector," or "Ombudsman." They say passage of this bill would place Iowa in the lead in this country in administrative justice.

The concept is patterned after the original Swedish Ombudsman, people's watchdog or grievance man, first established in 1809. Since then it has been adopted in Denmark, Finland, Norway, New Zealand, and in 1965, Great Britain.

In the U. S., bills for an Ombudsman have been proposed not only in the Congress, but in California, Connecticut, Illinois, New York and Rhode Island.

THE PUBLIC PROTECTOR IS A people's representative who would provide Iowans "with an effective method to examine administrative action and to safeguard them against possible administrative excess and abuse," according to the bill's sponsors.

The public protector would be free of executive control and authority and would be nominated by the Supreme Court of Iowa for confirmation by two-thirds of the General Assembly, for a six-year term. He would be non-partisan, and could not hold any public office for either four years before or after his tenure of office.

The bill's sponsors are Senators James Potgetter, Steamboat Rock; John Walsh, Dubuque; Roger Jepsen, Davenport; and Arthur Neu, Carroll.

THEY SAID THE PROTECTOR "has the authority to investigate, either on a complaint by a citizen, or at his own discretion, any decision or act by state departments and agencies so as to promote higher standards of competence, efficiency and justice in the administration of state laws.

"The public protector's goal is not only to seek justice for individuals, but to analyze grievances and seek better administration by finding the root cause. His power lies in the prestige of his office and the publicity attending his written reports."

APPOINTMENT VOTED DOWN—

The Senate chamber was still. The Senate was giving its undivided attention to each speaker. The question at hand was whether to confirm the appointment of Gene Needles as state safety commissioner, a post he has held the past 14 months.

Word had floated around the chamber that Republicans were going to vote as a bloc against Needles' confirmation. There were some tense moments as Democrats urged that Needles be confirmed, which requires 41 votes.

Only two Republican senators took the floor to oppose the confirmation of Needles — Sen. Robert Rigler, New Hampton and Tom Riley, Cedar Rapids.

THEY EMPHASIZED THAT Needles was being challenged "not on character or integrity" but because his background (he's a lawyer) does not qualify him for the post. At one point, Riley charged that Needles had not done his homework regarding appearances before legislative study committees.

As expected, Needles was not confirmed. The vote was 33 to 24 with only two Republicans joining the 32 Senate Democrats to support the appointment. Senator Andy Frommelt has filed a motion to reconsider, so the matter is not ended.

MEANWHILE, GOV. HAROLD Hughes has submitted the name of a Presbyterian pastor to the Iowa liquor commission. He is the Rev. Carl Sinning, 54, of Manning, who will succeed Jay Colburn, Harlan Republican. Rev. Sinning has been a member of the Iowa commission on alcoholism.

Hughes also has named State Representative Cecil Reed, Cedar Rapids Republican, to the Iowa employment comission. Reed will replace Ross Carrell, 71, Des Moines.

UTILITIES—

The Senate commerce committee has appointed a three-member subcommittee to look into the rates charged by Iowa utilities. The committee was apointed after Sen. Warren Kruck complained about "excessively high rates" paid by Iowa utility customers.

Members of the subcommittee are Senators William Denman, Des Moines Democrat; Joseph Flatt, Winterset Republican; and Kruck, Boone Democrat.

BUS DEBATE COMING UP—

The Senate will debate the controversial issue of providing free bus transportation to non-public school students. A Senate committee has voted out a "school-bus bill' for floor debate. This particular bill calls for transporting private school students along established public school bus routes to the closest point to the private school.

SALARY LIMIT ASKED—

Two state representatives from Burlington have introduced a bill to limit salaries of all teachers and administrators in the public school system to 80 per cent of the salary paid to State Superintendent of Public Instruction Paul Johnston.

The measure was introduced by Representatives Charles Miller and Milton Distelhorst, both Democrats. Johnston's current salary is $18,000 a year; 80 per cent of that is $14,400.

STUDDED TIRES OK'ED—

Both houses have passed a bill to legalize studded snow tires in Iowa. The bill now awaits the Governor's signature. The bill authorizes the use of the tires between Nov. 1 and April 1.

Used to print The Belmond Herald—

Files yield 1st-hand data on Lovejoy press

As readers of The Independent must know by now, one facet in the history of newspapering in Belmond in which Ye Ed has taken much interest was ownership by an early-day predecessor of The Independent of the famous "Lovejoy press".

This was the press on which the Lovejoy brothers, Owen and Elijah, published an abolitionist newspaper at Alton, Ill., in the days before the Civil War when the question of slavery was being argued with steadily increasing bitterness.

In 1858, a pro-slavery mob attacked the Lovejoy's printing office, murdered Owen, and threw the brothers' press along with other equipment of their establishment into the Mississippi river.

The straight of it

Most of our information regarding the ultimate acquisition of the press by Editor-Publisher Frank Gates of The Belmond Herald was hearsay, derived from occasional mentions in Belmond newspapers of later days — until we plucked from the files a volume containing the 1876-78 issues of The Herald from which to exract 'way-back-when items of 90 years ago.

In perusing this aged file, we ran into a direct reference to the Lovejoy press which included comments by Mr. Gates, himself. They were preceded by a clipping from the Wright County Monitor of Clarion, as follows:

"The Belmond Herald office, in this county, has a press which is claimed to be the one that was dumped into the river at the time Owen Lovejoy was murdered.

Out of river in '58

"The history of the press is straight as a string, and we have no doubt that it is the identical press, but we notice that there is another press in Iowa that is claimed to be the Lovejoy press — one now in use in the Stuart Register's office.

"It too has a history, which is given in the 'History of Guthrie County.' The link which we don't like is 'it has changed hands a great many times and finally,' etc.

"No, gentlemen, the Lovejoy press is in this county, and prints our contemporary, the Belmond Herald, every week. Its history can be obtained of Geo. E. Frost, or of Hon. Marcus Tuttle, at Clear Lake, as we believe both of these gentlemen know all about it."

Was bought for $35

On the heels of this article in the Monitor, the following appeared in The Clear Lake Observer:

"Correct, Bro. Monitor, the Belmond Herald's is the identical Lovejoy press.

"After Lovejoy's office was mobbed and thrown into the river at Alton, Ill., it laid there until 1858, when W. R. Mead of the Cresco Plain Dealer bought the FIND as it lay in the river for $35.00, went to work and raised the press, a quantity of type, cuts and material and carried them to New Oregon, Howard county, and published the Plain Dealer on the press at New Oregon and the Cresco until 1870.

"When he enlarged his paper we bought the press of him for $100, brought it to Clear Lake and used it in the Observer office until we sold the old office, when it was taken from here to Belmond.

Manufactured in England

"Its identity is fully established and its history straight from the hour it was taken from the river until now, and it never has been used except in only three offices, to-wit:

"Cresco Plain Dealer, by W. R. Mead; Clear Lake Observer, Geo. E. Frost; and Belmond Herald, where it can be seen today. Mr. Mead can give a full history of it from the time it was brought from England until he bought it.

"It was first used in Western New York to print the first Abolition newspaper published in the United States. Mr. Mead still has a number of the old cuts of a running negro with his bundle, that were used by Lovejoy, and when we sold the office there was quite a lot of the identical Long Primer type in the office that was taken out of the river with the press.

Good for another 100

"When we saw the press last it was in good order and likely to last 100 years. Will Bro. Mead give us its early history?"

Adding his own comments to the above, Mr. Gates has this to say in the Dec. 15, 1876, issue of The Herald:

"Lately, several of our exchanges have been poking their pencils into the history of a press upon which the Herald is printed; but we have been waiting to hear from Bro. Frost of the Clear Lake Observer, and now it comes, as will be seen above.

"We knew Mr. Frost held the historic key-note to the old machine at our elbow and we are satisfied now that the identical press used in this office is the Lovejoy machine.

Only one of its kind?

"The 'Long Primer' you mention, Bro. Frost, is not here, however. It was probably removed to Hampton when a division of the office took place a few months after its establishment in Belmond. The press is good for another round centennial yet, as you say; and this week's issue of the Herald is a fair sample of the work it turns out.

"It has undergone needed repairs since passing into our hands, but you would know it among a thousand presses. By the looks of the 'old concern,' it was the only one of the kind ever manufactured, the first one being enough to paralyze the brain of the inventor.

"Like the Observer, we want to hear from Mr. Mead, its resurrector from the waters of the Mississippi."

Finally sold to museum

This would seem to be the story of the Lovejoy press. It remained in use here until Mr. Gates enlarged the paper's size from five to six columns in 1879. It was presumably at this approximate time that he sold the press to the Libby Prison Commission of Chicago, which was setting up a museum and wanted the Lovejoy press as an anti-slavery relic.

The historical issue of The Independent published July 30, 1925, related some of the above facts and observed of the much-traveled press, "It can be seen in the Chicago Museum today."

From the appearance of the issues of The Belmond Herald in our files, the venerable press did a better than adequate job of printing to the very end of its active life. We'd go so far as to say that on days when our present press (venerable in its own right) is giving us fits, we wouldn't mind having the old Lovejoy back again.

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Whatever the rating of Rep. Ray Bailey may be with his Wright county constituents (and we can see no reason why it shouldn't be high), he is certainly A-1 in the Des Moines Register's book. Of the Wright countian, the Register stated in a news story Monday: "A painstakingly honest man is State Representative Ray Bailey (Dem., Clarion). He would not purposely mislead anybody."

The story went on to state that Mr. Bailey was given short shrift at the meeting held Monday evening of last week at Clarion under sponsorship of the Wright County Taxpayers association. When he wouldn't agree to say what was more or less written into the "script" for him, he was merely introduced and then permitted to sit silent on the sidelines.

Bill Reichardt, the Des Moines clothier and state representative, is gung-ho for elimination of such personal property taxes as those on inventories for fairly obvious reasons. Ray Bailey can't see it as much of an achievement, though, if personal property taxes are repealed at the expense of a FURTHER tax increase on real property. That's what made him persona non grata at the tax meeting.

Reichardt and some others primarily interested in personal property tax repeal, regardless of how the revenue loss is made up, were carrying the ball at last week's meeting at Clarion. It was a pressure-group proposition, to Bailey's thinking.

He's not a whit opposed to suggested tax revision to the benefit of payers of personal property taxes; but he insists it must be accompanied by increases in sales and income tax so real estate owners don't bear the brunt of the revenue loss.

Ray told the Register, "To tax real estate owners on income from real estate already bearing a sizeable property tax, to help pay rightful property taxes of individuals whose personal property has been removed from the tax roles, does not seem just."

Those "old-timers" of the BHS Class of '62 are hereby advised that a meeting it to be held on Saturday, March 25, at 2:30 p. m. relative to planning a five-year reunion of the class members for the current year. Drum-beater for the prospective event is Mrs. Vernon (Judy Gordon) McLaughlin and the planning session will be held at the V. V. McLaughlin farm. She says, if you're interested in seeing the reunion come about, "Please come!"

John Ubben, who likes nothing better than to watch the Fords go by, has earned membership in the Ford Motor company's Lincoln-Mercury "100 club" for an outstanding sales record during 1966.

Since John wouldn't live very high off the hog on his Lincoln sales, we suspect, it is our assumption that Mercury peddling must be his forte. A salesman must rank in the top third of the division's salesmen to become a "100 club" member.

On April 3, the Twin Cities district will be passing out awards to its star salesmen at the Radisson Hotel in Minneapolis. And Belmond Motors' J. Ubben will be right there to get his share of the hardware.

Time to take a gander at The Old Farmer's Almanac to see what weather's brewing for Sunday, March 26th. Of course, the Beta Sigma Phi sorority sisters will tell you, "It won't help." So, in unison, they're simply crossing their fingers that 1967's earlier-than-usual Easter will produce weather that's tolerant of egg-hunters. They are winding up plans for their popular, annual egg hunt. Lads and lassies up to (and including) the age of eight are to gather at the library corner at 7:45 a. m. to be escorted to the hunting grounds. More details next week.

Administrator Marc Ihm says he's been asked with some concern by a number of persons if the sort of tragedy that recently happened at Grundy Center could occur at Belmond Community hospital. You may recall that tanks containing oxygen and nitrous oxide were switched around when a couple of patients were given anesthetics. Since nitrous oxide (a deadly poison) was administered as the oxygen SHOULD have been, the mistake was fatal to the two patients.

Marc took the front Mainstreeter to the operating room to demonstrate why such an error simply could NOT "happen here". Tanks containing each type of gas used for anesthesia are equipped with pegs that permit them to be installed ONLY where they belong.

Barring the crudest sort of error on the part of the anesthetist (here, an even more highly trained anesthesiologist), a mix-up just couldn't occur at the Belmond hospital. Such an error would be akin to stomping on the accelorator when you're aiming at the brake, says Marc — which requires a good deal of plain stupidity. With an adept anesthesiologist at the throttles, such things don't happen. So if you have surgery coming up, face it confidently.

FOUR ON SCI DEAN'S LIST

Four Belmond Community High school alumni were among 585 at State College of Iowa who were named on the Dean's List for the fall semester. They were Diana Andrews of Rowan, Jeanne Finn, Paul Hauge and Janis Mennenga. Approximately eight per cent of the student body got grade averages ranging from 3.25 to 4.0, which was required for this scholastic recognition.

Mrs. R. Keppers consents to direct Crusade again

Mrs. Roger Keppers of Eagle Grove has agreed to serve again as chairman of the Wright county Cancer Crusade. Dwight Tyrrell, chairman of the county chapter of the American Cancer Society, says, "The Wright county ACS directors regard they have been extremely fortunate to obtain Mrs. Keppers as Crusade director for the second consecutive year."

Under her guidance in 1966, Wright county maintained its customary position as one of the top leaders in the state as to support of the Cancer Crusade. Wright not only reached its goal, as it has annually for more than 15 years, but ranked third in the state in per capita giving.

Total contributions to the Crusade last year averaged 42.4 cents for every man, woman and child in the county. This was 15.7 cents over the state average and was surpassed by only two of Iowa's 103 chapters.

Wright's goal for 1967 has been set at $6,495. This is a figure that has been surpassed by Crusades in this county regularly in recent years, and Mrs. Keppers expresses confidence that it will be exceeded in 1967, too.

Mrs. Keppers notes that 34 per cent of the funds received by the ACS are devoted to research, and that 60 per cent of each dollar collected in Iowa remains in the state to carry on activities of the society.

During the 1965-66 fiscal year, research grants in the amount of $52,000 were allotted to Iowa scientists to carry on a variety of research projects pertaining to cancer. Most of these are conducted at the University of Iowa.

The Iowa division of ACS has announced: "Today there is a shortage of available funds for cancer research. The ACS nationally is short more than one and a half million dollars needed to underwrite priority projects.

"Because of the increasing demands of the Viet Nam war, federal cancer research programs are in jeopardy. The result will be even greater demands on groups such as the American Cancer Society."

Special services at Baptist church

Rev. Louis Miller extends an invitation to the public to attend meetings that will comprise a round-robin missionary conference at the Calvary Baptist church starting Sunday and extending through next Wednesday.

Speaker at the 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. services Sunday will be Rev. Harold Dark, a veteran missionary to Central Africa.

All the week-day evening services will start at 7:30 o'clock. On Monday night the speaker will be Rev. Robert Harris of East Alton, Ill., a missionary appointee to Alaska. His wife will offer some vocal numbers.

Bruce Anderson of Watertown, S. D., missionary appointee to Chile, will speak on Tuesday. His wife, the former Marlene Radloff of Garner, will provide musical entertainment on the saxophone.

Rev. Kenneth Farnsworth of Cedar Falls will bring the closing message on Wednesday. Before becoming pastor of Cedar Heights Baptist church at Cedar Falls he served Baptist churches in Michigan and engaged in mission work in addition to directing extensive building programs.

ATTENDED RITES HERE

Christenson at St. Olaf church, were: Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Johnshoy and family of Huron, S. D., Rev. and Mrs. Dwane Shay of Clear Lake, S. D., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson of Des Moines and Mrs Ed Bather of Minneapolis.

ANNUAL FFA SWEETHEART dance of the Belmond High school chapter of Future Farmers of America was held last Friday night at the BHS student center, highlighted by crowning of the 1967 "Sweetheart". This honor went to Frances McLaughlin, daughter of the Ed McLaughlin's, a senior. She is shown above receiving from Earl Kalkwarf the honorary jacket that is bestowed upon each FFA Sweetheart.

10 in examination for auditor's job

County Auditor Ethel West received a telephone call Monday from a staff member of the Iowa state tax commission, Ballard Tipton, advising that 10 applications had been received from persons interested in the examination to be given candidates for the Wright county assessor's job.

This examination was to be administered in the district courtroom in the courthouse at 10:00 a. a. Wednesday of this week Mr. Tipton said it would take about three hours to complete the examination.

He added that the results will probably not be known for 10 days to two weeks after the examination date. A grade score of 70 per cent or more is required for a candidate to receive further consideration as an applicant for the position of auditor.

WRONG MRS. FARRELL

An item published a short while back in The Independent noted the belatedly reported death of a one-time Belmondite, who before her marriage was Mabel Meeker. Her married name was mistakenly given as Mrs. J. J. Farrell and should have been Mrs. Will Farrell. She died the latter part of last year at Portland, Ore., which had been her home for a number of years.

The Centralets have also performed at out-of-town events, including an appearance last week at the girls state high school basketball tournament.

Clear Lake man new JD dealer

New proprietor of the former Silvey Implement company is Darrel Morehouse of Clear Lake. He is no stranger to the implement field — or the John Deere line — having for the past nine years been associated with Woollum's Implements, which handles John Deere at Mason City.

Mr. Morehouse plans to commute to his work for the time being. He has a new home at Clear Lake, which he wants to sell before considering a move to Belmond.

Darrel is married and has two children, a six-year-old son in school and a three-year-old daughter.

The firm he has taken over now goes under the name of Morehouse Implement.

Class held here for ag' teachers

Belmond Community High school's vo-ag room is the site of an off-campus course being offered by Iowa State university, Ames, for the benefit of high school vo-ag instructors of this area.

First of 11 weekly class sessions was held last Thursday night. Keith Carlson, local vo-ag teacher, was among the 18 enrolled for the start of the class. Another three were expected to join the group this week.

Prof. Clarence Bundy, head of the agricultural education department at ISU, is teaching the class, for which three hours of graduate credit toward a Master's degree will be given.

Title of the course is: "Educational Implications of Agricultural Adjustment."

CHORAL READING GROUP SETS APPEARANCE HERE

An unusual event is scheduled for Thursday of next week at 7:30 o'clock at the Immanuel Reformed church when a "concert" will be presented by the Choral Readers of Northwestern college at Orange City.

Thirty-six students are in the group, which is directed by Dr. Theora England of the college's speech and drama department. It's the only group of its kind touring the U. S. The public is cordially invited to hear the unison reading, which has impressed audiences from coast to coast.

Lots of land changing hands at "$1-plus"

While The Independent does not make a regular practice of publishing real estate transfers (as do some newspapers), due to a rather chronic lack of space, the publishers regard that the numerous local transactions that have taken place since the tornado might be of greater than ordinary interest to our readers.

Not all of the extraordinarily large number of transactions listed in the deed record at the county recorder's office since mid-October stemmed from the disaster, but a large portion of them did.

Following are transfers of Belmond land recorded from Oct. 25 to the end of last year. It is planned to publish the rest to current date next week, if possible — or in an early issue if space is not available next week.

A LONG AWAITED ribbon-cutting took place Friday when a Chamber of Commerce delegation visited Jim Havens' Model Cleaners for a ceremonial snipping that marked that establishment's reopening. That many people had been patiently awaiting the occasion was made evident by the deluge of garments that flowed into the cleaning shop with the announcement that it was back in business for the first time since the tornado.

Mrs. Christenson's funeral services conducted Monday

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at St. Olaf Lutheran church for Mrs. O. G. Christenson, who died last Friday at the Belmond Community hospital. She had reached the age of 83.

Rev. Oscar Laaveg officiated over the rites and Eyler Funeral Home of Clarion was in charge. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery at Clarion. Pallbearers, all grandsons of the deceased, were: Jack Spitler, Richard Christenson, David Christenson, Arnold Allen, Keith Christenson and Charles Christenson.

Born in Trondhjem, Norway on April 13, 1883, Anna Pauline Wenos was the daughter of John and Marie Wenos. As a child she came to this country with her parents, who settled near Holmes in Wright county. She was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith.

On Jan. 23, 1902, she was married to Oluf George Christenson. Ten children were born to them, a daughter Alice Irene dying in infancy. The children surviving are: Nellie (Mrs. Talferd) Johnson, Marie (Mrs. John) Spitler and John Christenson of Belmond; George, of Britt; Clifford, of Scarville; Earl, of Bricelyn, Minn.; Ruby (Mrs. Alvin) Allen, Garner; Lloyd, of Kanawha; and Maxine (Mrs. Roy, Mauritson, Hayward, Calif.

Mrs. Christenson also leaves 29 grandchildren and 33 great grandchildren; a brother, Julius Wenos, Rock Island, Ill.; and a sister, Mrs. G. E. (Isabel) Burkholder, Minneapolis, Minn.

Her husband, three brothers and three sisters preceded her in death, in addition to the infant daughter.

Mrs. Christenson spent all her married life on farms in Wright county, 43 of those years in Norway township. Since the death of her husband she had made her home with various of her children.

CRAMERS RETURN HOME AFTER TRIP TO TEXAS

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cramer returned home a week ago Wednesday from a 2½-week trip to Texas. They visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rohn, at Weslaco.

They also spent some time with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sodd at Houston. Mr. Sodd and Mr. Cramer, were Army buddies and hadn't seen each other for 23 years.

The Cramers also visited Mr. and Mrs. Augustine Rocha and family at Kansas City, Mo. The men were high school classmates.

Hearing Monday re sale of dump ground to BIDC

A public hearing will be held Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock at the Belmond city hall relative to a transfer of city property to the Belmond Industrial Development corporation.

Involved would be Lots 1, 2, 3 and and 4 of the Auditor's Plat of the NE¼ of the NW¼ of Section 19, Township 93 North, Range 23 West of the 5th P. M., Wright county.

This includes all the property contained in the city dump grounds and that extending north to the County U blacktop (or Immanuel Church road). Because the dump was filled to overflowing by tornado debris, the land is regarded by the council as "unneeded property" insofar as municipal purposes are concerned.

Property leased by the city from the Rock Island railroad is presently being used for deposit of rubbish.

Consideration being asked of the BIDC for the land specified is one dollar. Don Bancroft, BIDC president, says the corporation plans to sell the north 600 feet of the property for the same financial consideration to an industrial concern that is interested in locating a facility there.

If the proposed transaction materializes, as the BIDC confidently expects, it would mean a very sizeable investment in taxable property on the location by the concern interested in it.

While the BIDC prefers to release no details relative to the transaction prior to its becoming final, the directors who have been working out arrangements with the concern in question are enthusiastic over the benefits the community could reap from the payroll that would be brought to Belmond.

OPEN HOUSE WILL MARK BAMFORDS' ANNIVERSARY

Children of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Bamford have planned an open house at the Olde Belmond Inn this Sunday in honor of their parents' 25th wedding anniversary. All relatives and friends of the couple are invited to greet them between the hours of 2:00 and 5:00 p. m. No invitations are being sent.

37 to get free hams

Thirty-seven families in Belmond or its trade territory will be enjoying free ham for Easter breakfast through the courtesy of that number of local business concerns. Coupons appearing in this issue are to be signed (anyone age 16 or over may do so) and deposited in registration boxes to be found in the various stores and offices. Each firm will draw a winner on Good Friday, March 24, and notify the lucky individual that he or she has a 5-lb. ham coming. Full details of the Easter promotion will be found in a full-page advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

GOODWILL TRUCK COMING

Unlike many other countries where handicapped persons are reduced to begging for a living, such individuals in the U. S. often find it possible to be gainfully employed. Goodwill Industries helps to that end by providing a number with jobs repairing donated clothing and household articles. Next collection of such items in Belmond will be made by a Goodwill truck on Thursday, March 30. Rev. M. L. Jones can advise where contributed articles may be left for pick-up at that time.

G. Luick attends school for police

Officer Gary Luick of the Belmond Police department was among 80 Iowa law enforcement officers attending the 15th annual Police Command School conducted by the University of Iowa's bureau of police science Monday through Wednesday of this week.

Topics of the school's lectures and discussions included the changing position of the police, supervisory methods and leadership skills and like topics.

CONFIRMATION SUNDAY

A special service on Palm Sunday will see the following young people confirmed at St. John Lutheran church, with Rev. Leo Andersen in charge of the ceremony: Michele Roberts, Charles Bell, Douglas Thompson, Terry Ausborn, Fred Erdman, Paul Rogalla, Warren Smit and Dale Pletsch.

MAKES ISU DEANS' LIST

Bill Heinzig, a BHS graduate and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Homervold, was named on the Deans' List for the recently concluded quarter at Iowa State university, Ames. His father, former pastor of St. John Lutheran church Rev. William Heinzig, and mother now live at Sibley, Ill.

More farmers in adult ed' class lost than gained on corn futures

Precarious though it may be at times, farming for a living still has playing the board of trade beat. That was the conviction of 54 farmers in the adult education night class of Keith Carlson, high school vo-ag instructor, after a 10-week experience of playing the grain market "on paper".

The same experiment had been conducted in the class a year ago, but with the speculators permitted to invest in a variety of commodities. The farmers didn't do too badly in '66, turning a $128,000 profit on capital of $396,000. Seventeen out of 53 who "played the market," though, lost money.

This time there were more losers than gainers. Only 22 out of 54 ended up ahead as speculation was limited to investment in the May corn futures market; and the total starting capital of $324,000 had shrunk by $12,146 at the end of the course period.

Nobody "made hay" this time like George Pals, the contest winner a year ago. He built his stake of $9,000 up to $46,510. The best success enjoyed by any of the investors this time was that of Lambert Barkema, who ran his stake of $6,000 up to $17,994 — a gain of $11,994.

Close behind Barkema was Carl Mennenga, who picked up $11,656 on astute speculation, and John Diekhuis, who clear $11,468 on his market efforts. Fourth place was held by Lloyd Fuller, who gained $11,066.

It was apparent that the class members were on solider ground when guessing the corn market than when they had a choice of futures in live cattle, pork bellies and soybeans as well as corn.

The four prize winners were given a choice of rewards. Mr. Barkema claimed a bushel of Tomco seed corn; Mr. Mennenga, $25 in feed from North Central Grain; Mr. Diekhuis, a bushel of Pioneer seed corn; and Mr. Fuller, $50 worth of feed grinding and mixing from Farmers Grain.

"Booby prizes" of $5.00 each were awarded to Gary Gabrielson and Roger Tendall for having the poorest success in the class. Gary lost the most money — $4,318, having only $1,682 left at the end of the 10 weeks. Roger distinguished himself by losing money six weeks in a row. He had $1,767 left after losing $4,233.

Three new members were elected to the vocational agriculture advisory council as the night class banqueted at the Gold Key restaurant at Hampton after the close of the adult education course. They were Harold Nelson, Don Goeman and Gary Gabrielson. Each will serve a two-year term.

They joined DuWayne Kalkwarf, Charles Wilmarth and Reuben Nelson on the committee.

SUCCESSFUL "PLUNGERS" FULLER AND BARKEMA

Ends 46 years as garageman—

Charley Keith reminisces about early cars

(Charley Keith of Rowan has brought to a close 46 years as a businessman in that community by selling his garage building and business to Max Bruns and Don Smith, who operate Bruns and Smith Welding shop. The occasion prompted Mr. Keith to dip into his store of memories for the following reminiscences, which old-timers should find of particular interest.)

By Charles H. Keith

It doesn't seem quite adequate for me to simply say we sold our business and we are thankful for your support, so I will indulge in a little reminiscing

Back in 1896 my folks started a wood working business in a building where the telephone office once stood. That was before the day of automobiles. The main stock in trade was wagons, wagon wheels, buggies, sled runners and related items. Then along came horse-shoeing, iron working, and the forming of things which could be made on an anvil or welded in the forge.

Not long after that a contraption commonly called the automobile appeared on the scene. How well I remember our old Model F Buick with a chain drive, two cylinders under the back seat, and the gas tank where the radiator now is; also the old Metz with stick to steer it.

The main stock in trade those days were car springs — which were always broken, tires that blew out with the slightest provocation, spark plugs that wouldn't stay clean, and similar items that were the source of a thousand other troubles. Those cars would only run in the summer time. They sat comfortably on blocks in the winter, while their owners debated how many tires they would need to venture out again in the spring.

That was also the time before gas pumps, canned oil, and the other necessities and luxuries which comprise today's motoring. Gasoline was shipped in from Cedar Rapids in barrels and I remember we had a hundred gallon tank in an out shed; also a funnel with a chamois in it, which was the forerunner of Standard's "final filter."

Then along came Henry with his Ford, affectionately known as Lizzie. At least he conceived one thing — that was a transmission with bands, the same principle still used in modern automatic transmissions.

The first Lizzies came with Prest-o-lite tank and a small gas burner for headlights. Night driving was not a hazard, as no one could see to be out. On them the front spark plugs always fouled, the bands were usually loose, the timer needed oiling, and the coil points needed filing.

The backyard engineers really had a ball with Lizzie. You could buy a gadget with a cable on it which replaced the hand crank, if you were strong enough to pull it. A hundred different kinds of ignitions, a glass frame to put on instead of side curtains, and for $1 60 (no sales tax) you could have it equipped with a foot gas-feed so that both hands were free to herd it down the road.

I still remember how they told that it shook more hell out of people than all the preachers could.

Then gradually, the automobile industry took its rightful place in the country's economy until today it employs, directly or indirectly, one person in every 10, turns out a product as comfortable as any fine home, and has an influence on all our lives whether we like it or not.

During my 46 years of service I have been privileged to serve four generations in two different families as well as a host of other friends and many people whose travels brought them to Rowan.

To say that Laura and I are thankful seems like an empty gesture; but to say our hearts are full of gratitude and joy for the consideration we have always been shown would more nearly express our feelings.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS J. SMIDT

Gayle Gabrielson, Louis J. Smidt wed at Trinity church Feb. 25th

Miss Gayle Gabrielson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Gabrielson, became the bride of Louis J. Smidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Smidt of Britt, Saturday evening, Feb. 25, at Trinity Lutheran church with Rev. O. Laaveg performing the double-ring ceremony.

Lighted candles and bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums decorated the chancel.

Mrs. Don Bunnell as organist played the nuptial music and accompanied Mack Gabrielson, brother of the bride, as he sang "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of crystal peau de soie featuring an empire bodice, bateau neckline and A-line, floor-length skirt. The Watteau Cluny lace train was chapel-length and edged with a band of peau de soie and scalloped hairpin lace. Her lace and pearl crown held the pouf, silk illusion veil. She carried a Hogarth curve of feathered yellow mums and ivy centered with white roses.

The bride's attendants were Pamela Van Laningham of South Sioux City, Neb., Faye Gabrielson, sister of the bride, and Emma Jean Smidt of Britt, sister of the groom. Their gowns were styled with avocado crepe, empire-style bodices with short sleeves. The semi-sheath skirts were floor-length, of off-white crepe and featured a back panel train of avocado. Their circular veils were attached to matching bows. They carried balls of yellow pompons with ivy garlands.

Neil Gabrielson served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Dennis Abbas and Robert Schreur, both of Kanawha. Ushers and candle-lighters were Don Van Laningham, brother-in-law of the bride, and Albert Eekhoff of Forest City, cousin of the groom. The men of the wedding party wore black tuxedoes and white rose boutonnieres.

Roxanne Gabrielson, daughter of the Gary Gabrielsons, was flower girl and carried a ball of yellow pompons. Bradley Smidt, son of the Lawrence Smidts of Britt, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a mint green doubleknit dress having accents of coral and white with coral accessories and the groom's mother wore a royal blue doubleknit dress with blue and white accessories.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors with Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Gabrielson of Goodell as host and hostess. The staircase cake, topped with the Christian marriage symbol, was cut by Mrs. Wesley Boller and Mrs. Kenneth Boller, the latter of Goodell.

Mrs. Fred Meyers and Anne Eekhoff, both of Britt, poured coffee. Ann Reasoner and Margaret Downs dipped punch. Waitresses were Marilyn Ruka, Sheryl Schluter, Krista Boller, Sonja Ahlstrom and Mrs. Mary Jane Charlton.

Barbara Ahlstrom presided at the guest book. Gift pages were Keith Boller, John Reasoner and Glen Gabrielson. Debra Boller and Jane Hill unwrapped the gifts.

As the couple left on a honeymoon trip to Tucson, Ariz., the bride wore a mocha brown and blue doubleknit dress. The will be as home on a farm south of Britt.

The bride is a graduate of Belmond Community High school and the groom of Britt High school and is engaged in farming.

WINNER!

Lloyd Gordon, Alexander, made the highest yield in the 1966 Master Corn Growers Contest sponsored by the Belmond Jaycees. Gordon's contest field of Pioneer hybrid 3510 made 143.18 bushels per acre. The contest is open to all farmers and conducted under Iowa Crop Improvement Association rules.

This winning record with Pioneer corn was repeated in 63 other local Master Corn Growers Contests all across Iowa last year.

- More local contests were won with Pioneer corn than with the next 11 most popular brands combined.
- Pioneer winners used 10 different hybrids to win—ranging from under 115 days maturity to 130 days—a maturity spread of more than two weeks.
- The average yield of the Pioneer contest winners was 152.82 bushels per acre.

Take a lead from the many contestants who won with Pioneer hybrids. Get the winners' brand for the best possible yields your corn acres can produce . . . plant Pioneer corn.

He shall deliver thee in six troubles: yea, in seven there shall no evil touch thee. — Job 5:19

It's no time to tuck that "Belmond spirit" away!

It was a tough fall; and it's been a long, hard winter. Oh, the weather has been good enough. It's not that. But like a person recovering from a serious illness or a bad accident, Belmond is getting sufficiently well from the unfortunate happening of last Oct. 14th that the natives are becoming restless.

Let's be honest with ourselves. There are certain psychological attractions to the martyr's role. We were sick a-bed. People felt sorry for us; and inspired by sympathy, we weren't too hesitant about bragging a bit that it'd be "watch our smoke" when we got back on our feet.

We weren't going to let a lousy disaster whip us. We were going to come back a better and stronger community than ever before. . . . Yes, we talked pretty big. But not a speck bigger than we NEEDED to. For we recognized that we had facing us just about the biggest challenge an Iowa community of our size has EVER had to face. And the alternative to going FORWARD was to just sit in our rubble and whine about our misfortune. . . . So we really MEANT every word of it, when we were talking big.

Individually, we've taken some pretty broad strides in the meantime. New homes have gone up by the dozens. Business concerns have been rebuilding, repairing, remodeling with a will.

But collectively, what's become of that "Belmond spirit" that seemed such a very real thing when we were crawling out of the debris? The "Belmond spirit" that prompted visitors to leave our town, heads wagging in awed admiration, declaring, "What a courageous bunch of people! There's a town that will COME BACK!"

These remarks made us swell with pride. That was US they were talking about, by golly!

It was in the warm glow created by such admiration that a large group of civic leaders was persuaded to pour many, many hours into a project that would stamp Belmond as "reborn". Nearly $20,000 was obtained in federal and state funds through the Iowa Development Commission to finance the planning.

If there were objections to the idea, they were few and mildly stated. There was never a suggestion that the miracle of making Belmond truly different from every other town up and down the pike could be achieved without some cost. That seemed to be taken for granted; and the clear consensus was that, within any reasonable bounds, it would be "worth it".

You'd better believe that people from the whole state of Iowa and beyond will be keeping an eye on us. They'll be watching to see what we DO. And since they shovelled nearly a quarter of a million dollars into various and sundry "tornado funds" here out of sympathy for our plight and admiration for our courage, we'd say they have every right to measure our performance against our boasts.

However, it's not so important that we "deliver" to live up to the expectations of others. What's much more important it that we live up to our pledge to ourselves.

We're faced with a decision as to whether we're going to emerge from our calamity decidedly MORE than just "an average midwestern town" — or whether we are going to remain, for many years to come, something less. Either we ERASE the ravages of that calamity and live up to our "bigger and better" promises to ourselves, or we aren't even going to be the town we WERE for a long time to come, if ever again.

To go ahead with our plans for community betterment — and that includes the widening of River avenue as well as the projected Main street improvements — will cost some more than others. The TORNADO cost some more than others. Some of these things depend upon which side of coin comes up.

Every effort should be made to work out feasible compromises where they can be made without sacrifice to the total effect and to alleviate genuine burdens where they occur.

At the same time, temporary costs must be measured against the long-range gains to be derived from doing business in a town that was not afraid to take the future by the ears.

The "Belmond spirit" is as important to us now as it was at the time of our greatest emergency. Let us pray that we haven't lost it.

Our legislators can't see that I-35 diagonal either

On Wednesday of last week the Iowa House of Representatives followed the lead of the Senate in passing by a decidedly wide margin (101 to 10) a resolution asking the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads to reverse the decision made to relocate the route of Interstate 35 through Wright and Franklin counties. The Senate had approved the resolution by a correspondingly large margin.

Crux of the resolution is that such a diagonal routing as settled upon should be avoided — particularly if there is a satisfactory alternative.

In our opinion, this legislative action points up two things.

One, the legislators apparently harbor a suspicion that judgment of the Iowa highway commission was over-ridden by the Bureau of Public Roads for reasons of questionable merit.

Two, that the Mason City promulgators of the change in routing — with disregard for any hardships that it might arbitrarily impose — have not been entirely convincing in their brief for the practicality of the change.

So many contradictory figures have been introduced as to cost, motorist accommodation and other arithmetical factors involved that there is simply no general public confidence that the Mason City-Clear Lake interests have a sound case.

Whether the basic inertia that opposes change of mind in a bureaucratic agency such as the Bureau of Roads can be budged by a state legislative action is probably questionable. But one would think that in view of the very preponderant demand that the diagonal routing be reconsidered, the federal road-planners would give the suggestion some attention.

There is simply no question but what I-35 could be routed through this area more advantageously, if all possibilities were given consideration — with no damage to road-user interests.

As we've suggested before, Belmond territory is likely better off with the Interstate routed outside of Belmond Community School district area. So, for strictly selfish reasons, we have no particular impulse to join those fighting for the original routing paralleling High 69.

Nevertheless, if the Iowa highway commission studies that prompted the original routing of I-35 had a sound basis, we'd be wrong in opposing it — as wrong as Mason City possibly is in demanding that the highway pass its doorstep regardless of other considerations.

No very convincing argument has been presented yet to establish that the Dows-Latimer diagonal is the only feasible one that could be employed to bring I-35 past Mason City and Clear Lake. At least, none that was convincing to the Iowa legislators.

Report from Sen. Hugh Clarke

A LEGISLATURE IS OFTEN A little like an iceberg — there is more below the surface than appears on top. Part of the reason for this is that public attention is riveted on the floor debates over highly controversial issues, some of which were acted upon in the last week.

One of the more "iceberg-like" subjects of this session concerns the General Assembly's action on governmental reorganization. Most of the public attention has centered on the discussions over a series of constitutional amendments offering substantial changes in the form of government.

These are important matters, but the basic reorganization which can give Iowans more responsive, responsible and efficient government is being worked on quietly in important committees.

IN THESE COMMITTEES, SENAtors and Representatives are going over the many proposals to streamline the overlapping state boards, agencies and commissions. Public hearings with experts and department heads continue to go on in order to make sure legislators hear every point of view and suggestion.

The result is likely to be some careful reorganization of at least several governmental departments, achieved through separate bills. Many legislators reject the wholesale approach recommended by a professional firm because the lines of communication over which the people converse with their government and agencies to work out mutual problems would be destroyed. Government must be responsive as well as efficient.

—o—

On Thursday of this past week a permanent Senate Sub-Committee on Government Reorganization was privileged to hear at a scheduled appearance of long-standing the testimony from the State President of the Iowa Medical Society, Dr. Sam Leinbach.

I wish all of his friends and acquaintances could have heard him, because he gave a very constructive and objective analysis of the Public Administrative Services Report on reorganization of the executive branch.

"Dr. Sam's" comments contained suggested deviations from the report, which would make it more manageable, and his ideas were appreciated by committee members who are earnestly seeking a solution to the unrealistic and clumsy manner in which our state government is organized.

BEING A MEMBER OF THE sub-committe who has not missed a single one of over two dozen meetings, it was particularly refreshing to me because the vast majority of the previous hearings found few who could find good in government reorganization. This, I think, is based on the fear that their independent operation could be shaken up.

It has been my observation that far too many departments fail to realize that their primary function is to serve Iowa people, instead of merely complying with the minimum provisions which previous legislators have seen fit to incorporate into the Code.

—o—

FLOOR ACTION CONTINUED very heavy with a number of major issues taken up, ranging from reapportionment (again) to school buses and to truck lengths.

The House took another step to resolve the reapportionment matter. It amended and passed a resolution calling for a state commission to come in with a plan to create a 100-member House and 50-member Senate for the next legislature. This resolution, which now goes to the Democrat-controlled Senate, was approved on a near party-line vote of 83-34.

The House's main amendment called for preserving the terms of those 30 Senators who were elected to four-year terms in 1966. The House took the view that the constitution does not allow for cutting terms short.

It is now up to the Senate Democrats to show their part of the compromise was in good faith.

—o—

THE SENATE PASSED AND sent to the House a highly controversial bill which would allow private school students to ride public school buses. The bill, which saw both Republicans and Democrats on both sides of the issue, would have the public school buses pick up private school students and drop them off either en route to the public school or at the public school.

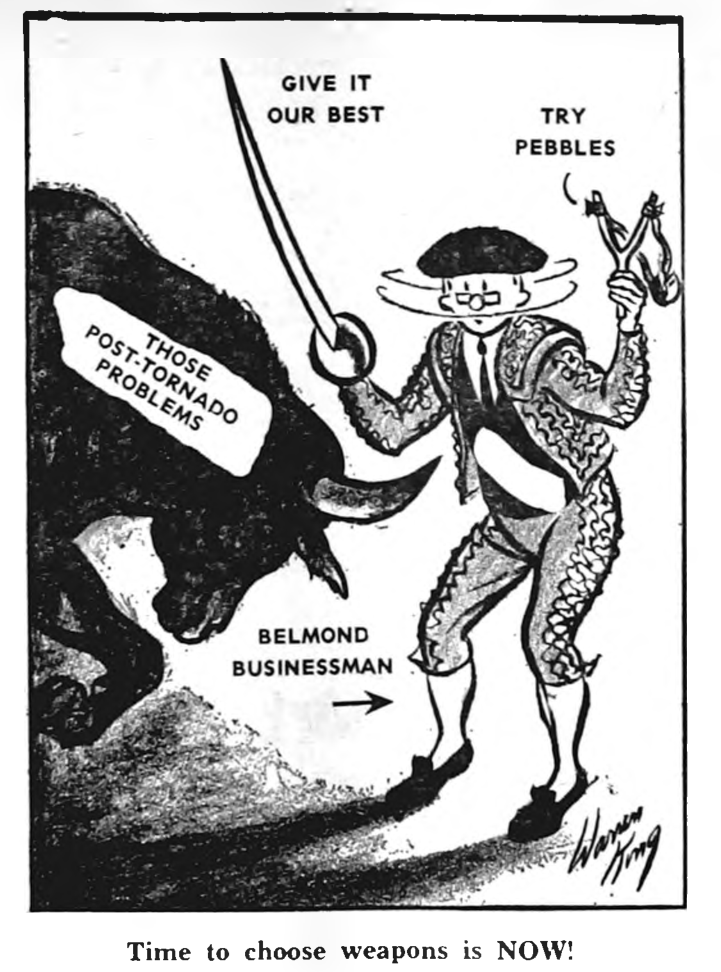
The proposal carried by a 36-26 margin.

—o—

THE HOUSE, AFTER CONsiderable heated discussion, also passed a bill permitting 65-foot-long trucks on Iowa highways provided the truck-tractor is pulling two or more trailers. This was approved by a 70-50 margin and was sent to the Senate. Most of the debate centered upon the safety aspects of the so-called "double bottom" trucks. The term "double bottom" comes from the requirement that there would be at least two separate trailers, hooked together by a hinge.

—o—

AND IN ONLY THE BRIEFEST kind of discussion, the House turned down a bill which could have ended daylight saving time in Iowa. The bill was beaten 69-45.



Time to choose weapons is NOW!

Capitol News Letter

Prepared for its members by
IOWA PRESS ASSOCIATION

TRUCK BILL BY HOUSE—

The Iowa House has passed and sent to the Senate a measure under which "double bottom" trucks could be a maximum of 65 feet long instead of the present 60 feet. A double-bottom truck is a truck-tractor pulling two or more trailers.

These vehicles are now in use in 24 states, including Illinois, South Dakota, Missouri and Nebraska. The Iowa trucking industry contends that the current 60-foot limitation places the state at a disadvantage in competing for business with the states allowing the 65-foot length.

"The five foot difference has acted as a barrier to efficient through transportation, and has not permitted Iowa shippers and receivers to receive the full benefits of modern doubles equipment," said a spokesman for the trucking industry.

REP. RALPH McCARTNEY, Charles City Republican, opposed the bill. He wondered aloud who was speaking for the people of Iowa.

"Have you been lobbied by a housewife with a car full of kids?" McCartney asked House members. He said the legislature has been playing "a deadly game of leap-frog" in the past 10 years on increasing truck lengths, going from 45 to 65 feet.

Several legislators said because of the better weight distribution the doubles will be as safe as the two-unit semi-trailer trucks. They also noted that passing time has proven to take only a fraction of a second longer.

The bill, after several hours' debate, cleared the House by a vote of 70 to 50.

BINGO COMING BACK?—

B-I-N-G-O! That familiar cry of days past may ring out again. A proposal to change Iowa's constitution to permit bingo is before the Iowa legislature. Amending Iowa's constitution is a lengthy process. A measure must be passed in identical form and then approved by a vote of the people. The bingo proposal, which was passed by the last session, has cleared the Senate and awaits action in the House.

RIGHT-TO-WORK—

Two years ago, with Democrats in control of both houses of the legislature, the state's so-called right-to-work law which was enacted in 1947 was nearly wiped off the books. So, with Republicans in control of the House, some members of the GOP decided to write the principle of the right-to-work law into the Iowa Constitution. They got the job done in the House, by a vote of 69 to 53. However, it's doubtful that the Senate will pass the resolution.

MEDICAID FAR-REACHING—

The legislature has passed what has been described as the most far-reaching welfare act in Iowa's history. Everything has a nickname today; this bill is no exception. It's known as Medicaid.

The measure brings into one program all county, state and federal medical programs for indigents. At the beginning it will cost about $32 million a year, with Iowa putting up $13 million and the Federal goverment the rest.

But no one knows how many Iowans in the years ahead will be eligible for Medicaid. Some estimate the number may reach 400,000 by 1975.

GOP BUCKS AMENDMENTS—

One of the central debates in the legislature is whether or not Iowa should have what's called a "strong governor system." Some argue that the governor should have more responsibility; they particularly feel that the governor should be allowed to appoint certain state officials.

An amendment to the constitution was passed by the 1965 legislature allowing the governor to appoint the secretary of state, treasurer, attorney general and have the legislature appoint the state auditor. This proposed constitutional amendment sailed through the Senate this session, but ran into a road block in the House.

A HOUSE COMMITTEE ON constitutional amendments voted 11 to 6 to kill the proposal. The committee's recommendation later was upheld by a vote of the entire House as Democrats forced a vote on the floor.

The same committee also side-tracked another proposed constitutional amendment to give the governor and lieutenant governor four-year terms and have them run as a team. Republicans opposed the team provision.

Seventeen Belmond High wrestlers will receive letters for their performances during the past season — or, in a few instances, in recognition of four years of faithful participation in the mat sport. An exception to the latter category is Bob McNutt, who achieved the tough trick of lettering as a B squad member. He had only one draw marring a string of eight wins, five of them by falls.

Only five of the lettermen will be back next season — Rob Dorr (112 lbs.), Glen Gabrielson (165), Mac Gabrielson (165) and Gene Pals (154), all juniors; and Greg McClenahan, a sophomore.

Those who completed their careers were: Les Steenblock, Jim Dickson, Dave Riedel, Lance Campbell, Tom Swaroff, Wayne Smith, Fred Whipple, Dennis Finn, Dave Moe, Frank Quigley and Craig Mennenga. Earning manager letters were Jim Boelman and Doug Mennenga.

Coach Don Jones says next year's squad will sorely miss several of the departing veterans, but a number of prospects who saw varsity or reserve action this season — both, in some cases — should be able to fill most of the vacancies capably if they continue to show progress.

Steenblock had the best record on the '66-67 squad, going undefeated until the first round of the state tournament. He was heavyweight winner in the Alden and Bronco Invitationals and won sectional and district titles in posting 20 victories against the single defeat and one draw.

Dorr placed as 112-lb. runner-up in the Alden and Bronco tourneys, won a sectional crown and was fourth in the district. Dickson was a title-winner in the Alden and Belmond tournaments and finished 3rd in the sectional. Riedel was sectional runner-up, 3rd at Alden and in the district and 4th in the Bronco event.

Campbell finished 4th at Alden and in the Bronco meets. Fourth places were taken by Swaroff in the tournament here and by Mack Gabrielson and Glen Gabrielson at Alden.

B-winners who wrestled both varsity and reserve had the following records for A and B competition: Mack Gabrielson 2-8-2 and 2-0-0; Glen Gabrielson 1-5-1 and 6-1-0; Fred Whipple 2-6-1 and 1-0-1; Gene Pals 1-4-0 and 5-0-0.

Non-lettermen who saw varsity action, their class indicated in parentheses, and their records in varsity and reserve competition were: John Knoll (3) 2-2-1, no B meets; Dave McLaughlin (2) 1-4-0 and 1-1-0; Danny Ketchum (2) 2-2-0 and 0-3-1; Brian Bateson (2) 0-2-0 and 3-1-1.

Lewis Schaal (1) 1-4-2 and 0-2-1; Tom Wilson (2) 0-4-0 and 5-2-0; Vance Jenison (3) 0-7-1 and 1-3-0; Bill Broshar (2) 0-2-0 and 3-1-0; John Greenwood (1) 0-1-0 and 2-4-0; Steve Courson (3) 0-2-0 and 2-1-1.

Records of other squad members in B meets were: Randy Turner (1) 5-3-0; Les Simpson (4) 2-2-0; Les Andrews (3) 2-0-1; Lynn Henn (1) 0-0-1; Leland Thompson (2) 3-1-0; Jim Eckhoff (3) 0-2-0; Irv Meier (1) 1-5-0; Kevin Gallagher (2) 2-2-1; Dennis Knoll (2) 0-2-0; Bob Cullinan (2) 0-5-0; Greg Hanson (1) 1-0-0; Vernon Christie (2) 0-1-0.

Following are statistics for the boys who took part exclusively in varsity competition, showing number of take-downs, reversals, escapes, near-falls predicaments, penalty points and falls — and the same for their opponents:

Three juniors among 10 receiving cage letters

Ten players earned Honor B letters during the season just concluded, according to Coach Ted Besch. Only three of them will be back next season to help form the BHS cage aggregation of '67-68.

Rich Stadtlander was awarded his third basketball letter, although a skating mishap gave him a badly fractured arm that sidelined the Bronco veteran before the campaign was half over.

Lettering for the second time were Gary Meyers, Doug Thompsen, Dave Dirks and Bob Vander Schaaf. Another senior, Tim Roberts, earned his first monogram.

Juniors receiving basketball letters for the first time were Terry Nelson, Paul Bamford and Greg Fuller. Managers letters were earned by Dudley Thompson and Mike Klinefelter.

Coach Besch, looking ahead to next season, says the Broncos' success will depend heavily on how several players develop who did not letter this season or were in the froshmore ranks.

Joel Gabrielson and Jim Studebaker saw some varsity action from time to time. Two other juniors, Don Havens and Allan Hansen, also saw more limited action.

Lee Barkema and Rick Hawley possibly could be contending for varsity spots next season. Other sophomores who saw a good deal of froshmore action were Greg Steenblock, Jerry Boelman, Stan Korthas and Clark Trager.

Tom Shirer, a freshman, could be one of the tallest cage candidates BHS has ever had if his growth of the last year or two continues. Coach Besch predicts that he and another freshman, Ron Ginapp, might conceivably work up to the varsity ranks as sophomores.

He says he would be disinclined to promote either of these yearlings, though, unless they would stand a chance of regular use. They will need experience, and will undoubtedly start with the lower classmen, with advancement depending on their rate of development.

In Bronco cage statistics—

Nelson, Meyers gain record lists

SPORTS

Terry Nelson's 295 rebounds captured during the 1966-67 basketball season was the third highest total ever achieved by a Bronco cager in one campaign, reports Athletic Director Jack Steinberg. That one-season figure was also big enough to place him among the top 10 rebounders in BHS history — or at least for that portion of the basketball annals that have seen enough shooting done to make rebonds numerous.

Gary Meyers was the only other 66-67 basketeer to nudge in among the leaders in the record book. His 367 points in 21 games for a 17.5 average gave him the 5th highest total for a season and the 7th best average. The 496 points he gathered during his varsity career put him 11th among the scorers of the past 20 years.

(Roger Kinseth's earlier record likely belongs in the top 10, but has never been accurately determined.)

Nelson's 286 points for the past campaign places him 15th on the one-year scoring list and his 13.6 average is the 18th best. Tim Roberts' 243 points for the season was 26th highest total for one year and his 11.6 average ranks 25th. Bob Rise's 334 career points put him No. 23 on that list.

Rise's 154 rebounds figured 19th best for a season and his career total of 214 ranked him 12th on a career basis. Doug Thompsen's 142 retrieves for his career put him in the No. 19 spot, helped by 114 this past season — 27th best for a year.

Neal Waddington dominates both the one-year and career statistics established by Bronco cagers. His 509 points and 23.1 average over 22 games as a junior and 1,573 careers points lead all other competitors by far. He also has the next two highest scoring averages of 20.95 and 19.8 (and the 18th highest, 14.1, as a freshman).

His 1,077 career rebounds also tops the list; but Paul Laaveg holds the one-season mark of 320 — four more than Waddington's best.

After Neal's three high scoring averages come: Paul Laaveg 18.4, Bob Burk 18.2, Lynn Jenison 17.7, Gary Meyers 17.5, Ron Hansen 17.0, Robbie Courson 16.2, Jerry Jenison 15.4.

Following Waddington on career total are: L. Jenison 774, P. Laaveg 715, Larry Ackerman 664, Keith Madison 602, Dave Helland 601, Ron Hansen 585, Jerry Chandler 565, LeRoy Smith 554, Bob Misner 549 and Gary Meyers 496.

One-season rebound leaders are: P. Laaveg 320, Waddington 316, Terry Nelson 295, Gaylon Lathrop 283, Waddington 272, Robbie Courson and Ackerman each 265, Waddington 259, Laaveg 236 and Waddington 230.

Leading career rebound totals following Waddington's 1,077: Ackerman 664, P. Laaveg 640, L. Jenison 425, Dean Pals 351, Lathrop 328, Roger Ginapp 320, Terry Nelson 295, Burk 292, R. Courson 282.

Cinder squad working out—

Track depth good; short on stars

Belmond High track and field athletes will be competing in fewer large meets during the 1967 season due to a ruling by the Iowa High School Arthletic association that teams may not engage in more than one such meet per week on a school day. This will eliminate the scheduling of some Tuesday and Friday night relay meet appearances that have been common in recent years.

To fill some of the gaps left on the card, the athletic department has scheduled dual meets with Clear Lake, Forest City and Garner on weeks when a major meet will be occupying the Broncos' attention on a school-day night.

Coach Chuck Stalker will have the largest number of returning lettermen eligible for track this spring that BHS has ever had, 19 in all. Lacking, however, are the stand-out stars who have been important point-winners for the Broncos in recent years.

Stalker will have to count on squad depth if Belmond is to rate this year as the track power it has regularly been for the past decade. Better than usual balance in the relay events would appear the best hope of the Broncos staying at or near the top of the heap.

Stadtlander will not be available because of a bad arm injury.

Coach Stalker presently has a squad of 57 working out daily to get in shape for the approaching season, which opens with the Class A state indoor meet at Iowa City on March 23.

The outdoor schedule is as follows:

April 12 — Clear Lake dual, there
April 14 — Eagle Relays, Eagle Grove
April 15 — Valley Relays, West Des Moines
April 18 — Clear Lake Relays
April 21 — Forest City dual, there
April 22 — SCI Relays, Cedar Falls
April 25 — Humboldt Relays
April 28 — Garner dual, here
May 2 — Bronco Relays
May 5 — District meet
May 9 — Conference meet, Osage
May 16 — Frosh-Soph Conference meet, Lake Mills.

Wright gets off to better start on sale of bonds

Wright county, which failed quite miserably to attain its quota for U. S. saving bonds sales in 1966, has gotten off to an appreciably better start toward reaching the goal assigned to it this year.

At the end of January, Wright was well on schedule to meet its quota of $831,310 with first-month sales of $105,256 for 13 per cent.

In view of reduced sales in the county during the past couple of years, the state savings bond committee reduced the Wright goal set for this year. In 1966, the Wright quota was $882,900, or about $60,000 more than for the current year.

Franklin county led those around Wright in per cent of quota reached in January with sales of $113,901 for 23 per cent. Kossuth county was next with 19 per cent on a January sales total of $151,121.

Hardin reached 11 per cent on $109,571 in sales; Hamilton nine per cent on $81,233.

Ah-hah! Girls of BHS contribute addition to school trophy case

A new trophy was added to the well populated case in the BHS student center this week — the first ever to be contributed by girls of the school. It was won by 13 members of the Girls Recreation association at a Play Day conducted last Saturday at Forest City. They competed in basketball, volleyball and table tennis against teams from Britt, Lake Mills and Forest City.

A team tie resulted, Belmond and Forest City having equal points at the end of the regular events. To break the tie and determine who should get the trophy, a foot race was held between representatives of the deadlocked schools.

When Belmond had one of the speedy Suntkens to enter in the special event, the outcome was more-or-less preordained. Linda Suntken won the race to settle the issue. Glenda Cunningham also was a Belmond entry in the sprint.

The BHS basketball team was winner in that competition and the finalists in table tennis were both from Belmond, Glenda Cunningham and Linda Suntken being the local entrants in that event, too. Since they'd won the 1st and 2nd place points, anyway, they did not play off for the individual championship.

Each school had a pair of teams in volleyball, and Forest City finished 1-2 in that event. Belmond beat Forest City in the basketball finals.

LaRaleyn Hart, girls physical education instructor, took 13 girls to Forest City. In addition to Miss Cunningham and Miss Suntken, they were: Mary Jane Brinton, Jane Modderman, Nancy Smith, Marilyn Zollner, Linda Aitken, Peggy Jones, Delores Hauge, Evelyn Basener, Nancy Barkema, Jeanne Anderson and Madonna Luick.

VOL. 43 NO. 26 | OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER | WRIGHT COUNTY IOWA—THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1967 | OFFICIAL CITY PAPER | 12 PAGES THIS ISSUE

MAIN STREET

BY PAT, DICK, DUANE

Mothers, keep those snowsuits handy, just in case. Because, barring a total lack of cooperation on the weatherman's part, Beta Sigma Phi sorority's 20th annual Easter Egg Hunt will be conducted this coming Sunday morning. This is one of the earliest Easters the gals have had to contend with during the two decades that they've been providing this Easter morning divertissement. But very few have had to be postponed and they're counting on this one going through as scheduled.

As usual, the kids (age eight and under) are to be taken to the library corner by 7:45 a. m. and from there they'll be escorted to the happy hunting grounds. An estimated 250 tykes took part in the fun last year; and with anything resembling a decent break in the weather, as many are expected this time.

There will be two age divisions, with a separate area in which each will hunt — pre-schoolers and kindergarteners in one; the youngsters in 1st grade and all others within the age-eight limit in the other. As customary, there will be three extra-special eggs hidden in each area that will be good for prizes. While some parents are a bit reluctant to crawl out on Sunday morning to have the younguns ANYWHERE at 7:45, this is a real fun deal; and Mom and Dad have about as much fun as anybody.

Notice anything "different" about yesterday morning? You SHOULD have; for spring officially arrived at 1:37 a. m. Why 1:37 in the dark of night marked the mystic hour, we don't know. But we DO know — from past experience — that the weatherman pays mighty small attention to the matter. Nevertheless, "spring" is here; and that being the case, spring weather should be in the fairly imminent offing.

Mrs. Ruth Eilers of Clarion, county chairman for the annual Easter Seal campaign, sends a note to the affect that return of purchase checks to date has brought in hardly half of the Wright quota of $3,600. She hopes that any who have permitted payment for the seals to slip their mind will see that the return envelope is put to proper use while this appeal is fresh in their minds.

Last year, more than 6,500 handicapped Iowans received therapy, were fitted for artificial limbs, received special orthopedic equipment, rehabilitation training or one of the other services provided by the East Seal Society.

That's a LOT of people helped! The Easter Seal campaign is the major source of revenue for the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and Adults, so regular purchase of the Easter Seals is a matter of keen importance to the organization. The yearly campaign is conducted entirely by volunteers. It takes many hours of unrewarded (even though rewarding) labor. A buck or two for seals is OUR part.

FETED ON ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Bamford were greeted by 160 relatives and friends at the open house held Sunday at the Olde Belmond Inn honoring their 25th wedding anniversary. Guests were present from Webster City Stanhope, Renwick, Story City, Jewell, Thor, Kanawha, Mason City, Clear Lake, Clarion, Britt, Goodell and Belmond.

DENNIS ON DEANS' LIST

Dennis Swenson, son of the Earl Swensons, made the Dean's List at Iowa State university, Ames, for the winter quarter with a grade-point average of 3.65. He is an ISU sophomore.

Marjorie Hinman funeral services held on Saturday

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at the Congregational church (United Church of Christ) for Mrs. A. C. Hinman, 82, a resident of the Belmond area for well over 50 years. Mrs. Hinman died Thursday morning at Belmond Community hospital, having been in failing health for a number of months.

Rev. J. Samuel Shelby officiated over the final rites and Johnston Funeral Home was in charge. Pallbearers were Stephen and Donald Hinman, Robert A. Hinman, Dwight Hinman, Larry Benson and Paul Ahlstrom.

Born in New Jersey

Marjorie McGrann was born at Chester, N. J., on Feb. 21, 1885, daughter of John and Amelia McGrann. When she was only two years old her family moved to Iowa, settling first at Hawarden and later at Eagle Grove.

She attended the Eagle Grove schools and teachers college at Cedar Falls. For some years she was teacher of the Hickory Grove rural school northwest of Belmond.

On Dec. 18, 1912, she married Arthur C. Hinman at Eagle Grove. They farmed northwest of Belmond until 1944, when they retired and moved into town. Mrs. Hinman continued to reside here after the death of her husband in 1950.

Was "Mother of Year"

She was a member of the Congregational church, Grandmothers club, Eastern Star and Rebekah lodges. In 1960 she was chosen by The Independent's publishers as Belmond's Mother of the Year.

All of the Hinmans' eight children are living. They are: Ellen (Mrs. Gunnar) Ahlstrom, Stephen, Robert, Earl and George of Belmond; Agnes Hinman, Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. Ethel Benson, Clarion; and Mrs. Ruth Baldwin, Boise, Ida.

Mrs. Hinman also leaves 18 grandchildren and six great grandchildren; and a brother, Walter McGrann of Hooper, Neb. In addition to her husband, she was preceded in death by two sisters and two brothers.

BIDC makes offer of $2,000—

Must hold new hearing on sale of city land

An audience that filled the city hall council chamber to overflowing Monday night attended the hearing on a resolution proposing to dispose of approximately 11 acres of city property by selling it to the Belmond Industrial Development corporation for a dollar.

Involved would be all the land comprising the city dump and that extending to the north, up to the County U blacktop. In turn, the BIDC proposed to sell for the same price the north 600 feet of the property to National By-Products, Inc., of Des Moines as the site of a collection station.

This is the same concern that some few years ago made a gift to the city of property on which it had once operated a rendering works. That land was sold by the city to Tomco, Inc., for approximately $3,400.

As matters turned out, a legal opinion received by City Attorney Roy Henderson after the date of Monday night's hearing had been advertised indicated that the city could not convey title to the dump land to the BIDC for the token sum proposed. That made the entire procedure of Monday evening to no concrete purpose as the proposed sale will have to be reconsidered in the light of a larger purchase price offered by the development corporation.

In this issue of The Independent appears a new "Notice of proposal to dispose of real property," which is based on a BIDC offer of $2,000 for the tract of land. This new offer, entered by the development corporation after the hearing, was based on a qualified appraiser's evaluation of the land — and, in fact, is generously in excess of what the appraiser suggested could logically be expected as a purchase price.

Two representatives of National By-Products were present to inform persons at the hearing what the company's plans are, should it be able to acquire the desired land. They were DeWayne Ehler, district manager from Des Moines, and Lloyd Haltom, territory supervisor from Iowa Falls.

They related that the firm proposes to build a 70x80-foot, split-level building to serve as a collection station for dead stock and commercial scrap. It would be a cement block and steel building with metal panelling and the most modern structure for its particular purpose to be found in the state. The building, plus radio communications equipment for keeping in contact with truck drivers, would cost an estimated $60,000.

Mr. Ehler said the choice of Belmond as headquarters of its revised plan of operations was based on its central location in a territory ranging 50 miles or somewhat more in a radius from this community that is now served by collection stations at Algona, Mason City and Iowa Falls.

These plants, all converted from former rendering works and not designed as collection centers, would all be closed. A three-man staff would operate the station, one of them serving as a utility truck driver. Fourteen truck drivers would empty their daily loads here; and Mr. Ehler predicted that most of them — perhaps all, in due time — would make Belmond their home.

It was emphasized by Mr. Ehler that the building here would be wholly enclosed, making control of odor not a problem. He told that a similar collection station at Waterloo is situated hardly more than a block from the nearest residence and with leading stores in close proximity. This is a remodeled building that was enclosed to eliminate the risk of creating a nuisance, he said, and despite its nearness to residential and shopping areas no complaints in regard to it have been received.

A well would be drilled to provide water for the station here and a septic tank installed to handle adequately the 65,000 gallons of water the station would require monthly. Just as every safeguard would be taken to prevent air pollution, said Mr. Ehler, equal caution would be taken to avoid polluting a near-by stream that feeds into the Iowa river.

Collection trucks would park overnight on the station grounds and leave each morning for their territories. They would return during the course of the afternoon, dump their loads into semi-trailers for transport of the materials to Des Moines, and the semi's would be en route to the Des Moines the same evening.

The upper level of the station would have three scrap-truck dumping positions and the semi's would be parked on the lower level to receive the contents of the collection trucks. Three overhead doors would permit complete enclosure of the upper deck and six similar doors would enclose the lower level.

State licensed operation

Mr. Ehler said the station would be a state-licensed facility and would be subject to state sanitations inspections as well as having to comply with the local ordinance forbidding the maintenance of a public nuisance.

When the hearing was thrown open to complaints, Clarence Triggs of Triggs Manufacturing company and his son Harley spoke in opposition to the proposed land sale to National By-Products.

Mr. Triggs exhibited pictures of the obsolete stations at Iowa Falls and Mason City and expressed a conviction that the proposed station here would do no better job of abating an odor nuisance than these two facilities. He expressed himself as unalterably opposed to permitting National By-Products to locate a collection station at the proposed site.

Algona station visited

William Lanphere told the hearing audience that he and four Belmond businessmen had gone to Algona to visit the station there. He said they could detect no offensive odor around it and that inquiries made among persons living in the vicinity failed to turn up any complaints as to its being a nuisance.

Two directors of the BIDC endeavored to set Mr. Triggs' fears at rest. Duane Anderson said complete assurances had been given by National By-Products that it was satisfied that the plant could be operated without being the source of annoying odors. Larry Flanagan pointed out that the modern plant that would be built would not have the shortcomings that were possessed by the old stations at Algona, Mason City and Iowa Falls.

Several others in attendance expressed varying opinions or interest in obtaining additional information.

Porter conducts hearing

The hearing was conducted by Russell Porter as mayor pro tem, in the absence of Mayor Robert Misner, who was on vacation.

When the hearing was concluded, Mr. Henderson pointed out the extra-legality of the one dollar offer that had been made for the land and observed that the proposed transaction would have to be entirely reconsidered in the light of a "market value" offer, if such were to be made by the BIDC.

While the council was still in session, working through its regular agenda, the development corporation submitted its offer of $2,000 and a new notice of hearing was drafted by the council. This hearing is scheduled for 8:00 p. m. on Monday, April 10, at the city hall. Objections will again be heard at that time.

Winter athletes get bow Monday

If you see some worried-looking Lions tramping the streets these days, it's because they have a problem. They have gone all-out in arranging a fine affair for the BHS basketball players and wrestlers in the form of a revival of the Winter Sports Banquet.

They've invited the cheerleaders and other special guests, engaged a top-flight speaker and arranged a delicious meal for the occasion. But up to mid-week, public support of the event was most noticeable by its absence.

Parents, uncles, aunts and cousins of the athletes to be honored are most cordially invited to witness the proceedings. Tickets may be purchased for $1.75, which is about the charge for the Swiss steak dinner since the Lions are underwriting the cost of entertaining the approximately 100 guests.

The program will take something of a Drake tinge, with Jim Houser acting as master-of-ceremonies and James S. Duncan being the evening's speaker. Jim came to Belmond as a graduate of the Drake law school and Professor Duncan, also an alumnus of the Des Moines school, is head of Drake's department of radio and television.

Knowledge that Mr. Duncan was valedictorian of his high school class as a 14-year-old graduate and in college was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, top honorary academic society, might lead one to expect him to be of sober professorial mein.
